Ida Mae really wants that ring back, because it is her only proof of engagement, and her fianc&#65533;, Stuart, is now seriously considering backing out on the whole thing in as much as he had consumed most of a bottle of Jim Beam in Quality Control when he decided to pop the question. It is not without irony that Ida Mae's last name is "Barker", if you get our drift.

2. PLUGGING IN THE RADIO:

The plug on this device represents the thinking of the electrical industry's Plug Mutation Group, which, in a continuing effort to prevent consumers from causing hazardous electrical current to flow through their appliances, developed the Three-Pronged Plug, then the Plug Where One Prong is Bigger Than the Other. Your device is equipped with the revolutionary new Plug Whose Prongs Consist of Six Small Religious Figurines Made of Chocolate. DO NOT TRY TO PLUG IT IN! Lay it gently on the floor near an outlet, but out of direct sunlight and clean it weekly with a damp handkerchief.

WARNING: WHEN YOU ARE LAYING THE PLUG ON THE FLOOR, DO NOT HOLD A SCREWDRIVER IN YOUR OTHER HAND AND TRIP OVER THE CORD AND POKE YOUR EYE OUT, AS THIS COULD VOID THE WARRANTY.

3. OPERATION OF THE RADIO:

INSTRUCTIONS: For results that can be the finest, it is our advising that: NEVER to hold these buttons two times!! Except the battery. Next taking the (something) earth section may cause a large occurrence! However. If this is not a trouble, such rotation is a very maintenance action, as a kindly (something) virepoint from Drawing B.

NOTE: WE MANUFACTURE ONLY THE ATTRACTIVE DESIGNER CASE. THE ACTUAL WORKING CENTRAL PARTS OF THE RADIO ARE MANUFACTURED IN AN ORIENTAL COUNTRY. THE INSTRUCTIONS WERE TRANSLATED BY MRS. SHIRLEY PELTWATER OF ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE, WHO HAS NEVER ACTUALLY BEEN TO THE ORIENT BUT DOES HAVE MOST OF "SHOGUN" ON TAPE.

WARNING: IT MAY BE A VIOLATION OF SOME LAW THAT MRS. SHIRLEY PELTWATER HAS "SHOGUN" ON TAPE.

4. WARRANTY:

Be it hereby known that this device, together with but not excluding all those certain parts thereunto, shall be warranted against all defects, failures and malfunctions as shall occur between now and Thursday afternoon shortly before 2, during which time the Manufacturer will, at no charge to the Owner, send the device to our Service People, who will emerge from their caves and engage in ritual designed to cleanse it of evil spirits. This warranty does not cover the attractive designer case.

I would agree assuming you mean the true left is not the same Democratic party left. The Democratic party by record is no different from the Republican when it comes to centralized gov't power or corporate wealth, elite one-world goverment. They are great spin miesters in manipulating the press so that the poor, blue collar and working joe actually believe they are working in their favor.

As for personal comments I have not denigrated anyone here until you arrived making insulting statements referring to me and anyone who thinks like me as being a Klansmen.
How you derive not wanting the goverment to teach your kids sex education at 6 years old to be anything relating to the KKK? How typical of a left wing democrat.

What

As far as TV and Brittany Spears most kids that age do not have a clue what she is singing about. It is also up to the parent to monitor-censor what their kids are watching on TV. It is the parents responsibility to raise and teach thier children values-sex education not the government. Each religion has it owns set of values when it comes to sex education which cannot be taught by the government. In this situation the government is forcing their values on children at an early age of innocence and interfering with family rights and religion.

I already stated I do not believe that alternative lifestyles should be taught to 6 year olds. This does not mean I am discrimating against homosexuals. On the contrary I do not believe anyone should be discrimated against or should be treated differently. I treat everyone equally and with the same respect no matter who they are or what they believe.

There is nothing racist or discriminatory about anything I have said. However you have clearly demonstrated the democratic left wing in this country. If you do not agree with a left winger or liberal you are a racist or discriminatory.

Thanks for the extremely valuable information. Ham Radio never had any problems until the latest restructuring. Everything always went well, hams knew how to operate, repair and maintained their equipment in perfect working and cosmetic order. Remember the equipment at the flea markets "back then"? The equipment that was being offered for sale at every ham radio flea market was in such perfect condition. Everyone kept their equipment in perfect order.

Everyone always treated each other with respect. No one ever abused their transmitter power. There were never any repeater wars or net wars. All the posts to newsgroups were nice, mannerly and were filled with mutual respect. No one complained about the posts or posting to the wrong newsgroup on that darn newfangled innernet.

Calling DX was always orderly. Everyone respected each others' turn.

Back then, no one bought equipment. Everthing was built by hams themselves. Everyone even designed their own equipment.

Amateur Extras were gods. They knew so much. Because they could send and receive CW faster then the rest of the masses they were so respected by other hams of lower status. Lower class hams looked at them in awe. Thank goodness we had those CW tests back then. It kept all the undesireables out of ham radio.

But now that we have made the code test just 5 wpm, for the first time ever, all the undesireables can now get a ham license. Since a year and a half ago, ham radio has not been the same. Gosh, it was so perfect back then.

Heck, the FCC never even monitored the ham bands until recently. There were no problems back in the old days. Everyone followed the letter of the law. The FCC never took anyone's license away back then. In fact, the FCC used to send out letters thanking some amateurs for the perfect operation of their station. Remember?

I wish I could again talk to older Amateur Extras about their medical problems. Remember all those great discussions about their spouses medical problems? Boy those sure were the days. I sure miss hearing about the latest friend, relative, spouse that passed away. Those were great discussions. The visions they left in my mind make it like yesterday.

We don't even complain about young people anymore! Can't get a good discussion over the cost of prescription drugs and medical care because we did not save enough for retirement. The inhumanity of it all. There is nothing to talk about anymore since the undesireables can get licenses with ease.

Please, please, someone bring back those good old days. Bring back Heathkits, tubes and TVI. Make the exams tough. 20 wpm on CW is too slow for Novices. 50 wpm test for Extras, yeah, just the real hams on the bands. No more computers and ham radio. No more sats or ham radio on the space station. No new modes, just CW. Keep those darn VHF and UHF freqs and beyond. Real hams only use CW and HF.

Make it perfect again the way is was back in the late '80's and '90's. Let's get our ranks shrinking faster! Just like the old days.

NOT!!!!!

JMHO - Cheers!

1. So what you are saying is if your religious beliefs mean you do not agree with the homosexual lifestyle that makes you homophobic? Even though you by no means ever discriminate or treat anyone in anyway differently including homosexuals, does that still makes you homophobic? So most people that vote republican (some 50% or more of the country) are homophobic? Get a grip.

2. Anti-choice? Perhaps Pro-life and the democrats are pro-murder-death. Come on whether you are relgious person or an athiest no one really knows when life begins. Why then take the chance in killing-abortion.

3rd fallacy. How do the republicans want to regulate what goes on in the bedroom? Stop believing the propaganda guys and look what it is really going on in background. The surface stuff is not what it is all about. Whether you are Democrat or Republican there are deeper issues going on in this country but this surface stuff is all the press and the politicians for that matter want you to see

What a surprise that I scan this NG to find me & my repeater in the discussion.

Yes, a certain individual gave VERY incorrect data about my repeater to an influencial employee of the organization who has hosted my location.
(stated it was a closed MARS repeater and that the owner had abandoned the repeater leaving the state & had not been heard from in years - ALL incorrect)

Yes, that SAME person is attempting to acquire a repeater & put that SAME repeater at the location in place of mine.

I'll let the readers make their own assessments.

Regarding the issues asked by K0HB:
1. My legal residence (voting registration, driver's license, etc) is in Iowa.
2. I use wireline control to control the Sioux City repeater when I am not at the actual repeater site. (this is legal per FCC rules)
3. I have other control operaters who assist me.
4. What could possibly be "an awful odor" about this?
(other than the ONLY repeater dedicated FULL TIME to emergency prepardness is being attempted to get kicked out over incorrect information?)

That is such a broad generalisation that it can't be true. In order to make that statement you would have had to have listened to every news programme in the world.

But if you really are so knowlegeable, what do you think about the story

Democratic & left wing are on opposite sides of thepolitical spectrum in the U.S. while a liberal should be free to choose from political ideologies, from all parts of the spectrum, and on average should be inthe centre. Let's not libel either group by association to the Democrats.

Yes, it does. But by which party? According to the message posted, Tom Brosamlie wants to buy back the repeater he sold to the club so he can put it back on the air (the repeater is currently sitting unused in someone's house). And the club is refusing to sell it to him. Why? Why would the club just leave a repeater, and a set of frequencies, sitting around unused? And why are they refusing to sell it back to him (especially if they're not using it)?

And exactly what lies are you talking about? The guy, Tom Brosamlie, said the repeater owner (KS0F) had left the area years ago. And the guy posting the message did in fact say that the repeater owner was out of town on military duties (military service does usually involve years).

Furthermore, I wonder how the person posting the message knew so much about a conversation between Tom Brosamlie and Jim Cornelia (how did he know exactly what Tom told Jim). Since the person posting the message was not involved in that conversation (he certainly would have said so if he was), one has to wonder if he is the one making up things to fit his own agenda.

Now we're getting somewhere (information straight from the horse's mouth). Since you're here, I'll ask my basic question again - how do you, or the person who posted the first message, know what Tom Brosamlie said in what I assume was a private conversation to his friend Jim Cornelia? You both seem to have considerable information about a conversation that neither of you were a party to.

Of course, none of this is really any of my business (I'm just curious now). In reality, the others are right, this very local issue has no business on this forum (so feel free to ignore my question if you prefer).

I don't know how the original poster of this thread knows his information, but I do know that many in the Sioux City community are aware of the situation and it has even been brought up in a local club meeting as a topic. But the basic information the original poster listed is generally correct. I am interested in knowing who the original poster is (name, call).

What I know about Tom's statements to Jim are only what Tom admitted to me that he said. Tom stated to ME that he told Jim (the employee of the site owner organization) that my repeater was a MARS repeater, closed to public use, old equipment, and the the repeater owner (ME) abandoned it years ago to move out of state and had never been heard from again!!!! When he tells me HIMSELF what he said, there isn't much else to believe. While I was in his office, Tom called Jim & told him that he found out the equipment was active, was not closed, and the the repeater owner was standing in his office. But by then, the damage was apparently well done!

Two weeks later Tom called another ham to relay to me that my equipment had to be out in 4 days so the 147.06 (that he is attempting to buy) could be moved in to replace my existing repeater.

(NOTE - I come home to Sioux City every couple months, have local control ops, and am listed in the Sioux City phone book. My Oregon phone number & amateur license are on the outside of the equipment)

I might add that I have spoken to Jim myself, and that his understanding of the facts on this matter seems to be "dis-located".

No problem, I have nothing to hide. I feel my repeater & my status have been used as a "game piece" in someone else's desires. I'll let other's form their own conclusions.

In trying to get a repeater off the air permanently, I'm not certain that there isn't a coordination element here or not. It may not be an interference issue, but there could be an attempt to get a cancellation of any coordination as one way to get the repeater shut down (and then get another system coordinated in its place). If this isn't currently the case, it could become such, so watch out.

I think he was referring to the fact that most of the food probably came Windbag....read my lips. GW MUST become much more moderate and sensible or face complete gridlock until he's defeated. And you don't think that advisors aren't telling him the same thing? American disdains conservatism-a nation that has always been slightly left of moderate and it's gonna stay that way.

BTW I just read where the Pope tried to convince GW to veto stem cell research. On religious grounds. Tell me, is Catholicism based on trying to keep everyone in the west as illiterate in the 2000s as it did to Europeans from 33AD to the Reformation? Seems that way.

I've told you already, Roger, you aren't allowed to rim Palmer in public like that. If you two want to perform the Nasty Sanchez on each other, get a room fer chrissakes.

Now don't post it again and be damn quick about it.

Chop chop.

Depending on who listens to his windbag self-righteous brand of religion, one could construe this garbage as willful interference on Preacher's part rather than two way Amateur communications. The Preacher is not missed.
Also by your standards, getting on the air and singing the Porkbutt Song is freedom of speech, is it not?

What are you going to do to Rodger other than put him in your killfile?
My-Deja.com doesn't give a crap about their users or complaints.
Go ahead, complain all you want. They dont' care unless you get a lawyer which will cost you $200 to subpoena his ISP or his newsgroup provider.
In some states you can get a restraining order from posting on the internet during this period until a court date, but chances are, I doubt you are $200 worth of pissed yet.

Subject: Re: Raoul Xemblinosky Stripped Bare by Cockroach Roger,
Even...
From: wilhelp@ix.netcom.com (Bill Palmer)
Date: 4 Oct 1997 21:31:13 GMT

This one (below) proves unusually risible because-- as talentless and ignorant a hack as Roger Wemyss (aka "Williams") has proven himself, it must be admitted that Raoul Xemblinosky represents the last person on the net who should be be casting aspersions
on the talents (or lack thereof) of others.

In fact, when one considers all of Xemblinosky's postings (literally many thousands) it is nearly impossible to locate ANY that are well-known!
The only famous threads he shows up on are the ones written by others (often by me) or those cases where Raoul pulls a "creative coup" and perhaps changes one or two words in a famous and original subject line written by someone else
(often me). Yes, when it comes to newsgroup lines, Raoul is a parasitical "borrower" although-- to be fair--not nearly to the disgusting degree of Bloodsucker David Kendrick, the notorious (and most unwelcome!) "spittle-spray man" of alt.genius.bill-palmer.

Paul Simon, the songwriter, once said, "The man ain't got no culture," and--referring now to our pitiful charlatan Raoul--we could add (if you will allow us our quadruple negative) "No, nor no talent, neither."

Sapient (and even not-so-sapient) readers have observed before that of all frequent Usenet posters, it would seem that only Louse-monkey John Hausmann ranks with Raoul Xemblinosky in showing a veritable mania for posting and getting his name around the net while saying nothing original or even memorable.

I have pointed out before that it seems very likely that of all Usenet posters, the term "posting non-writer" could be most fairly applied to both Raoul and the Louse-monkey Hausmann.

How might such a serious allegation be proven? Easy.

Take the total word count in the person's archive. Then count the words actually owned (written) by the person whose name is on the archive. Use a ratio with the reduced fraction representing what the person actually wrote above the figure representing ALL the words in the person's archive. People who show a wide differential are very likely "posting non writers." They rely heavily on "OPW'S" (Other Peoples' Words) for their Usenet article content.

I would be very surprised to find that Xemblinosky or Louse-monkey have written even ten-percent of the words in their respective archives. They both love to get their names around the net, but they lack either the education, talent, guts (or, very likely, all of those things) required for being a real Usenet writer. Cowardly frauds and shitasses like themselves merit the contempt of the entire Usenet community. In fact, they deserve to be tarred and feathered and ridden out of Usenet with our jeers. Especially Raoul Xemblinosky.

Such losers will often post long articles by others, adding a few trite words of their own to show the world how "witty" these "posting non-writers are." They rely almost totally on the words of others. (Cockroach Wemyss is equally bad. He has made his "name" by reposting the words of others since doing that is the only way the talentless Rog [Wemyss] can post an original thought under his own name.)

Ironically, regarding the most famous posting that Raoul Xemblinosky ever made, he can only claim to own a small fraction of it. I refer to his crude "song parody" of

"That's Amore" (which was supposedly about me, although it only hurled vicious insults and did not contain one line that referred to any of my actual posting behavior).

Anyway, all Raoul did was begin the "parody" with a few clumsy stanzas. Then, other vindictive losers joined in with their own pathetic efforts. All loser Raoul now owns is the few stanzas he started with, because the other other "satirists" own the tripe they added. So you see, our talentless unfortunate does not even own the most well-known thing he has ever come up with in Usenet.

In fact, it would not be exaggerating much to say that Xemblinosky embodies the tatterdemalian soul of intellectual and creative impoverishment, yet this shabby fraud continues to inflict his tripe on the Usenet readership. That's criminal.

Raoul loves to typo-pounce because he thinks doing so deflects from the fact that he has no talent. His logic proves very poor. Actually, his typo-pouncing efforts merely remind readers of his inability to handle higher forms of flaming. (I know that right now you must be thinking, "This Xemblinosky sure sounds like an obnoxious shitass." I fully agree with you in those sentiments.)

One memory I have of Xemblinosky relates to the time I posted my "I live in Paris, 1900" in the newsgroup soc.culture.french. Now, my article was no masterpiece. It was not intended to be one. Nonetheless, no one can argue that my post was not original, and many found it well worth reading.

Yet, by coincidence, what turned up on my newsreader, literally next to my own s.c.f article? Lo and behold, an "article" by our famous non-writer, Raoul Xemblinosky! He was blabbering some nonsense about "netcops." I couldn't make head nor tails of his "point," and I strongly suspect no one else could either. His drivel had nothing to do with French culture. But "small details" like effective communication don't generally concern loser Raoul-- what DOES interest him is seeing how many postings he can make in diverse (and mostly irrlevant regarding his "message") newsgroups. Again, the man DOES seem to have a mania for getting his name (such as it is) around. The fact that he earns the contempt of most Usenet readers does not trouble him.

I might add that when I derided Raoul's foolish behavior in soc.culture.french, he launched a vicious attack on the French in order to try and justify his asinine actions. On top of that, he even made a bigger fool of himself by attacking a list of world famous French writers

when it was clear that he had never read ONE of them, in English, French or any other language! If keyboarding, posting shit could be frozen into Popsicles and given to perverts like Roger Wemyss to lick, Raoul Xemblinosky would soon vanish from the net.

[For new readers: Poltroon Raoul Xemblinosky gets prominent mention in my original poem, "Piss Stains
on the Wall of Time" available through Dejanews.
In fact, THAT is one of his many beefs with me.]

With reference to Xemblinosky and Roger Wemyss (aka "Williams"), all this sounds like the pot accusing the kettle of lacking talent...

Yes sir I remember! There were more congenetial liars at hamfests than there were at the model RR train shows.
Where else but a hamfest could you pick up a "100% working" FT-101B for $400.00 and when you got it home you found that the finals were dead all the accessory modules were un-plugged and missing. I do miss hamfests however! It was fun to watch the sideshow parade of cheap-assed dirty-minded smelly old bastards who wore 10 year old clothes and the last time G. Washington in their wallet saw the last sign of daylight was in 1966.

Really now? How about the 14.313 net war which started waaay back in 1978 with the bullshit allegations from KV4FZ, about how the Maritime Nets allegedly handled "business traffic" from wb6mid in Jonestown Guyana?

I dunno if the presidential IQs are directly relative to ham radio...BUT it would be nice to know what the IQs of the ARRL. Inc. staff were, or the ARRL Presidfent, Vice President, Directors, etc. It would also be nice to know what the IQs of the present and past FCC chief commissioners are (were). And I'd like to know the IQs of the so called experts who wrote the present IEEE/ANSI RF radiation safety level specs. Were they smart enough or dumb enough to do as directed by those who funded them?

The truth is that people with IQs over 100 are not usually appreciated by the general public. Advertisements are written for those with the intelectual capability of an average ten year old. Expert engineers and scientists are called "nerds", while our nation's heros are often sportsmen and enterprenuers.

So what else is new? Nixon was pretty smart...until he became a paranoid. There are lots of other factors.

You would think that a man intelligent enough to get elected to public office would satisfy his sex urges by using ethical professional prostitutes instead of leaving himself open to exposure or blackmail by young intern amateurs...but IQ has little to do with morality...or common sense. Indeed those with high IQs are more likely to be self directed and less likely to be obedient to authority. It has long been debated as to who makes the best soldier, policeman or boy scout??? Hmmm...I wonder what Oliver North's IQ is????

Average people generally do not like people whom they conceive as being much smarter than themselves. This is said to be why Adali Stevenson lost a presidential race.

Now maybe we should start a thread as to what the IQ of the average ham is [or should be]. Nah...If you look into the archives that subject has been covered already.

People with high IQs tend to worry about stuff that average people can not even concieve as being a potential problem.

As for me, I am not famous, rich or immoral but do happen to have a high IQ.

Hams need more license classes.

Naturally, you don't have a References header which points to the

In fact, your inclusion of the line

Let's see now, when was it? Two to three years ago (or more?) when ONE group of rednecks in ONE state dragged ONE person to death behind ONE pickup truck. Is there some point at which we are allowed to think, maybe, just maybe, our kids are not in danger of participating in similar unfortunate incidents unless educated "correctly."

violating his terms of agreements. I'm relatively sure you have heard of this individual in the past as he seems to be rather proud of his usenet accomplishments. If you see some of his history. The archives will also display a representation of his method of operation. He is a bully and recruits other users to join him in his endeavors to destroy normally docile and helpful newsgroups. Take a look at alt.rollingstones and you can see what I mean.

The regular users in alt.music.mp3.napster have killfiled him, but there are a lot of new users coming to the group for assistance and these trolls, led by Raoul, have forced these users to drop the newsgroup from their subscriptions, thus missing an opportunity to solve their problems.

require his access to be cut, but it would doing a great service to usenet if it happened."

My standards are not what is important here. Rather, it is the standards of the FCC which is the determining factor.

"Big Al" Abernethy's tape of "The Porkbutt Song" was destroyed during an FCC inspection. KC3AU continues to operate without incident.

Sounds like the FCC has already made their decision on the issue.

This one (below) proves unusually risible because--
as talentless and ignorant a hack as Roger Wemyss (aka "Williams") has proven himself, it must be admitted that Raoul Xemblinosky represents the last person on the net who should be be casting aspersions
on the talents (or lack thereof) of others.

In fact, when one considers all of Xemblinosky's postings (literally many thousands) it is nearly impossible to locate ANY that are well-known!
The only famous threads he shows up on are the

where Raoul pulls a "creative coup" and perhaps changes one or two words in a famous and original subject line written by someone else (often me). Yes, when it comes to newsgroup lines, Raoul is a parasitical "borrower" although--to be fair--not nearly to the disgusting degree of Bloodsucker David Kendrick, the notorious (and most unwelcome!) "spittle-spray man" of alt.genius.bill-palmer.

Paul Simon, the songwriter, once said, "The man ain't got no culture," and--referring now to our pitiful charlatan Raoul--we could add (if you will allow us our quadruple negative) "No, nor no talent, neither."

Sapient (and even not-so-sapient) readers have observed before that of all frequent Usenet posters, it would seem that only Louse-monkey John Hausmann ranks with Raoul Xemblinosky in showing a veritable mania for posting and getting his name around the net while saying nothing original or even memorable.

I have pointed out before that it seems very likely that of all Usenet posters, the term "posting non-writer" could be most fairly applied to both Raoul and the Louse-monkey Hausmann.

How might such a serious allegation be proven? Easy.

Take the total word count in the person's archive. Then count the words actually owned (written) by the person whose name is on the archive. Use a ratio with the reduced fraction representing what the person actually wrote above the figure representing ALL the words in the person's archive. People who show a wide differential are very likely "posting non writers." They rely heavily on "OPW'S" (Other Peoples' Words) for their Usenet article content.

I would be very surprised to find that Xemblinosky or Louse-monkey have written even ten-percent of the words in their respective archives. They both love to get their names around the net, but they lack either the education, talent, guts (or, very likely, all of those things) required for being a real Usenet writer. Cowardly frauds and shitasses like themselves merit the contempt of the entire Usenet community. In fact, they deserve to be tarred and feathered and ridden out of Usenet with our jeers. Especially Raoul Xemblinosky.

Such losers will often post long articles by others, adding a few trite words of their own to show the world how "witty" these "posting non-writers are." They rely almost totally on the words of others. (Cockroach Wemyss is equally bad. He has made his "name" by reposting the words of others since doing that is the only way the talentless Rog [Wemyss] can post an original thought under his own name.)

Ironically, regarding the most famous posting that Raoul Xemblinosky ever made, he can only claim to own a small fraction of it. I refer to his crude "song parody" of "That's Amore" (which was supposedly about me, although it only hurled vicious insults and did not contain one line that referred to any of my actual posting behavior).

Anyway, all Raoul did was begin the "parody" with a few clumsy stanzas. Then, other vindictive losers joined in with their own pathetic efforts. All loser Raoul now owns is the few stanzas he started with, because the other other "satirists" own the tripe they added. So you see, our talentless unfortunate does not even own the most well-known thing he has ever come up with in Usenet.

In fact, it would not be exaggerating much to say that Xemblinosky embodies the tatterdemalian soul of intellectual and creative impoverishment, yet this shabby fraud continues to inflict his tripe on the Usenet readership. That's criminal.

Raoul loves to typo-pounce because he thinks doing so deflects from the fact that he has no talent. His logic proves very poor. Actually, his typo-pouncing efforts merely remind readers of his inability to handle higher forms of flaming. (I know that right now you must be thinking, "This Xemblinosky sure sounds like an obnoxious shitass." I fully agree with you in those sentiments.)

One memory I have of Xemblinosky relates to the time I posted my "I live in Paris, 1900" in the newsgroup soc.culture.french. Now, my article was no masterpiece. It was not intended to be one. Nonetheless, no one can argue that my post was not original, and many found it well worth reading.

Yet, by coincidence, what turned up on my newsreader, literally next to my own s.c.f article? Lo and behold, an "article" by our famous non-writer, Raoul Xemblinosky! He was blabbering some nonsense about "netcops." I couldn't make head nor tails of his "point," and I strongly suspect no one else could either. His drivel had nothing to do with French culture. But "small details" like effective communication don't generally concern loser Raoul-- what DOES interest him is seeing how many postings

he can make in diverse (and mostly irrlevant regarding his "message") newsgroups. Again, the man DOES seem to have a mania for getting his name (such as it is) around. The fact that he earns the contempt of most Usenet readers does not trouble him.

I might add that when I derided Raoul's foolish behavior in soc.culture.french, he launched a vicious attack on the French in order to try and justify his asinine actions. On top of that, he even made a bigger fool of himself by attacking a list of world famous French writers
when it was clear that he had never read ONE of them, in English, French or any other language! If keyboarding, posting shit could be frozen into Popsicles and given to perverts like Roger Wemyss to lick, Raoul Xemblinosky
would soon vanish from the net.

[For new readers: Poltroon Raoul Xemblinosky gets prominent mention in my original poem, "Piss Stains
on the Wall of Time" available through Dejanews.
In fact, THAT is one of his many beefs with me.]

With reference to Xemblinosky and Roger Wemyss (aka "Williams"),
talent...

Well I listened to the link for a while. I think for one thing the clowns that are on that repeater should know that they are on the Internet and can be heard world wide! I must say I have heard worst from some of the hams in my community on 11 meters but I mean to tell you that these three clowns that are on right now make the 11 meter bunch in this area look like saints! I would sujest sending the link to Hollingsworth and let him get busy! For One thing the 2 meter band is one of the opening bands for the hobby. If we want this hobby to get new blood we must keep it clean. These guys that are pretty bad. I think that the owner of the said repeater needs to be aware of the fact that he is responsible for the activity and he needs to clean it up.
That's just my opinion I could be wrong

That explains it very nicely, John. When I first read about this, it just seemed very strange that everyone was so aware of the contents of a conversation. However, if you've since talked to Tom about that conversation, then it all makes a lot more sense.

Anyway, with that, I'll end my participation in this discussion. It really is a local issue that probably doesn't belong on this newsgroup.

One afternoon early this summer Roger headed to the local library to find a book on etiquette. Along the way he stopped and picked up his dearest friend, Charles Schwartzbard who also wanted to find a book on Catholicism. They set off merrily on their way with not a care in the world.
As the dynamic duo were waiting at a red light, a beat up old Thunderbird came speeding up behind them. The driver of the Thunderbird realized he could not stop in time and pumped furiously on the brakes, but the beat up old car was in such bad shape that the brakes failed, causing a collision.
Roger looked at Charles and said, "I'm going to go back there and give him Holy Hell for hitting me. Betcha he doesn't have insurance."
Roger leapt from his mom's car and ran back to the Thunderbird and proceeded to berate the driver of the old heap. The driver could not see Roger very clearly so he pushed out the Quick Release Hefty Bag Window and looked up at Roger to better see and hear what was transpiring.
After Roger was finished flailing his scrawny arms, rolling his buggy eyes and spraying spittle over the damage done to his Mom's car, the driver of the Thunderbird calmly replied, "I know who you are, Roger. I am not going to pay for the damage to your car and you can't make me. Besides, I don't have any insurance and if you don't like it, you can kiss my dick."
Roger returned to his mommy's car, got in and looked at Charles with a grin.
Charles looked at Roger and asked, "Well, what did he say?"
Roger licked his lips and replied, "He wants to settle out of court."

Too bad we cannot boycott Chinese goods, but thanks to Clinton we are now

Thanks to Jimmy Carter and a lack of guts on Clinton's part, the Panama Canal now belongs to them as well.
Meanwhile the Chinese are using OUR monies to build up their military, a military that they openly state will eventually have to "go to war" with the United States....and our people are too stupid to open their eyes to it.

Rather odd, is it not? There is no adulation of Roger Wiseman to be seen here. There is a double dose of disdain, but Roger thrives on that, also. He recalls his mommy singing him to sleep with the old country-western song, "I'll Beat You Like a Red-Headed Step Child."
That lullaby always seemed to "hit" home with Roger....made him feel wanted and gave him a sense of self-worth.
After that he learned how to masturbate and he didn't need his mommy so much as before. Trouble is that he never quite got the hang of living away from his mommy. Those darn apron strings are a terrible thing to cut once a guy gets past forty years of age.

"Below you will find the headers and traceroute information on one Raoul Xemblinosky (bogus name) who has been continually abusing his usenet privileges and attempting to create flame wars by impersonating different users and crossposting to irrelevant newsgroups. He also seems to change his address at every chance he gets possibly violating his terms of agreements. I'm relatively sure you have heard of this individual in the past as he seems to be rather proud of his usenet accomplishments. If you will visit http://iacw.usenet-performance-art.org/ you can see some of his history. The archives will also display
a representation of his method of operation. He is a bully and recruits other users to join him in his endeavors to destroy normally docile and helpful newsgroups. Take a look at alt.rollingstones and you can see what I mean.

The regular users in alt.music.mp3.napster have killfiled
him, but there are a lot of new users coming to the group for assistance and these trolls, led by Raoul, have forced these users to drop the newsgroup from their subscriptions,
thus missing an opportunity to solve their problems.

I don't know if this person has done anything that would

Actually, NBC Corporation, who bought the business off Xoom are discontinuing free web hosting.

I have secured 2 other sites now anyway and all is uploaded and ready.

Thanks for taking the time to comment.

I fail to see any interest to anyone in hacking our web site, we will simply change passwords and carry on, it's not as if it's a business or anything, who cares?

Does'nt sound like much is being done.

FCC Launches Review of LA Area Repeater
NEWINGTON, CT, Mar 2, 2001--The FCC has launched a review into the operation of the W6NUT repeater in the Los Angeles area. The repeater, which has attracted a following of what some observers call "nontraditional" amateur users, also was said to have been radio home of Richard Burton, ex-WB6JAC, sentenced earlier this year to prison for unlicensed operation.

"We've gotten more complaints about that repeater than any other repeater in the country, FCC Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement Riley Hollingsworth said of the W6NUT machine, which operates on 147.435 MHz. "If there's a control operator, we sure haven't seen any evidence of it."

In late February, Hollingsworth wrote the repeater's trustee, Extra licensee Kathryn Tucker, AA6TK, of La Mirada, and two W6NUT users regarding lengthy broadcasts made over the repeater in early February. Hollingsworth told Tucker that the FCC has received complaints that control operators and the repeater licensee "fail to address long periods of jamming by users, broadcasting, music playing as well as a plethora of other violations."

He cited one transmission of more than two hours on the evening of February 1-2 that included music and commentaries on many of the songs. "Part of the broadcast consisted of a user transmitting one-way by phone patch," Hollingsworth wrote. He said a similar lengthy broadcast aired over W6NUT a few evenings later. Both transmissions repeatedly timed out the repeater, Hollingsworth said, and there was no evidence that a control operator was present at any time. Hollingsworth said the two broadcasts "prevented the repeater from being used for legitimate amateur use."

In separate letters to Technician licensees Ted R. Sorensen, III, KC6PQW, of Agoura Hills, and Gregory S. Cook, KC6USO, of Chico, Hollingsworth cited monitoring information alleging that Sorenson actually transmitted both broadcasts. On the first occasion, on February 1-2, Sorenson is said to have acted in concert with Cook, who was hooked in via phone patch. The second similar transmission February 4-5 was said to have featured only Cook, again via phone patch to Sorenson's transmitter, Hollingsworth said.

Citing 308(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, Hollingsworth requested that all three licensees respond to the allegations within 20 days. In addition, Hollingsworth asked Tucker to furnish specific information about the W6NUT repeater system.

Among other things, Hollingsworth asked Tucker to provide any W6NUT coordination documentation and to state any circumstances when the repeater might be "operating in a manner not consistent with the coordination." Hollingsworth also asked Tucker to detail any complaints received regarding the operation of the W6NUT repeater and any action taken to resolve them. In addition, he asked if the licensee or control operators had ever told anyone to not use the repeater and to supply details.

Hollingsworth also requested names, addresses and telephone numbers of W6NUT control operators since January 1, 1998, the times each has been on duty since the first of this year, and any instructions they are provided. He specifically asked who was acting as control operator when the lengthy broadcasts are alleged to have occurred February 1-2 and February 4-5, 2001.

Hollingsworth also asked Tucker to provide details of the repeater control system, equipment used, and transmit and receive sites.

Cook's license is due to expire May 7, 2001. Hollingsworth advised Cook that his renewal application would "not be routinely granted unless these issues are resolved" and that his renewal application could wind up being designated for hearing.

Hi, I'll explain you my problem. My city's police department crypts now her radio communications with a speech inverter system. For example, all sounds over than 1700Hz are reflexted under this sound frequency and opposite for the sounds under this frequency. I want make a little electronic system to decrypt this transmissions. It's for this reason that I need your help to know what kind of electronic piece I need... Thanks. If you may send me a plan or an exact procedure who to do it. Thanks!

Please send me your answer to mheppell@sympatico.ca

Bonjour, je vous expose mon probl�me. La police de ma ville crypte maintenant ses communications radio avec un syst�me d'inversion de la voix. C'est � dire que, par exemple, tous les sons plus aigus que 1700Hz sont invers�s vers le dessous de cette fr�quence de son et le contraire pour les sons plus graves. �a donne un genre de charabia au lieu de la parole normale. Je veux d�crypter ou r�inverser pour pouvoir d�chiffrer ces transmissions. C'est l�gal au Canada seulement, il faut trouver comment les d�coder. C'est pourquoi je fais appel � vous pour trouver quel pi�ce �lectronique peut faire ce travail. Comme �a, je pourrais aller l'acheter et la brancher sur mon balayeur d'onde au lieu d'acheter au magasin un appareil qui fait ce travail et qui co�te plus de 150$ (750 francs). Merci d'avance!

First of all, your post editing makes everything into a lie, as is the preceding tripe. Secondly, I never denied posting through Altopia; I asserted that I did not post what you attributed to me, and I said that it should be self-evident to the reader of your forgery for several obvious reasons.

To explain again, the "headers" you posted prove that beyond doubt, if you know how to read them. You, of course, can't be expected to fathom such things as headers, not even if you study them for years under Usenet Guru Raoul Xemblinosky. That's why you screwed up when you inserted the headers under my name.

Since an edited post is by definition not a real post, all you are going to do is to give Altopia another laugh similar to the one they got when Dimmy O. attempted to social engineer them into revealing this subscriber's identity last year.

It has long been known that both of you are several coconuts short of a palm tree, and the only thing either one of you is good for on Usenet is a laugh now and then.

So don't go and spoil things for me, Raoul, and Upa just as we're starting to enjoy ourselves. Taking it to real life is the ultimate admission that you've lost, and I for one don't want you to run and hide just yet.

P.S. Although I'm flattered that you archive any post having anything to do with me, I felt compelled to remove your (possibly edited) repost in the interests of brevity. Unlike you, I don't repost 150+ lines of "stuff" just to make a few comments.

CERTIFIED MAILï¿½RETURN RECEIPT REQUESTED

Roger L. Wiseman
610 Glen Haven Avenue
Glendale, WV 26038-1302

Subject: Warning Notice: Amateur Radio License: KC8JBO

Dear Mr. Wiseman:

The Commission has monitoring evidence that you have been deliberately and maliciously interfering with the radio operations of other licensed Amateurs on the 14 MHz Amateur band. This interference has occurred at various times in the last several months and includes broadcasting music and other unidentified transmissions. (CHILD MOLESTATION SCREAMS??? WOGER'S FAMOUS JIZZBURPING???? SPEAKING THROUGH HIS FAMOUS BACK ORIFICE????)

The Commission generally relies upon the Amateur Radio Service to be self-policing. Operation of the type described above is contrary to the basis and purpose of Amateur Radio and degrades the service for legitimate users. This serves as a Warning Notice that such operation will not be tolerated.

Additional incidents of operation of the type described above will result in a monetary fine being levied against you and in revocation proceedings before an Administrative Law Judge. (ASSHOLES NEED THIS KIND OF "ASSISTANCE" FROM PROFESSIONALS IN THE COMMUNITY.)

You are requested to contact me at 717-338-2502 to discuss this matter.

Sincerely,

You're the one that brought it up, Raoul KIDDIEFUCKER Xemblinosky.
Maybe you can get that sagging titted hog you married to urinate in

You mean you really want to see Palmer's SPANK of you again, one would

From: wilhelp@ix.netcom.com (Bill Palmer)

This one (below) proves unusually risible because--as talentless and ignorant a hack as Roger Wemyss (aka "Williams") has proven himself, it must be admitted that Raoul Xemblinosky represents the last person on the net who should be be casting aspersions on the talents (or lack thereof) of others.

In fact, when one considers all of Xemblinosky's postings (literally many thousands) it is nearly impossible to locate ANY that are well-known! The only famous threads he shows up on are the ones written by others (often by me) or those cases where Raoul pulls a "creative coup" and perhaps changes one or two words in a famous and original subject line written by someone else (often me). Yes, when it comes to newsgroup lines, Raoul is a parasitical "borrower" although--to be fair--not nearly to the disgusting degree of Bloodsucker David Kendrick, the notorious (and most unwelcome!) "spittle-spray man" of alt.genius.bill-palmer.

Paul Simon, the songwriter, once said, "The man ain't got no culture," and--referring now to our pitiful charlatan Raoul--we could add (if you will allow us our quadruple negative) "No, nor no talent, neither."

Sapient (and even not-so-sapient) readers have observed before that of all frequent Usenet posters, it would seem that only Louse-monkey John Hausmann ranks with Raoul Xemblinosky in showing a veritable mania for posting and getting his name around the net while saying nothing original or even memorable.

I have pointed out before that it seems very likely that of all Usenet posters, the term "posting non-writer" could be most fairly applied to both Raoul and the Louse-monkey Hausmann.

How might such a serious allegation be proven? Easy.

Take the total word count in the person's archive. Then count the words actually owned (written) by the person whose name is on the archive. Use a ratio with the reduced fraction representing what the person actually wrote above the figure representing ALL the words in the person's archive. People who show a wide differential are very likely

"posting non writers." They rely heavily on
"OPW'S" (Other Peoples' Words) for their Usenet article content.

I would be very surprised to find that Xemblinosky or Louse-monkey have written even ten-percent of the words in their respective archives. They both love to get their names around the net, but they lack either the education, talent, guts (or, very likely, all of those things) required for being a real Usenet writer. Cowardly frauds and shitasses like themselves merit the contempt of the entire Usenet community. In fact, they deserve to be tarred and feathered and ridden out of Usenet with our jeers. Especially Raoul Xemblinosky.

Such losers will often post long articles by others, adding a few trite words of their own to show the world how "witty" these "posting non-writers are." They rely almost totally on the words of others. (Cockroach Wemyss is equally bad. He has made his "name" by reposting the words of others since doing that is the only way the talentless Rog [Wemyss] can post an original thought under his own name.)

Ironically, regarding the most famous posting that Raoul Xemblinosky ever made, he can only claim to own a small fraction of it. I refer to his crude "song parody" of "That's Amore" (which was supposedly about me, although it only hurled vicious insults and did not contain one line that referred to any of my actual posting behavior).

Anyway, all Raoul did was begin the "parody" with a few clumsy stanzas. Then, other vindictive losers joined in with their own pathetic efforts. All loser Raoul now owns is the few stanzas he started with, because the other other "satirists" own the tripe they added. So you see, our talentless unfortunate does not even own the most well-known thing he has ever come up with in Usenet.

In fact, it would not be exaggerating much to say that Xemblinosky embodies the tatterdemalian soul of intellectual and creative impoverishment, yet this shabby fraud continues to inflict his tripe on the Usenet readership. That's criminal.

Raoul loves to typo-pounce because he thinks doing so deflects from the fact that he has no talent. His logic proves very poor. Actually, his typo-pouncing efforts merely remind readers of his inability to handle higher forms of flaming. (I know that right now you must be thinking, "This Xemblinosky sure sounds like an obnoxious shitass." I fully agree with you in those sentiments.)

One memory I have of Xemblinosky relates to the time
I posted my "I live in Paris, 1900" in the newsgroup soc.culture.french. Now, my article was no masterpiece.
It was not intended to be one. Nonetheless, no one can argue that my post was not original, and many found it well worth reading.

Yet, by coincidence, what turned up on my newsreader, literally next to my own s.c.f article? Lo and behold,
an "article" by our famous non-writer, Raoul Xemblinosky!
He was blabbering some nonsense about "netcops." I couldn't make head nor tails of his "point," and I strongly suspect no one else could either. His drivel had nothing to do with French culture. But "small details" like effective communication don't generally concern loser Raoul-- what DOES interest him is seeing how many postings
he can make in diverse (and mostly irrlevant regarding his "message") newsgroups. Again, the man DOES seem to have a mania for getting his name (such as it is) around. The fact that he earns the contempt of most Usenet readers does not trouble him.

I might add that when I derided Raoul's foolish behavior
in soc.culture.french, he launched a vicious attack on the French in order to try and justify his asinine actions. On top of that, he even made a bigger fool of himself by attacking a list of world famous French writers
when it was clear that he had never read ONE of them, in English, French or any other language! If keyboarding, posting shit could be frozen into Popsicles and given to perverts like Roger Wemyss to lick, Raoul Xemblinosky
would soon vanish from the net.

[For new readers: Poltroon Raoul Xemblinosky gets prominent mention in my original poem, "Piss Stains
on the Wall of Time" available through Dejanews.
In fact, THAT is one of his many beefs with me.]

With reference to Xemblinosky and Roger Wemyss (aka "Williams"), all this sounds like the pot accusing the kettle of lacking talent...

Correction:
I took my gal to dinner,
We had a wonderful feed.
They had to give my gal the check,
Because I can not read.

Sorry about the typo...I sometimes hit m for n or n for m or both.
I sent DMA for DNA in another post and the guys seemed to understand what I meant.
Why didn't you understand my "wonderful" typo?
Hmmm...To be a ham you need to decode Morse at at least 5 wpm...I'd think you would be able to figure out my typos...which IMHO are fewer than the errors in many CW QSOs.

Anyway I apologize if my wonderful typo has caused you pain.

Ham need more license classes.

When I was in high school only those who took the commercial course had to learn to type. The people who intended to go to college took an academic course that had no time for learning to type. In those days most of the people who took commercial courses were femalse who intended to be secretaries or typing teachers. There wasn't this unisex idea that we have today. Typing was for the girls...and when macho-men had to type in emergencies they did so in a manner that expressed their utter dislike for the qwerty keyboard....

What is the matter with you W6DKN? You posted almost the same message twice...except now you are back on the Lewinsky case. President Clinton took a chance by denying his Lewinsky sexual relationship (B.J.). He thought that Lewinsky would keep her mouth shut and would have gotten her dress cleaned. It was a fairly good risk at the time...because her lawyer was stalling and it lookied like she would not testify against Clinton. She was, after all, a Democrat and a fan of his.
Do you people realize that between the time the story about Lewinsky got out and the last time Monica testified...Monica had control over the president of the USA!
That IMHO is the worst part of the revolting development. Monica could have blackmailed Clinton and maybe she had tried. Clinton was unable to spend as much time with Arafat, who was visiting him at the time Clinton had to confer with his lawyers about the Lewinsky case.
Clinton was smart enough to keep his cool when all about him were losing theirs. He did not tell Monica to lie...He did not harm Monica. Monica was never a missing person. Yep Monica and her dirty dress remained in tact. If Clinton had harmed Monica or even bad mouthed her he would prove that he had a low IQ, but high IQ people are good at separating things that belong (in their minds) to different sets and classes logically. It is easy for such intelligent people to separate a B.J. from "sexual relations" and sleep well.

After all people who have large vocabularies can divide any activity into many different and unique shades...Like the smart hams who can operate 80 meter CW and 2 meter phone and realize that although they are both ham radio there is a difference.... while someone with a lower IQ could only verbalize that our ex-president had been "f...king around" with Miss Lewinsky period.

Enuf sed.

Hams need more license classes.

And that somehow changes something? You seem to be saying that it wasn't Clinton's fault - it was Monica's for not keeping her mouth shut or getting her dress cleaned. Sorry, but that is not where Monica made her mistake. Her mistake was having sex with a married man. Clinton's mistake, other than the lies after the fact, was his choice to have sex with another woman while he was married - sex with a much younger woman that he had power and authority over. And please don't give me this crap that everyone is doing it. I've been married for over twenty years and I'm not doing it. And neither is any other decent human being that truly cares for his or her spouse.

Stop trying to dump all this on Monica. Monica did not have control over the president. Clinton's own lies had power over the president. And Clinton could have ended that power at any time - by simply ending the lies.

> (snip) Clinton was smart enough to keep his > cool when all about him were losing theirs.

How do you know that? For all you know, Clinton could have been running around the White House beating up on Hillary, breaking everything in his path, and threatening to blow up the world. Stop trying to make things up to whitewash his sleazy behavior.

> (snip) It is easy for such intelligent people

BS! It is easy for some people to lie. And it is easy for some people to convince themselves that they can make others to believe those lies. Bill Clinton was not intelligent enough to do either of those well. However, you will never convince me that there was ever a moment in Bill Clinton's life when he thought that a b.j. was somehow different than "sexual relations." Even though Clinton was a very stupid man, he was never that stupid - too stupid to understand what people were asking when asked if he had "sexual relations" with that woman.

How about giving us the details of what she was accused of and the evidence surrounding the case? Without more information, I have no reason in the world to doubt the case or the conviction. Therefore, I have no reason to get at all excited about the situation.

Bullshit. Slick Willy could have, at any time, mustered up enough balls to say "Damn right she gave me a blow job, and a fine one it was, too." A few blue haired old ladies would have fainted, MLK would have prayed for understanding, the rest of the country would have said "Big deal.", and Monica would have been invited to the "Tonight" show. That would have been the end of it.

I know what Mensa is Bobber Poo. I got stupid and latched up with a blonde who has more degrees and boobs than common sense by a long shot, she convinced me to go to a Mensa meeting and take the test at the Ethical Society in Philly. Which is where Jefferson and Franklin plotted the Declaration of Independence and I think also the Constitution.

I took the stupid test and whacked it cold and sat down for the meeting. At the break I told the blonde that the bullshit was over for me, the idiot content was more than I could waste any more time with.
I wuz outta there, "Come with me Honey or take the train home." She caught up with a half block later.

Whatta bunch of pointless useless puffs, I have yet to find anything which indicates that Mensa has accomplished anything beyond bestowing bragging rights nobody else cares about. At least even an Extra Lite

It is relatively easy to do. Simply get an audio mixer hybrid device (pair of coupled transformers). Feed the scrambled audio into one port, and a 1700 MHz carrier into the other. Amplify recovered, descrambled audio at the output port. Many years ago, when these were the cheapest and simplest scrambling means available, we discovered how easy they were to defeat, and moved on to more complex analog "rolling-code" type scramblers. Of course nowdays, most voice encryption is digital, and difficult to decrypt without a very sophistocated computer. But for police work, only privacy, not true security is needed, so DES mode encryption works just fine for 99% of applications.

KC8JizzyBackOrifice,
Still hanging out with little boys, I see...you sick, sexual abuser!!!

Roger, Roger, Roger Wiseman
All the ladies say "That's a small size, Man!"
His feeble brain is taxed beyond compare,
to merely sit, shit, or stare.
He lives in a town where the police cruise,
but nobody dare stay, afraid their anus he will bruise.
He won't bathe until it's been at least a week,
as he spends his time behind the curtain to peek.
It has been said that his head has a slope,
it has also been said that any remedy is no hope.
The time has come to bid you adieu,

Global Monitoring System, ECHELON, has its day. Jam Echelon Day October 21st

THE INTERNET - July 25, 2001 - A large group of individuals in the Global Internet Community have set out to bring attention to the communications monitoring system known as ECHELON.

Two years ago, when this idea was launched, the existence of ECHELON was denied by all of the participating agencies. Now with the recent issuing of the report by the "Temporary Committee on the ECHELON Interception System" its existence and invasive practices are no longer in doubt.

We are urging all persons who utilize any form of global communication to inform their circle of friends regarding ECHELON and its monitoring of all email, telephone and fax communications in Europe. Along with this we are urging the inclusion of as many 'trigger words' within those communications as possible.

To this end, we have established a primary web site at: http://cipherwar.com/echelon and numerous mirror sites around the world to help educate people about ECHELON and what it really means to the Global community at large. (Partial list of site locations below.)

October 21st has been designated "JAM ECHELON DAY" and on that day we are encouraging email messages to be sent out in great numbers, containing as many 'trigger words' as possible. (There is a list of 1700 on the web site.) While the goal of "jamming up" ECHELON is a lofty and likely unattainable one, is it not better to signal displeasure at being monitored than passively allow it to happen? We think so.

Now is a chance for anyone, regardless of computer expertise, to become an instant hacktivist - and all you need is your regular email program and the desire to stand up and count.

After October 21st, we ask global netizens to merely stop censoring themselves for fear of scrutiny. If the bulk of monitored hits becomes too great, the effectiveness will drop to the insignificant. A proverb from Madagascar states; "Cross the river in a crowd and the crocodile won't eat you." Although that may not be completely true, we invite you to join us.

The Jam Echelon site may be found at the following URL's

Since this is on the ham newsgroups, I guess I will ask this here. Would it be illegal to use a speech inverter on the ham bands? Does it fall under encrypted transmissions or those that are not allowed under FCC rules? Just a thought.....

thanks!

Hi dr OMs,

Just to ask you to visit my page at www.on4cay.com and sign the guestbook. As i am a teacher in a secondary school, i give a course in electronics at evenings for interested pupils. It 'made' 3 new ham operators already ! Of course lots of those and other pupils want to see the teacher's website :) I had a very nice guestbook of hams all over the world but it was suspended from geocities with all content of my website (30 megs in total) when transferring to my own URL above. So please make me a new guestbook during these holidays !
On my website you will find lots and lots of info on ham (just added packet, aprs, wacars, ... with a soundcard), movies, pics, ... and lots of downloadable freeware (as there are eg all of the packet programs of SV2AGW, for who i serve as a mirror site).

Thanks in advance and enjoy surfing !

One afternoon early this summer Roger headed to the local library to find a book on etiquette. Along the way he stopped and picked up his dearest friend, Charles Schwartzbard who also wanted to find a book on Catholicism. They set off merrily on their way with not a care in the world.
As the dynamic duo were waiting at a red light, a beat up old Thunderbird came speeding up behind them. The driver of the Thunderbird realized he could not stop in time and pumped furiously on the brakes, but the beat up old car was in such bad shape that the brakes failed, causing a collision.
Roger looked at Charles and said, "I'm going to go back there and give him Holy Hell for hitting me. Betcha he doesn't even have insurance."
Roger leapt from his mom's car and ran back to the Thunderbird and proceeded to berate the driver of the old heap. The driver could not see Roger very clearly so he pushed out the Georgia Quick Release Hefty Bag Window and looked up at Roger to better see and hear what was transpiring.
After Roger was finished flailing his scrawny arms, rolling his buggy eyes and spraying spittle over the damage done to his Mom's car, the driver of the Thunderbird calmly replied, "I know who you are, Roger. I am not going to pay for the damage to your car and you can't make me. Besides, I don't have any insurance and if you don't like it, you can kiss my dick."
Roger returned to his mommy's car, got in and looked at Charles with a grin.
Charles looked at Roger and asked, "Well, what did he say?"
Roger licked his lips and replied, "He wants to settle out of court."

Hi,
I've just found an old SAA5050 character generator in my junk box and I'd like to put it to some use. I've been told that some amateur radio enthusiasts have been using them? Anyone care to send me some info? I've got the datasheet, but I'd like some form of reference design that I can base my own stuff around. Is it as simple as hooking up a 6MHz and a 1MHz clock, hooking an EPROM's data lines up to the 5050 and wiring a 4040 up to the EPROM and the 5050's 1MHz clock? How about power-on-reset and stuff like that?

Thanks.

Jimmy Carter's IQ is not anywhere near that high, unless he was tested on the old style ratio scales that have nothing to do with the way the way we measure IQ today. A 175 on the old scales are like a 135-150 on today's scale where IQ fits a bell curve with a standard deviation of 15.

Nixon's IQ was tested at 143 and JFK tested at 119. (see A QUESTION OF INTELLIGENE by Fortune Editor Dan Seligam)

Clinton's SAT scores were 1351 (see his biography "FIRST IN HIS CLASS)which equates to an IQ of 135 on the OLD SAT

Simple, the 2nd amendment was about every male, if fit, serving. What we have today is a mercenary force.
Especially in the minds of the liberals and the yuppies.
Their basic argument is that those who serve chose to do so therefore they can die to protect the more valuable members of society (liberals and yuppies).

The left has pushed the idea that paying taxes is caring.
Like Scrooge, they feel that it is government's job to care, not theirs.

: N9N has a hard-on for the draft. EVERYTHING ends up being a : reason for the draft.

I believe that best way to fight the gun paranoia in America is to put a gun in the hands of as many males as possible.
Mandatory service will do that.

It will end the willingness of the left to send the military overseas if their sons have to serve (most children of the leftists do not serve and have not since 1975). Likewise the yuppies like the idea that someone else is suppose to die for their worthless asses.

It seems unfair that a handful serve. It is like the rich, educated leftists are not paying their fair share. Then the very people who serve are told by the leftists that they are not as worthy as the elite graduate school leftists.

With respect to how the educated left and the yuppies treat the military, they are assumed to be mercenaries. The educated elite in America expect the cops and the military to die for them.
As if those who serve are somehow inferior.

Stumpjumper <Raoul@Zemblinsky.com> goes up to his father one night and says,
"Dad, can I have the car tonight?"
His father looks at him thoughtfully and says, "Sure, if you give me a

So the Stumpjumper puts his dad's penis in her mouth and almost immediately spits it back out.
"Your penis tastes like shit!" he cries.
"Oh yeah," his father replied, "I forgot I loaned the car to your brother

First off, there were no paid police officers in the USA when the Constitution was ratified and the constitution specifically forbid funding any army for more than two years. Read it. You'll be astounded at how much of what the government currently does is actually illegal. Licenses? They were referred to as "titles of nobility" and are unconstitutional.

And maybe Nope!

It depends what mode of transmission.

On SSB, if you used a speech inverter, you would simply transmit on the 'wrong' sideband (not illegal in the UK), and could easily be resolved.
You would also appear to be about 3kHz off frequency.

On FM, you would, of course, sound inverted.

On AM, you would also sound inverted, but could be resolved by taking the signal as SSB, and tuning to one of the sidebands.

"OUR" race? To the best of my knowledge, there is but one "RACE", the HUMAN "RACE". Any other divisions are meaningless.

I disagree most exhuberantly with Mr. Myrick's politics. However, he has the right to voice these opinions, just as anyone else has the right to refute them. I just wish it could be done in a more adult manner by all concerned. Much of the time, this reminds me of young siblings fighting over a toy.
"I'm gonna TELLLLL!!!!!"
"If you tell I'm gonna slap your face off!"
"If you hit me I'll tell how you got into daddy's aftershave and broke the bottle in the sink!"
"Drop DEAD!"

This is not how adults should act. :(And requesting that someone kill themselves is not appropriate. We can't even rightfully expect that someone we disagree with "shut up", as for the moment, the internet, like the US, is a harbinger of free speech in it's many forms (certain countries that practice active censorship notwithstanding).

By the way, the RIGHT WING is just as bad and just as oppressive as the LEFT WING... I think the two long ago met in the middle around the back of the circle. :P

Actually, at least in the US, you hold the power to petition the court to subpeona any evidence required in a civil, or, more especially, in a criminal case. You do not need to have an attorney do this for you. On the other hand, I think it was Twain (could have been Darrow, though) once said "Anyone who acts as his own lawyer has a fool for a client" Or something to that effect... I'm as guilty as everyone else about bad quotations.. :P

There is no rational basis for your belief. There have been plenty of countries that have had both conscription AND extreme gun control. If your theory held water, this wouldn't be true.

If the U.S. wasn't trying to maintain a global police and meals-on-wheels presence, it could do just fine with a small cadre of regulars backed up by state militias- all volunteers, just like it did prior to WWI. It is this American global presence that you should be trying to end, instead of spending your usenet electrons pushing your Spartan-state conscription idea. Make membership in state militias once again a prestigious position, like membership in the typical small town volunteer fire department is, and you'll accomplish a lot more in the fight against gun control than you ever will pushing your conscript-manned global power system.

No, Brenda Ann, I think that quote is pretty accurate. And Myrick already fits the description of a fool. I just wonder why he's so angry about his father's race so? Why else would he hate blacks with such passion?

As I've already explained, "police officer" was perhaps not the correct phrase to use, but there ware paid law enforcement personnel, using various titles (sheriffs, constables, and so forth), in every major city, and in many small towns, throughout the United States when the 2nd amendment was proposed and ratified.

Second, the constitution does not forbid funding of any army for more than two years - it forbids an appropriation of money for that use for longer then two years (article one, section eight). In other words, it sets a time limit on any single appropriations of money, not a time limit on an army. Once that time limit is up, additional money can be appropriated for that army.

Go back and read your history books again. Licenses of merit (e.g. those earned through work or skill) were not considered "titles of nobility." Only those licenses granted without merit (e.g. those gained through reward or privilege) were referred to as "titles of nobility." A ham license is not a "title of nobility," so a ham license is not unconstitutional.

Outside of Holland, which has some other weird practices like legal pot smoking, killing old folks and an union for the military, most of Europe that has the draft also has very pro gun laws. This especially true for the German speaking countries that are very pro gun. The Germans, the Austrians and the Swiss have as much gun ownership as we do. However, they make everything hard to (fishing licenses and drivers licenses are expensive and hard to earn).

Agreed. There is little pride in serving in the military. For one thing, it is too easy to get in. Needs to be more elite. The elite in society are not willing to do anything that the common man can do. That is the biggest reason behind gun control, that they want to make gun ownership something that only the well educated can do. Voting is down as well, now that the franchise has been opened to the masses.

The thing to remember is that very few now live in the rural portions of America. Most of the folks live either in the cities or in the suburbs. These folks have no one to train them about guns, like their grandfathers had. Much of the life skills that the farm boys had are now mostly forgotten.

I see military service as providing the training that our grandfathers received from their dads. It is really too bad that society has gotten this bad.

On both accounts, true. The militia was the posse, the fire brigade power given to the nobles.

Yes, Scheissman, I am the "kc8GAYbo" entity.

I am also Raoul Xemblinosky.

I am also Steven A. Tunder, N8WGM.

I am also Riley Hollingsworth.

I am also the father who scarred you for life because I wouldn't take you to Disney World when you were six years old.

I am also the beast under the bed, in your closet, in your head.

I am also Jesus, the Devil, and Elvis, who have taken up residence in your cavernous skull and regularly tell you to kill people.

I am every single one of your enemies, both on Usenet and on the air. My name is Legion, for we are many.

Followups set, that I might trouble RRAM as little as possible.

Funny? Being the only dumbass out here that Riley made retest after eons of Malicious Interference? Now THAT is something a guy can be real proud of. It must have been humiliating for Roger to go to the VE session and explain to them that Riley ordered him to retest for his General ticket. What did you do, Roger? Give the VE the letter from Riley explaining why you had to take the test again? Did the other Hams in the group talk about you after you left the test site? Did the VE's pass Riley's letter around to each other and talk about you? Did they all know that you were under FCC orders? Did they all know that you were in hot water with Riley? Were they whispering about you as you took the tests again? You know they were, and maybe some of them were even snickering.
That must have been embarassing for you, because they all knew that you were there because you screwed up.
Funny? Not hardly...ashamed would be more like it.
As you said, What a Dumbass.

First of all, you couldn't find me. All government and drivers license records point to the wrong addres. Second, you have to subpoena my ISP. THis has not been done as I would have been notified as by law. Once again you lie.
Third, there is no rec.radio.shortwave class action lawsuit as there is no rec.radio.shortwave as an entity.
There are a few nigger loving choad swallowing liberals, but they are the minority in this newsgroup.
If rec.radio.shortwave wants to sue me, then it would mean that rec.radio.shortwave is against me.
In reality, you, the liberals are the minority in this newsgroup and we, the conservatives who dislike whoever we choose, are the MAJORITY of this newsgroup.
Also I am getting you ham license taken away and am not leaving. If anything you encourage me to take you down even more.

So, once again, stop talking to me as you are talking to your enemy, the one who will be taking your ass to court and I will use every word you say, against you.
Second, I suggest you be quiet period as you are in legal trouble and the last thing you need to do is mess yourself up even more. I dont think you grasp the concept that you are indeed in legal trouble.
Time to be quiet until this issue is settled, otherwise it demonstrates your inability further to shut your goddamned mouth, which is what this is all about and why your ham license is being taken away and you might serve some jail time as punishement for harassing me and stalking me after I asked you and then told you to stop.

First of FUCKING all, you don't have my address, any addresses which are on record or not my real address to begin with and also you don't have mine to begin with so shut the fuck up nigger lover.

After your threat above, I am taking you seriously.
Thus consider yourself notified to cease and decist all activity and of your harassment and stalking.
You will hear from my lawyers shortly as they subpoena your ISP.
You will appear in a separate trial apart from Rodger as I don't want both issues to clash in a court.
You might be talking out your butt, you might not, but your threat, now that is upholdable.
The only thing I've done is hate niggers and tell Rodger I'm getting his HAM license taken away.
I've made no threats, I've done nothing wrong, but several of you have. If I have to sue every damned one of you I will, my name and my person belongs to me and you have no right to it and you personnaly threatened me with financialy destroying me. You are going to be in a court and be humbled as I won't tolerate this.

Also, as my lawyer has informed me, in the state of Texas, under a threat, be it on an internet newsgroup or e-mail, it is legal to charge all lawyers fees and preparation and court fees to the one who made the threat. I have proof you made the threat therefore you will be getting my bill shortly which you will have to pay at the demand of a court.
Take me serious. If you don't know, you will be at the demand of a judge.

You don't have a lawyer.
If you do, he would tell you that you have no chance as you provolked and antagonized the whole issue.

> Wrong again, stupidfuck. My lawyer will cut yours and you > into cat food.

> You get to die first from your AIDS, DICKSUCKING DARON

First of all, I am not a homosexual, so where you have the idea that I have Aids or fellate other men I don't know. I do know that you will be getting a restraining order against you shortly and you won't even have to appear before a judge. The order will restrict you from harassing me, stalking me, or even mentioning my name or contacting me anywhere in the world, period. It will be delivered to you by certified mail.
You will not be involved in this process as there is no need.
The result of breaking the restraining order will be jail or prison time depending on the severity of the defense. Once more, I suggest you silence your mouth before you bury yourself deeper.

Roger, what is going to be funny is when you do get the court order.
Then you will be on your knees sucking me off in this newsgroup appologizing

Then the laugh will be on you as you are humbled. Until then, talk all you want, it will all come out in the wash BOY.

What LJB really said to Bucky in <tm1qbmchcuo469@corp.supernews.com>:

"Yes, Scheissman, I am the "kc8GAYbo" entity."

We now return you to Roger "the Bucktoothed Choad" Wiseman's scheduled continually abusing his usenet privileges and attempting to create flame wars by impersonating different users and crossposting to irrelevant newsgroups. He also seems to change his address at every chance he gets possibly violating his terms of agreements. I'm relatively sure you have heard of this individual in the past as he seems to be rather proud of his usenet accomplishments. If you will visit http://iacw.usenet-performance-art.org/ you can see some of his history. The archives will also display

a representation of his method of operation. He is a bully and recruits other users to join him in his endeavors to destroy normally docile and helpful newsgroups. Take a look at alt.rollingstones and you can see what I mean.

The regular users in alt.music.mp3.napster have killfiled
him, but there are a lot of new users coming to the group for assistance and these trolls, led by Raoul, have forced these users to drop the newsgroup from their subscriptions,
thus missing an opportunity to solve their problems.

Also the program steps to set non-standard offsets.

By the way, I'm not going to allow you to ruin my weekend so you are hereby on killfile until monday in which I will record all your comments and save them to use as more proof against you and your inability to control your mouth even under legal threat. This will look

You know, you could all end this now by saying your sorry and go pestering someone else. Instead you insist on sitting here dragging my name through the mud. Oh well, its your choice.
Either way, you will stop talking about me and mentioning my name and trying to cause me financial harm.

The regular users in alt.music.mp3.napster have killfiled

these users to drop the newsgroup from their subscriptions,

DX NET. Chris, VK2UW, would like to offer all DX Stations the opportunity to use the Pacific DX Net on 14240 khz from 1100z until 1300z, to build up their contacts and also help others make contact with the DX.

FY, FRENCH GUIANA. Look for F1HAR, F5HRY, F5MZN, F5OIH, F6HLC, FY5FU, and FY5FY to be active as FY5KE for the next CQWW SSB as a Multi/Single entry.

IOTA NEWS..... (IOTA Contest July 28-29th)
AS-120. Team members of the Nicosia Contest Group and friends (Loris/ 5B4FN, George/5B4KH, Marios/5B4WN, Paris/5B4XF and George/ 5B4AGC), will activate the Cyprus Coastal Islands during the IOTA contest. Operation will take place from Agios Georgios (aka Kakoskaliou) island off the north-western tip of Cyprus. The team hopes to have a running and a multiplier station active at the same time using mostly vertical antennas and a 400W linear on the running station. QSL Manager for this expedition will be George, 5B4KH. Callsign will be announced later on, but will most probably begin with the C4 prefix.

AS-135. Members of JSDXC (Jin/BA4TA, Michael/BD5RV and Win/BD4RS) will be signing BI4U from Qingshan Island during the IOTA contest. QSL via BA4RD.

EU-038. The UBA/NOK members will travel to Texel Island to take part in this year's IOTA Contest with the call PA6TEX. They will also activate Texel Island Lighthouse NET 024 (ARLHS) during their stay. Look for them before and during the contest. QSLs go via ON4ALW or UBA Buro, please DO NOT send QSLs via the Dutch QSL bureau.

EU-091. Look for IK7FPX/P as a Multi-Op operation during the IOTA Contest from Grande Island (I.I.A. LE-002). QSL via H.C., bureau or direct (qrz.com). There will be other operators signing homecall/P, and they will be active on 50 Mhz (loc. JN80WG) and on the WARC bands.

EU-092. Jim Martin, MM0BQI, will be active from the Island of Tanera Mor in the Summer Isles from July 27th through August 3rd. The various reference numbers are: Islands of Scotland Award SC10, WAB NB90 and QRA IO78. Activity will be on all bands 80-6m SSB, CW, RTTY and PSK31 and a mixed mode entry in the IOTA contest. Jim states, "Hopefully this year conditions will be better and I am looking forward to working lots of stations who require the Summer Isles for IOTA or IOSA. "Below you will find the headers and traceroute information on one Raoul Xemblinosky (bogus name) who has been continually abusing his usenet privileges and attempting to create flame wars by impersonating different users and crossposting to irrelevant newsgroups. He also seems to change his address at every chance he gets possibly violating his terms of agreements. I'm relatively sure you have heard of this individual in the past as he seems to be rather proud of his usenet accomplishments. If you will visit http://iacw.usenet-performance-art.org/ you can see some of his history. The archives will also display a representation of his method of operation. He is a bully and recruits other users to join him in his endeavors to destroy normally docile and helpful newsgroups. Take a look at alt.rollingstones and you can see what I mean.

The regular users in alt.music.mp3.napster have killfiled him, but there are a lot of new users coming to the group for assistance and these trolls, led by Raoul, have forced these users to drop the newsgroup from their subscriptions, thus missing an opportunity to solve their problems.

I don't know if this person has done anything that would require his access to be cut, but it would doing a great service to usenet if it happened."

Subject: Re: Raoul Xemblinosky Stripped Bare by Cockroach Roger,
Even...
From: wilhelp@ix.netcom.com (Bill Palmer)

This one (below) proves unusually risible because--
as talentless and ignorant a hack as Roger Wemyss (aka "Williams") has proven himself, it must be admitted that Raoul Xemblinosky represents the last person on the net who should be be casting aspersions
on the talents (or lack thereof) of others.

In fact, when one considers all of Xemblinosky's postings (literally many thousands) it is nearly impossible to locate ANY that are well-known!
The only famous threads he shows up on are the
where Raoul pulls a "creative coup" and perhaps changes one or two words in a famous and
original subject line written by someone else
(often me). Yes, when it comes to newsgroup lines, Raoul is a parasitical "borrower" although--
to be fair--not nearly to the disgusting degree of Bloodsucker David Kendrick, the notorious (and most unwelcome!) "spittle-spray man" of alt.genius.bill-palmer.

Paul Simon, the songwriter, once said, "The man
ain't got no culture," and--referring now to our

will allow us our quadruple negative) "No, nor no talent, neither."

Sapient (and even not-so-sapient) readers have observed before that of all frequent Usenet posters, it would seem that only Louse-monkey John Hausmann ranks with Raoul Xemblinosky in showing a veritable mania for posting and getting his name around the net while saying nothing original or even memorable.

I have pointed out before that it seems very likely that of all Usenet posters, the term "posting non-writer" could be most fairly applied to both Raoul and the Louse-monkey Hausmann.

How might such a serious allegation be proven? Easy.

Take the total word count in the person's archive. Then count the words actually owned (written) by the person whose name is on the archive. Use a ratio with the reduced fraction representing what the person actually wrote above the figure representing ALL the words in the person's archive. People who show a wide differential are very likely "posting non writers." They rely heavily on "OPW'S" (Other Peoples' Words) for their Usenet article content.

I would be very surprised to find that Xemblinosky or Louse-monkey have written even ten-percent of the words in their respective archives. They both love to get their names around the net, but they lack either the education, talent, guts (or, very likely, all of those things) required for being a real Usenet writer. Cowardly frauds and shitasses like themselves merit the contempt of the entire Usenet community. In fact, they deserve to be tarred and feathered and ridden out of Usenet with our jeers. Especially Raoul Xemblinosky.

Such losers will often post long articles by others, adding a few trite words of their own to show the world how "witty" these "posting non-writers are." They rely almost totally on the words of others. (Cockroach Wemyss is equally bad. He has made his "name" by reposting the words of others since doing that is the only way the talentless Rog [Wemyss] can post an original thought under his own name.)

Ironically, regarding the most famous posting that Raoul Xemblinosky ever made, he can only claim to own a small fraction of it. I refer to his crude "song parody" of

"That's Amore" (which was supposedly about me, although it only hurled vicious insults and did not contain one line that referred to any of my actual posting behavior).

Anyway, all Raoul did was begin the "parody" with a few clumsy stanzas. Then, other vindictive losers joined in with their own pathetic efforts. All loser Raoul now owns is the few stanzas he started with, because the other other "satirists" own the tripe they added. So you see, our talentless unfortunate does not even own the most well-known thing he has ever come up with in Usenet.

In fact, it would not be exaggerating much to say that Xemblinosky embodies the tatterdemalian soul of intellectual and creative impoverishment, yet this shabby fraud continues to inflict his tripe on the Usenet readership. That's criminal.

Raoul loves to typo-pounce because he thinks doing so deflects from the fact that he has no talent. His logic proves very poor. Actually, his typo-pouncing efforts merely remind readers of his inability to handle higher forms of flaming. (I know that right now you must be thinking, "This Xemblinosky sure sounds like an obnoxious shitass." I fully agree with you in those sentiments.)

One memory I have of Xemblinosky relates to the time I posted my "I live in Paris, 1900" in the newsgroup soc.culture.french. Now, my article was no masterpiece. It was not intended to be one. Nonetheless, no one can argue that my post was not original, and many found it well worth reading.

Yet, by coincidence, what turned up on my newsreader, literally next to my own s.c.f article? Lo and behold, an "article" by our famous non-writer, Raoul Xemblinosky! He was blabbering some nonsense about "netcops." I couldn't make head nor tails of his "point," and I strongly suspect no one else could either. His drivel had nothing to do with French culture. But "small details" like effective communication don't generally concern loser Raoul-- what DOES interest him is seeing how many postings he can make in diverse (and mostly irrlevant regarding his "message") newsgroups. Again, the man DOES seem to have a mania for getting his name (such as it is) around. The fact that he earns the contempt of most Usenet readers does not trouble him.

I might add that when I derided Raoul's foolish behavior in soc.culture.french, he launched a vicious attack on the French in order to try and justify his asinine actions. On top of that, he even made a bigger fool of himself by attacking a list of world famous French writers

when it was clear that he had never read ONE of them, in English, French or any other language! If keyboarding, posting shit could be frozen into Popsicles and given to perverts like Roger Wemyss to lick, Raoul Xemblinosky
would soon vanish from the net.

[For new readers: Poltroon Raoul Xemblinosky gets prominent mention in my original poem, "Piss Stains
on the Wall of Time" available through Dejanews.
In fact, THAT is one of his many beefs with me.]

With reference to Xemblinosky and Roger Wemyss (aka "Williams"), all this sounds like the pot accusing the kettle of lacking talent...

Mr. Myrick,

This is a public forum, and as such, you have no right or legal expectation of anonymity. If someone posts your real name, there is absolutely nothing illegal about it, and absolutely nothing you can do about it. Courts have in fact found in the past decade that what little right to privacy that we have now only applies to our own homes, and for most purposes does not extend to the internet, nor even into our own vehicles. This is our Supreme Court, those faithful harbingers or our Constitutional Rights, that have made these findings. Do you know, Mr. Myrick, that under certain circumstances within the United States of America, that you can actually be imprisoned for life for a crime you MIGHT commit? It's true, and the Supreme Court has found it to be Constitutional. Any attorney that says that you have a right to not have your name known in this or any other public forum is blowing smoke up your ass. Sure, he may take the issue to court, but you will not prevail, and you will end up paying the attorney for his time anyway, plus, in a civil action, the attorney and court fees of the person you sue. I can't say about the possibility of prevailing on any other of your claims, but I can say with certainty on the one of which I have elaborated here.

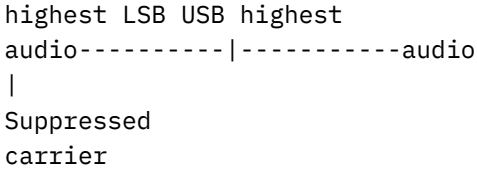
Back in the mid-sixties, CQ magazine ran a couple of articles on "speech inverters". That was a time when you'd often see DSB transmitters or converters (DSB of course being specifically double sideband with a suppressed carrier). Since virtually no one was using a synchronous detector, the common means of receiving DSB was to use an SSB receiver and use it's filter to hack off the unwanted sideband. But older receivers were still common, and their IF filters left a lot to be desired when receiving SSB.

So CQ ran an article (and then a followup showing a way of doing the same thing with a different circuit) that was nothing more than a balanced modulator and an audio oscillator. It inverted the audio, and then you fed that into the DSB transmitter. The result put the lowest audio frequencies at the far points from the suppressed carrier, rather than right at that point. So you didn't need such a sharp IF filter to get rid of the unneeeded sideband.

Normal DSBsc



inverted audio DSBsc:

lowest LSB USB lowest audio----------|-----------audio
|
suppressed

In the first case, the resinserted carrier has to be exactly where the suppressed carrier is or else the two sidebands will translate to audio at different frequencies. Filtering out the unneeded sideband in the receiver allows for some variation of the beat frequency (the same way one can mistune an SSB signal with the only result being an odd sounding voice).

But if your filter isn't really great, as was the case in those old receivers, you couldn't knock out the unneeded sideband right at the carrier point.

With the inverted audio, you'd place the bfo at the "lowest audio" point, and the flaky filter would just let some other signal through (which could be annoying, but could be mentally tuned out unlike the sidebands beating together). Any of the unwanted sideband that did pass through the filter would translate to audio at a higher frequency, where it would be well away from the frequencies of the wanted sideband.

An interesting concept, and one that never got much coverage because the assumption was that you'd use a good SSB receiver to knock out the unwanted sideband.

Just be glad he's not posting your address, social security

Also, although it's off topic, I note that in the new "Planet of the Apes" movie there's supposedly a scene where a male and female ape are engaging in an enthusiastic bit of foreplay. And that there WAS an explicit scene where the human astronaut and the female ape social worker, after growing close through shared struggle and danger, consumate their love. But it was snipped owing to fears of getting an "R" rating.

I assume this is what you mean by your frequent

"Below you will find the headers and traceroute information on one Raoul Xemblinosky (bogus name) who has been continually abusing his usenet privileges and attempting to create flame wars by impersonating different users and crossposting to irrelevant newsgroups. He also seems to change his address at every chance he gets possibly violating his terms of agreements. I'm relatively sure you have heard of this individual in the past as he seems to be rather proud of his usenet accomplishments. If you will visit http://iacw.usenet-performance-art.org/ you can see some of his history. The archives will also display
a representation of his method of operation. He is a bully and recruits other users to join him in his endeavors to destroy normally docile and helpful newsgroups. Take a look at alt.rollingstones and you can see what I mean.

The regular users in alt.music.mp3.napster have killfiled
him, but there are a lot of new users coming to the group for assistance and these trolls, led by Raoul, have forced these users to drop the newsgroup from their subscriptions,
thus missing an opportunity to solve their problems.

I don't know if this person has done anything that would require his access to be cut, but it would doing a great service to usenet if it happened."

Poor Raoul, he had buckteeth, but since they were all rotten he had them pulled out a few years back and replaced by dentures. Now he's in sad shape, no hair, no teeth, no sex..he just spams newsgroups and projects his perverted child molesting lifestyle onto others. his bad back is the result of that spare tire around his gut that makes him look like the Michelin man.

It looks like Hal Turner and "Me" both have something in common: They're both all bark and no bite.
If any legal action is filed, scan a copy of the moving papers and post it here. Then we will see that you are actually someone who carries out what he says, unlike ol' Hal.
Until then, we'll just have to listen to the yipping and yapping...

What you folks need is a heavy dose of long-winded Preacher John setting your morals straight. Preacher John considers himself to be akin to the Second Coming and if you doubt it, just ask him.
John is on a mission from Christ....he has been directly commissioned after Jesus came to John in a dream/hallucination.
Jesus said, "John, I want you to use your broadbanded radio to get on 14.313 and preach my gospel long and often."
John said, "OK, Jesus. I will show the poor masses where to turn for salvation and I will make them listen."
Jesus said, "Thank you, John, but do not run too much power because that Anti-Christ from the FCC is listening and he may send you a warning."
Preacher John replied, OK, Jesus, I will preach your word but I will run the full legal limit power as allowed by that anti-christ from the FCC."
Jesus replied, "Go ye forth and jamb, Brother John."

And The Preacher has been doing just that ever since.

Where have you been? This drivel has been shown to be yet one more Urban Hillary is probably loving every minute of it.

Nothing in this report is true, including the non-existent "institute" that allegedly authored it.

While we are at it, did you hear the one about Hillary being pregnant with Al Sharpton's baby?

Meanwhile, Woger continues to play with the mystic meat while reading the posts from Raoul. To put it in Roger's terms, "Roger slurp-googles from Raoul's choad spoon in an effort to share DNA." They have something in common, as most Gay lovers do. Roger does not want to be run-of-the-mill blood brothers...he wants a commitment. Roger slurp googles lots of DNA. He especially favors the darker part of the DNA spectrum and Raoul donates what he can to keep Woger satisfied.
Raoul has recently added mega doses of high-potency generic vitamins to his diet for Roger's benefit. Roger is reported to be highly in favor of his new, high-vitamin protein regimen.
Woger was recently quoted, "With this high-protein diet it is likely that I will soon be able to wean myself from my mommy's breast feeding curriculum."
Woger has yet to relinquish his stuffed teddy bear.

You egotistical, talentless hack. You are only a legend in your own little single-celled mind.

Subject: Re: Raoul Xemblinosky Stripped Bare by Cockroach Roger,
Even...
From: wilhelp@ix.netcom.com (Bill Palmer)

This one (below) proves unusually risible because--
as talentless and ignorant a hack as Roger Wemyss (aka "Williams") has proven himself, it must be admitted that Raoul Xemblinosky represents the last person on the net who should be be casting aspersions
on the talents (or lack thereof) of others.

In fact, when one considers all of Xemblinosky's postings (literally many thousands) it is nearly impossible to locate ANY that are well-known! The only famous threads he shows up on are the ones written by others (often by me) or those cases where Raoul pulls a "creative coup" and perhaps changes one or two words in a famous and original subject line written by someone else (often me). Yes, when it comes to newsgroup lines, Raoul is a parasitical "borrower" although--to be fair--not nearly to the disgusting degree of Bloodsucker David Kendrick, the notorious (and most unwelcome!) "spittle-spray man" of alt.genius.bill-palmer.

Paul Simon, the songwriter, once said, "The man ain't got no culture," and--referring now to our pitiful charlatan Raoul--we could add (if you will allow us our quadruple negative) "No, nor no talent, neither."

Sapient (and even not-so-sapient) readers have observed before that of all frequent Usenet posters, it would seem that only Louse-monkey John Hausmann ranks with Raoul Xemblinosky in showing a veritable mania for posting and getting his name around the net while saying nothing original or even memorable.

I have pointed out before that it seems very likely that of all Usenet posters, the term "posting non-writer" could be most fairly applied to both Raoul and the Louse-monkey Hausmann.

How might such a serious allegation be proven? Easy.

Take the total word count in the person's archive. Then count the words actually owned (written) by the person whose name is on the archive. Use a ratio with the reduced fraction representing what the person actually wrote above the figure representing ALL the words in the person's archive. People who show a wide differential are very likely "posting non writers." They rely heavily on "OPW'S" (Other Peoples' Words) for their Usenet article content.

I would be very surprised to find that Xemblinosky or Louse-monkey have written even ten-percent of the words in their respective archives. They both love to get their names around the net, but they lack either the education, talent, guts (or, very likely, all of those things) required for being a real Usenet writer. Cowardly frauds and shitasses like themselves merit the contempt of the entire Usenet community. In fact, they deserve to be tarred and feathered and ridden out of Usenet with our jeers. Especially Raoul Xemblinosky.

Such losers will often post long articles by others, adding a few trite words of their own to show the world how "witty" these "posting non-writers are." They rely almost totally on the words of others. (Cockroach Wemyss is equally bad. He has made his "name" by reposting the words of others since doing that is the only way the talentless Rog [Wemyss] can post an original thought under his own name.)

Ironically, regarding the most famous posting that Raoul Xemblinosky ever made, he can only claim to own a small fraction of it. I refer to his crude "song parody" of "That's Amore" (which was supposedly about me, although it only hurled vicious insults and did not contain one line that referred to any of my actual posting behavior).

Anyway, all Raoul did was begin the "parody" with a few clumsy stanzas. Then, other vindictive losers joined in with their own pathetic efforts. All loser Raoul now owns is the few stanzas he started with, because the other other "satirists" own the tripe they added. So you see, our talentless unfortunate does not even own the most well-known thing he has ever come up with in Usenet.

In fact, it would not be exaggerating much to say that Xemblinosky embodies the tatterdemalian soul of intellectual and creative impoverishment, yet this shabby fraud continues to inflict his tripe on the Usenet readership. That's criminal.

Raoul loves to typo-pounce because he thinks doing so deflects from the fact that he has no talent. His logic proves very poor. Actually, his typo-pouncing efforts merely remind readers of his inability to handle higher forms of flaming. (I know that right now you must be thinking, "This Xemblinosky sure sounds like an obnoxious shitass." I fully agree with you in those sentiments.)

One memory I have of Xemblinosky relates to the time I posted my "I live in Paris, 1900" in the newsgroup soc.culture.french. Now, my article was no masterpiece. It was not intended to be one. Nonetheless, no one can argue that my post was not original, and many found it well worth reading.

Yet, by coincidence, what turned up on my newsreader, literally next to my own s.c.f article? Lo and behold,
an "article" by our famous non-writer, Raoul Xemblinosky!
He was blabbering some nonsense about "netcops." I couldn't make head nor tails of his "point," and I strongly suspect
no one else could either. His drivel had nothing to do with French culture. But "small details" like effective communication don't generally concern loser Raoul-- what DOES interest him is seeing how many postings
he can make in diverse (and mostly irrlevant regarding his "message") newsgroups. Again, the man DOES seem to have a mania for getting his name (such as it is) around. The fact that he earns the contempt of most Usenet readers does not trouble him.

I might add that when I derided Raoul's foolish behavior
in soc.culture.french, he launched a vicious attack on the French in order to try and justify his asinine actions. On top of that, he even made a bigger fool of himself by attacking a list of world famous French writers
when it was clear that he had never read ONE of them, in English, French or any other language! If keyboarding, posting shit could be frozen into Popsicles and given to perverts like Roger Wemyss to lick, Raoul Xemblinosky
would soon vanish from the net.

[For new readers: Poltroon Raoul Xemblinosky gets prominent mention in my original poem, "Piss Stains
on the Wall of Time" available through Dejanews.
In fact, THAT is one of his many beefs with me.]

With reference to Xemblinosky and Roger Wemyss (aka "Williams"), all this sounds like the pot accusing the kettle of lacking talent...

Speaking from personal experience and maybe confession is good for the soul, but could this be the known pervert Kevy-wevy Burnett hiding behind his computer?

Hi Kev

So good to hear from you. (on the newsgroup)
I wondered where you were. I haven't heard anything about you since the road trip you took with your brother way back when, August 2000 I think it was. Where was it again....California?
Amazing what a person can learn from such little info....LMAO
I see you've grown into a complete idiot after all these years. Maybe you should actually try getting a life instead of harassing people on a missing kids newsgroup.
Its not nice to do things like this to innocent people in search of their missing kids.
The authorities were pleased to see that you left this email address for them to contact you. Its great what a person can do with so little time on their hands but to catch ass wipes like yourself.
Well, I hope I don't see you again on any newsgroups.

Hi to your brother for me...ha ha ha

It's just 5 or 6 neurotic/psychotic perverts who probably neglected safe RF emission guidelines for too long. Because of a half dozen braindead twits, thousands of normal people are expected to play tweak-the-kill-file with them as they play their stupid game of "let's see if their killfile catches this piece of crap".

It's a variation on the pull-wings-off-flies mentality they probably all shared as 10 year olds.

They are sick and too afraid to hang out in alt.psychiatry where they would possibly find help.

It looks like a resistor. Probably in series with the diode. Remove one lead of the diode from the PCB and check for front to back. It is probably shorted. Replace with any standard silicon diode. I.E. 1 amp or so.

The resistor is probably a low ohm value of about 1 to 10 ohms at 1/4 or 1/2 watt. This is a 'fuse' to protect the diode.

If the 'fuse' worked the diode is OK.

What happened is either you reversed the red and black on the power supply, or the power supply provided excesive voltage and blew things up.

Hopefully that is all it did to the radio. Have fun and check the power supply too.

I was given a full set of the RCA vacuum tube databooks that date back to 1940. I really have no need for them and I am considering selling them. The only problem is I don't know what they are worth.

Does anyone have an idea of their value??

They seem to get $3-8 on ebay individually. I'm sure somebody might be

Bruce,

We are all tired of you and other homosexuals trying to force your homosexual immorality on us. It does not belong here or anywhere else. Your sexual preference, wrong or right, is your choice. You are the one that has to live with that decision, not us.

However, people not accepting homosexuality are not "homophobes". No one "fears" homosexual unless they are infected with the virus. Not accepting homosexuality is simply not accepting immorality.

However, thanks for pointing me to that article. It was very interesting. I am very glad that the court has upheld the Southern Baptists rights and freedoms to not have to accept this immorality.

The 242 is a mobile rig...not an HT.
It uses a RJ45 connector (Looks like an oversized phone plug).
In the manual for the 242 there is a pin-out for the connector. I've used it to wire adapters for various microphones. There is no reason you can't wire up a headset to work with it.

The schematic and PC-board layouts shows NO resistor in that area, let alone in series with diode D19. There are two capacitors in parallel (C130 and C47), which are pictured as elsewhere on the board.

Now ain't that precious? You screwed up again, genius, and the guy had his way after all. Your followup only went to r.r.a.m., so nobody in the other groups (where John's post was seen) ever saw your post at all! In order to undo his redirection, you needed to restore all of the original news groups.

Yes, YOU Stagger Lee:

Idiot-at-Large Village Idiot
Perpetual Moron

You have shown your ignorance, your inability to rationalize a situation, your inability to show even the smallest amount of intelligence.

You speak as a Cyber Cop... Is that what you look at yourself as being? As self-imposed-marshal-of-usenet? Is that your little mission in life? You seek to impose your views on everyone else and to hell with the accepted norms.

Idiot.

Fuck Head.

Loser.

Are you an ignorant fucking WebTV user? You act like it.

First there was AOL'ers, now there is WebTV. It's nice for AOL'ers to finally have someone to pick-on.

You get your No-Code first? Cant do Morse? I bet you don't know the difference between a Zener Diode and a Transistor.

I bet you keep goats in the house for companionship...
Or maybe it's just the smell eminating from your boyfriend's ass that smells like a goat.

I bet you suck the jack-bumps off your boyfriend's balls don't you?

You are a sick, sick person. You need help. You need to seek a professional psycho-therapist to help you in your time of need.

So, Roger. Did you get this thing settled yet?

".....After Roger was finished flailing his scrawny arms, rolling his buggy eyes and spraying spittle over the damage done to his Mom's car, the driver of the Thunderbird calmly replied, "I know who you are, Roger. I am not going to pay for the damage to your car and you can't make me. Besides, I don't have any insurance and if you don't like it, you can kiss my dick."
Roger returned to his mommy's car, got in and looked at Charles with a grin.
Charles looked at Roger and asked, "Well, what did he say?"
Roger licked his lips and replied, "He wants to settle out of court.""

They should have the right to hire whom they want? I don't understand this thread (other than starting this mess up again). There IS a guarantee of seperation of Church and State. PERIOD. The State (and ALL outsiders) should keep their noses out of Church business. Although I do not use guns (I shot trap and skeet years ago), I can see where this mess is leading us. I WILL stand behind the NRA - AND the various churches. If the Constitution of the United States is to be rewritten, it will require a whole lot of votes to add an amendment. I did NOT serve in Vietnam just to watch the courts try and rewrite the Constitution - that is NOT their job! This thread is moot.

Hi Kev

So good to hear from you. (on the newsgroup)
I wondered where you were. I haven't heard anything about you since the road trip you took with your brother way back when, August 2000 I think it was. Where was it again....California?
Amazing what a person can learn from such little info....LMAO
I see you've grown into a complete idiot after all these years. Maybe you should actually try getting a life instead of harassing people on a missing kids newsgroup.
Its not nice to do things like this to innocent people in search of their missing kids.
The authorities were pleased to see that you left this email address for them to contact you. Its great what a person can do with so little time on their hands but to catch ass wipes like yourself.
Well, I hope I don't see you again on any newsgroups.

You are lying here. You have not had cotse killfiled, in fact you probably read every post from cotse just to find something to complain about. KC8JBO received no encouragement from Steve, except that as long as he didn't violate the TOS of cotse, he would be allowed to express himself from there. And you DID complain to cotse, as Steve had mentioned a number of the complaints in various posts, after you admitted making complaints.

I mentioned that some of the stuff KC8JBO wrote was funny, profane, but funny. Maybe I am guilty of encouraging him, but so what?

So you admit being a troll? And it truly is YOUR version of the truth, but certainly not the truth.

You still don't understand do you? Nobody is defending KC8JBO. They defend his ability to remain anonymous by posting through cotse, just as they would defend you to do the same. If you want to post inflammatory statements criticizing members of this group, fine go ahead, but for the most part they will never see them because they know how to use a killfile, and will quickly tire of your obsession with KC8JBO, and your obsession with trying to limit freedom of speech.

You know that is not true, as, according to your own posts, they were complaining about the state of the group 6 years ago, so I would conclude the group is exactly the same now as it was then. Only the names have changed. You can still get great information here, and most regulars are willing to answer intelligent questions with intelligent answers. There is plenty of discussion about "hacking" related materials, some of it interesting, some of it less so.

The internet has changed, the pendulum will never swing back.

It's interesting to see how your are now trying to ingratiate yourself to the regulars in the group now, after some of the things you have said about them in the past.

What is present is a rather large copper pad, which perhaps you mistaken for a resistor mounted on end (on the right of the diode).... The diode has rather large diameter leads to it.

Do you have a TM-741 or 742? I do, and I've seen the inside where this is.

I believe that you misinterpreted what you saw.

1620. Best AM radio??

I'm not sure this is the best newsgroup to post this question so first of all, My apologies if this is considered off-topic.

I'm looking to by a radio for camping. I actually already have one but it sounds somewhat tinny and the batteries don't last long at all. I've heard the CCradio is good but haven't talked with anyone that owns one. What are the best portable, battery powered AM or AM/FM radios for long distance reception, sound quality, AND battery life/consumption? My current Sangean ATS-909 is great for short-wave, but like I said, it sounds tinny and uses a set of batteries in two days plus I generally only listen to AM/FM anyway.

TIA,

Ben

People and countries dont attack their 'friends' with computer worms, viruses and other debilitating attacks. I would not like friends like this. And until the chinese can act civilized, I would wish that our government officials would not call them friends, George bush's comment of "strategic competitor" would be more accurate, with adversarial overtones. It would be a nice gesture toward friendship it the chinese government tracks down the worm perpetrator and subjects the person to the same level of prosecution that it does with socalled spies.

Officials sound alarm over 'Code Red' worm

The worm defaces Web sites with the words "Hacked by Chinese." While it doesn't destroy data, it could be modified to do so. At least two mutations have already been found.

Well, my only point was there is no point. Seperation of Church and State says it all. Doesn't matter if you're liberal or conservative - or reactionary or off the wall either. Whether you or I agree, seperation of Church and State basically says none of us has a voice in it (and we shouldn't). It doesn't matter what we think, the Southern Baptists ARE free to run their religion as they see fit (thank heavens). Yes, I agree with what you are saying - I am simply pointing out that these threads are moot since the churches are (at least so far - I hope the courts don't try and rewrite the Constitution) afforded protection from the State. Frankly, I tend to be liberal on many issues - but, doggone it, there ARE a few things in the Constitution of the United States that CANNOT (and should not) be ignored. (hmmm ... I am also conservative on some issues - but I will admit, I may not have enjoyed Vietnam, but this is EXACTLY why we serve - so ALL of us have a right to speak our minds, even if we disagree).

Thanks again for letting me vent (just a bit :-)

Roger, Roger, Roger Wiseman
All the ladies say "Thats a small size, Man!"
His feeble brain is taxed beyond compare,
to merely sit, shit, or stare.
He lives in a town where the police cruise,
but nobody dare stay, afraid their anus he will bruise.
He wont bathe until its been at least a week,
as he spends his time behind the curtain to peek.
It has been said that his head has a slope,
it has also been said that any remedy is no hope.
The time has come to bid you adieu,

Good idea. Although I'm a heterosexually married male since 1964, I refuse to dislike and discriminate against gays and lesbians because love is love any way one cuts it. In fact this past weekend my wife and I were in Dixie, visiting our daughter, her husband and his family. His mother's profession is psychology and she was telling me about her interpretation of mindsets of patients who are religious fundamentalists and others who are gay. No doubt about it-the gays are far more intelligent and reasonable.
Discrimination just plain sucks and these Baptists are Hoovers.

For Sale: Complete HF antenna system

Antennas for 10, 12, 15, 18, 20, 40, and 80 meters, plus tower and rotator. Just in time for late summer installation before contest season.

The following system is from the estate of Maurice Ricks, NQ3E who recently passed away. His widow, Freda, KD3SG is also an Extra class ham, but is not active on HF, so wants to sell this antenna system.

This is a "package deal", and Freda will not sell the parts separately.

Original manuals and paperwork available for all major components.

Here's the package:

1) Five-Band Mosley TA-33-M-WARC beam antenna.
Covers 10, 12, 15, 17, and 20 meters.
New 1993.

2) Three-Band fan dipole antenna, with center balun.
Covers 20, 40, and 80 meters.
Age unknown, homebrewed.

3) Tower arm support for #2.

4) Universal "40-9" self-supporting aluminum tower.
40-foot tall, 9 sq-ft wind-load capacity.
New 1993.

5) Universal "R-11" rotator platform
New 1993.

6) Hy-Gain/Telex Ham IV HD rotator
New 1993.

7) 2 runs of Belden 8237 heavy duty coax, approx
100-feet each (in PVC conduit)
New 1993.

8) 1 run of Belden 8448 control cable for rotator, approx 100-feet (in PVC conduit)
New 1993.

9) "ONV" tower climbing belt, new in original plastic. Never used.

I have looked at this system, and it seems to me to be in perfect condition. The tower is solid (I climbed part way up, and couldn't shake it at all), the rotator turns crisply with no signs of sluggishness, and the beam is straight and proud with all elements in alignment and none bent at all.

Freda's price for all the above is $850.00. In my estimation, the tower alone is worth that much.

The system is located in a northern suburb of Minneapolis, and it is currently "in the air".

KD3SG is a "senior citizen" and she is unable to climb, so the purchaser will need to dis-assemble and lower the tower as part of the deal. The back yard is free of trees/obstructions, so will be simple job to lower it.

To arrange to see this system, call Freda, KD3SG, at 763-424-6170. Hurry, because this is a prime setup and at this price it will not last past the first knowledgeable ham who looks at it.

FT: Computer gear for HF Rig / equipment

I have the following computer gear available for trade or sale on a "newer" HF rig and equipment. Specifically interested in the below units but open for other suggestions. I am workable, will put money into it if your gear is worth more.

Sounds like you've got that particular passage memorized for some odd reason.

> "If a man lie with another man as he would with a woman, he is anathema."

Ah, using the revisionist Bible, what a surprise.
You only use them, provided they are suitably literal in their interpretation., right?
Don't you mean: "Thou shalt not lie with mankind, as with womankind: it is abomination." Lev. 18:22?

So, "the Abomination" -famous adversary of the Incredible Hulk, is gay too? Did he came out in '93 at San Francisco's Pride day parade like you did?

How much more stupid can you get, hypocrite? Your god probably still loves you, even though you have that mixed blood and homosexual tendencies.

Practice all the sodomy you want too, Trouser Snakegulper. Just do it in the privacy of that delinquent-rented apartment of yours.

Yeah, that's what you said he called you.

SUBJECT: False and Libelous News Release Targeting N4CND, ex-WB2OTK, W2ZB, KK9G, N9PGE, K9BSD, and Several Other Members Of The Amateur Radio Community.

The subject news release was authored by James V. O'Brien III, W4AMP.

W4AMP is a convicted drug felon, who served prison time for multiple felony violations of the Georgia Controlled Substance Act. W4AMP has particularly singled out law enforcement officers and a former employee of the FCC and his family for harassment, stalking, and threats of violence. Additionally, W4AMP has threatened dozens of CB and ham radio operators, both on and off the air, with threats of violence ranging from death, assault, stalking their families, to property damage.

W4AMP's harassment tactics include fraudulent magazine subscriptions, fraudulent COD orders, anonymous defamatory letters to employers and neighbors, fraudulent sales ads, anonymous harassing telephone calls, threats conveyed via e-mail, spamming e-mail accounts, making fraudulent guest book entries, and a variety of other forms of stalking, malicious mischef, and harassment. In one instance, W4AMP and his spouse trespassed on the private property of a nursing home with the intention of intimidating the elderly mother of an amateur radio operator with whom they had perceived differences. W4AMP and his spouse were intercepted by private security officers and fled the scene when advised that county police were en route.

In the late 90s, W4AMP maintained a particularly vicious, sick, and sordid series of web pages which he used to attack various ham radio operators. Legal action by his victims resulted in the removal of his web pages from the internet. W4AMP has posted thousands of spiteful and vindictive postings on Usenet.

A repeated ploy of W4AMP is to assume the role of an innocent victim when subjects of his attacks respond to W4AMP's malicious mischief.

Although much of W4AMP's illegal behavior has been documented and investigated by various law enforcement and regulatory agencies, including dozens of tape recordings sent to the FCC, law enforcement has been slow to act. An exception was when the FCC cited W4AMP for intentional malicious repeated interference and repeated use of obscenity on-the-air.

W4AMP continues to use 3901, 14275, 14313, and other frequencies to air his perceived personal disputes with various ham radio operators, a practice which W4AMP refers to as radio fun.
W4AMP's extreme racist views include inflammatory racial remarks and other extreme racist views against African-Americans, Jews, and Orientals.

The FCC's Riley Hollingsworth has sent very sternly worded letters to several amateur radio operators, warning them that airing of personal disputes and racially offensive remarks could result in the loss of their amateur radio licenses. However, W4AMP apparently continues airing his personal disputes with impunity, as well as obscenity and racially provocative remarks.

Observations of on-the-air illegal behavior by W4AMP should be forwarded with supporting tape recordings to FCC Special Enforcement Officer Riley Hollingsworth at the FCC's Gettysburg office. Hollingsworth's e-mail address is:

I don't often waste people's time with, "Yeah! Me too!!" But when you're right, you're right, so dammit, YEAH, ME TOO!!! One of my best friends in the whole world is gay. I've known him for almost 20 years, and he's one of the most excellent human beings I've ever met. Sometimes almost makes me wish I was gay. (Hey! I said ALMOST!! <grin>) When you compare him to most of the "Christians" I've met, I'll take gay over Christian any day.

It is UN-CHRISTIAN and UN-AMERICAN to discriminate. Now isn't that easy to understand? For further clarification, think about these words:
1. DIGNITY OF EACH MAN
2. LIFE, LIBERTY and the PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS.
The framework of this nation GUARANTEES those words and what you have written contradicts everything America stands for. Now go to church and pray for forgiveness or tip a priest to give it to you.

On the contrary, it is VERY Christian and American to discriminate. Discrimination against sin is, and always has been the essence of Christianity. If a Christian sect believes certain activities are sinful then their history demands they excommunicate or even murder those who sin. Have we forgotten the Inquisition and the Salem Witches? You or I may not approve but discrimination is a historic hallmark of Christianity.

Second, discrimination is even condoned by our Constitution. Again, you and I may wish it were otherwise but the Constitution permitted the continued import of slaves until 1808 and look at the way Mormons were and some still are treated. Are laws against polygamy, public nudity, sex on TV, et al "Hetrophobic"?

If the Catholic Church can prohibit all sexuality among its priests and nuns then the Baptists are well within their rights to prohibit homosexuality among its members. If you don't like it do as I do - don't go to church.

Can you call that "Christian" if Christ didn't teach it and would not have done it Himself? Seems to me, the Crusades and such were the work of the Devil.

The Southern Baptists also prohibit consumption of alcohol. Again, I follow the teachings of Christ. Why did He turn water into wine if he didn't want anybody to drink it? :-)

I may seem to be saying that to you bercause you don't fully understand what I am saying. I am not talking about morality here. I am talking about presidential ledership. If we judged the relative morality of our presidents and not their IQs only Jimmy Carter would come out on top of Rosalind because he admitted that he had an internal lust for women in a "Playboy" interview.
Most of the rest of the presidents cheated.

That may be true for your standards, but it may not be true for someone elses.
I think that people who get divorces are not as moral as I am because I have been married and loyal to the same woman for 41 years. I don't claim to be a moralist...I just realize my financial limitations.

I am not dumping on Monica...although she knew what she was doing. I think that the press and the cable TV networks had a lot to do with telling everyone what was happening...and Starr was also keeping the pressure on to air Clinton's private trists. Other presidents...even the heroic JFK... would have had to lie if concvfronted with the same media and prosecuter.

We knew that because if he went ballistic during that time we would have seen his every move on TV. Look what happened to Condit recently. His reaction to a photographer shows that he is nearing the limit of his coolness.

Sexual relations can be the cause of pregnancy...A B.J. can not!

I am looking at the biological difference not the moral difference, the romantic difference....It would be different if Monica's panties were stained by the DNA...It was higher up on the dress. {Monica didn't swallow).

If you troubleshoot a radio you must start by eliminating as many possible causes as possible. Fooling around with the opposite sex might be trouble for anyone but intelligent people eliminate the biggest risks when possible.
IMHO taking the risk of geting somebody pregnant is a greater show of ignorance than any lying about a B.J.
Hmmm...Maybe to be doubly sure you should fool around only with clean interns whose fathers are doctors who give them birth control pills. Heck if they have a baby after a B.J. you can name it Houdini.

Hi Hans.
I still think that Monica had control over Clinton and may have used it. Sex can work better than money to get politicians to do the bidding of those who may sponsor you.

As for the rest of your above statement. Isn't that exactly what happened?
Monica was invited to lots of shows but she refused to go to most of them.

Unfortunately it has not been the end of it...because people still refer to it.
It may take forty years for them to forget and by that time the White House may be accepted as our national brothal by the moralist cultures of the future.

I'm not saying that Bush would do what Clinton did but if he did IMHO he would be too dumb to think of lying about it. After all if you don't lie about some private stuff it makes it look like you are not ashamed to tell about it. If you lie it makes smart people understand that you are only lying to protect your human right to privacy.

I don't need to use a spell checker. Smart people like you can recognize typos that a spell checker might not be able to detect....besides my errors might make you read my sentences more carefully so as to understand the concepts that I am attempting to explain. Smarter people than me use editors and proof readers to correct their many mistakes. We don't have that sort of professional editing in NGs. We thus must be a bit more tolerant of spelling and typos here and realize that most of the stuff we read here was written in a tme that was limited by stopping for water, food, sleep or answering to the XYL. I'd rather spend time writting a long message than devoting time to spell checking. Concepts are learned by thinking. Spelling and grammar are learned by rote.

I might be wrong but the above story sounds like BS. This is because when Mensa proctors IQ tests, you do not get the results until several weeks later. This is unlike Ham tests where you know that you passed or failed on the day that you take the tests. Mensa tests are not given at meetings...even in Philadelphia.

I'm not exactly bragging about my IQ. I'm complaining. I am the first to admit that it pays to be ignorant and most people don't like wise guys. How many managers or bosses want to hire somebody who is smarter than they are? If they need a brilliant guy they hire one who works for less money in Japan, China or India and can't ever get a chance to become the boss or replace them. There need be no high IQ at HQ.

BTW all blondes are not dumb. Some act that way because they are smart actresses. If Marilyn Monroe was stupid she would probably be alive today.

I can believe that Carter has a high IQ. Although he was trained as a navy officer and specialized in nuclear warfare, he would not make the errors that Bush is making and he recently said so. No anti-missile development can make us or the Russians safe from third world terrorists and the money that we or the Russdians spend to escalate any anti-missile "defense" program can put us both into greater national debts. Carter is a good diplomat and has shown his respect for Bush...but he is smart enough to be a man of peace and honest enough to speak up against ancient warfare methods that our modern military industrial lobbies may be pushing. Technology has made many warfare concepts of the past obsolete but some technologists are unwilling to speak up if doing so elimates their jobs. Only humanists seem to care about killing innocent civilians by using remote warfare methods or eliminating defense programs instead of spending our taxes on more worthy needs.

Yep...Carter is a man with good common sense even if you may not want to believe he has a high IQ. He is also a poet. Have you read his poetry???

Hams need more license classes.

Hi Kev

So good to hear from you. (on the newsgroup)
I wondered where you were. I haven't heard anything about you since the road trip you took with your brother way back when, August 2000 I think it was. Where was it again....California?
Amazing what a person can learn from such little info....LMAO
I see you've grown into a complete idiot after all these years. Maybe you should actually try getting a life instead of harassing people on a missing kids newsgroup.
Its not nice to do things like this to innocent people in search of their missing kids.
The authorities were pleased to see that you left this email address for them to contact you. Its great what a person can do with so little time on their hands but to catch ass wipes like yourself.
Well, I hope I don't see you again on any newsgroups.

FBI technology raises privacy issues
By Richard Willing USA TODAY

An alleged bookmaker with organized crime ties is challenging the FBI's use of a computer bugging device that allowed agents to break into secure files the government says contained his gambling records.

Federal Judge Nicholas Politan of Newark, N.J., heard arguments Monday on the motion by alleged bookmaker Nicodemo Scarfo Jr., 36, to suppress information gathered from a surveillance device called a ''key logger system'' that FBI agents placed on his computer in 1999.

The device, which keeps track of keystrokes as they are made on a computer terminal's keyboard, allowed the FBI to get the password to files that Scarfo had protected with a sophisticated scrambling program.

Politan asked lawyers for the U.S. government and Scarfo to give him more information about the process. The judge did not say when he would rule.

Privacy watchdogs nationwide have cast the case as the latest example of how technology is threatening privacy rights. The case is the first known example of the government's use of keystroke monitoring, a process that one advocate called ''extremely troubling.''

''When you're talking about gathering up everything some person has typed, every stroke, you're getting very close to the kind of general search that the Constitution doesn't allow,'' says David Sobel, counsel for the Electronic Privacy Information Center, a privacy advocacy group in Washington. ''It's as if the government had a warrant to seize one book in your house, but was also allowed to haul out everything that's in there.''

Papers filed in the case and posted on the center's Web site tell this story:

In January 1999, FBI agents raided a business run by Scarfo in Belleville, N.J., and used a search warrant to justify copying the contents of his computer. But agents were unable to open one computer file, believed to contain bookmaking records. The scrambling program protected the file.

A U.S. magistrate authorized a second search warrant to enable agents to learn the password to the protected program by monitoring Scarfo's keystrokes.

Keyboard bugs can be software that is loaded onto a computer, or attachments that can be placed on the computer-keyboard link or on the keyboard itself. The FBI did not specify what type was used.

Scarfo's father, Nicodemo ''Little Nicky'' Scarfo, is serving a life sentence for running Philadelphia's organized crime family.

The younger Scarfo was suspected of using the business as a front for a bookmaking and loan-sharking operation.

Information from the computer files decoded by the FBI helped lead authorities to charge Scarfo and another New Jersey man, Frank Paolercio, 32, with gambling and extortion in June 2000.

Scarfo's lawyers say the government should have been required to seek a court-ordered wiretap rather than a search warrant. Wiretap orders are harder to get, limit surveillance to specific areas and prevent broad intelligence gathering.

In seeking the order to plant the bug, federal prosecutor Ronald Wigler said U.S. wiretap law did not apply because ''no wire, oral or electronic communications (would be) captured.''

Keystroke monitoring was developed in the 1990s, and privacy experts say U.S. law does not appear to cover the new technology. In 1999, the Clinton administration failed to get Congress to pass a law authorizing the type of surveillance at issue in the Scarfo case.

Scarfo was known for his interests in computing and software. In the 1980s, while prosecutors pursued his father, he worked for a software company in Florida.

http://www.usatoday.com/usatonline/20010731/3518716s.htm

Much of this technology has been around since the mid '80s. We have been using radios that receive what comes off your PC monitor for years. It is a very simple technique.

Poor thing, Little English-impaired Pee Wee, you are projecting your OWN gerbil fetishes onto others. This is called transference. And it stems from your state of denial. But you're so economically-repressed that you can't afford or haven't been able to steal a keyboard with a comma key. I bet you do. Since your were passed from foster home to foster home, from abusive foster father to abusive foster father, it's no wonder you have such perversions constantly on your little brain stem. And let's not forget to mention how you have systemic lupus erythmatosus.
Is that why you have a domestic assult charge filed against you by your own crack-whore mother?

That's not surprising. I bet you did the same thing for your foster father. After all, where else could an ex-prison-inmate get such a willing BITCH like you out of the joint?

It's a matter of semantics. On the one hand we have the man, Yeshuah, who the Romans called Jesus but who was never referred as "Christ"; and on the other we have the Christian Church, founded by Saul (Paul) who never met nor even saw Yeshuah - the man Yeshua's friends tried to stone for heresy - yet who claimed to speak for him. Work of the devil? Could be ..:o) To me "Christian" refers to Paul's church, not necessarily to the man we call Jesus.

Food for thot. In the original text a group of god-like beings (Elohim) created everything including Adam and Lillith as equals. Later, the Elohim we call God created Eden and invited them in but Lillith refused. God forbid Adam and Eve both the knowledge of good and evil and eternal life. Another Elohim (Satan) convinced them to "steal" the former forcing God to evict them, not as punishment but for fear that they'd also "steal" eternal life and thus "become like us (Elohim)". That raises two questions: what happened to Lillith and which Elohim is our benefactor? I obviously don't know. If I did, I'd be a rich televangilist playing in my fabulous hamshack vs hanging out here on reecy.radio...policy ... right?

Enjoy!

Since Jesus was predestined to be crucified, seems Judas, Pilot, and the Romans were simply doing God's will. If Pilot had decided not to crucify Jesus who then died of old age, what would my Southern Baptist preacher be preaching about now? If God knows exactly what is going to happen every second until the end of time, is it possible for anything else to happen? If not, everything is predestined and we are simply puppets in God's puppet show.

There is an extreme contradiction between an omniscient, omnipotent God and man's free will. My preacher says, "God knows what choices you are going to make using your free will even before you do."

Have you read Zecharia Sitchin's books, the latest of which is "The Cosmic Code"? The "Adam" was the name for the new race of genetically engineered beings. The first ones were domesticated hybrids and sterile (like a mule). Subsequent trials resulted in beings capable of becoming self sufficient and reproducing themselves. Leaving Eden was leaving the Elohim providers, like returning domesticated wolves to the wild. Incidentally, Elohim is plural which can be inferred from the Bible itself.

Some of our ancestors got a double dose of Elohim genetics and were know as the Nefilim, the offspring of earth women and the "sons of God". (Genesis 6:2) All this is covered in a Sumerian text called "Atra Hasis" which predates The Bible. Lillith (Lullu - mixed one) was the first generation sterile hybrid(s).
Eve was the later fertile one(s). Nachash, the "serpent", can also be translated, "He who knows/possesses secrets", and was really Enki, the genetic engineer and son of Anu, the leader of the Elohim. Enki (Nachash) got into trouble for performing the second genetic manipulation without his father's knowledge or consent. It's all there in the Sumerian clay tablets written long before the Bible.

Help!! 99 Jeep Cherokee Sport
Hi and thanks for reading this. I own a 1999 Jeep Cherokee sport. When I operate my Icom 706 Mark IIG on the low bands (40 & 75 meters) and the vehicle is running I have a constant S-8 noise level. I have unhooked the dc power cord from the radio and ran it off a battery and the noise was still there. I pulled the antenna off and it went away, which teles me the noise is being radiated. I suspect the fuel pump at this time, but if it is the fuel pump what would the fix be ? I was hoping another Jeep owner might have some suggestions or confirmed this problem on another vehicle.

Their leaders had to be married to Jesus and only Jesus yet isn't something so absurd akin to homosexuality? And did you know that the Mormons swear he was in America too? Talk about screwballs. Now about Baptists having the right to ban homosexuality among its members. Perhaps but keep in mind that these Baptists are the bums in Born Again clothing trying to subvert our Constitution while "Jesusizing" the USA. If they would keep to themselves then let them practice exclusion but as long as they are trying to take over the country, to hell with them. They are ugly and demeaning beyond belief and DANGEROUS too. They are no better than the mobs in Salem who burned innocents at the stake for being witches, no less, therefore I hope half their congregations turn gay. And keep in mind that one will never find in a single Jewish temple anywhere in this world any congregation that would even remotely turn away or publicly admonish or embarrass a homosexual and lesbian. Why not? Because Jews are insistent upon respecting the dignity and rights of all men which is hell of lot more than I can say about Baptists. And something else. WE MIND OUR OWN BUSINESS. Baptists ought to try it instead of meddling everywhere.>>>>>>>

The water into wine shtick was copied from the OT tale about Moses showing Pharoh how Moses, through Yahweh, had the power to perform the type of miracles to scare Pharoh into letting the Hebrews go to then trek through the desert for 40 years eating matzohs to become so constipated they wished they never left in the first place. I can't eat 4 matzohs without getting clogged no less than how many daily for 40 years? You should understand that the Greeks, who wrote the NT, conveniently decided to place Christian holidays on top of Hebrew ones to supplant the latter. And the idea of Jesus's miracles were offshoots of those performed by Hebrew patriarchs in the OT. Now they have Viagra to raise things from the dead.

"George Arsics" <w2zb@yahoo.com> whined in message news:20010801194059.63548.qmail@web20209.mail.yahoo.com...

For Immediate Release:

Twice-fired FCC employee wanted by Federal Communications Commission for violations of Part 97. George F. Arsics, Jr., ex K1QKJ, AB4ZV, and currently W2ZB, is wanted by the FCC for multiple repeat violations of Part 97 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. As you will recall, this is the ex-Powder Springs FCC employee who was caught by his co-workers jamming KV4FZ on 14.313 in a drunken stupor, and promptly fired. Since that time, Arsics has been directly involved with the jamming, stalking, and harassment of several amateurs through a group known as the "Goodfellows". Other accomplices of Arsics in this activity have been N4CND, WB2OTK (call revoked), N4XCV (call revoked), KA9BSD, KK9G, and N9PGE. Arsics lost his home at 2571 Bethany Lane in a last minute sale to avoid foreclosure earlier this year. Thus, his FCC ULS data is fraudalent. Arsics has done this in the past, once listing the retirement home where his father passed on his 610. This enables him to freely jam other amateurs on HF with no fear of revocation.

According to part 97, and we quote,
" ⁄97.23 Mailing address.
Each license grant must show the grantee's correct name and mailing address. The mailing address must be in an area where the amateur service is regulated by the FCC and where the grantee can receive mail delivery by the United States Postal Service. Revocation of the station license or suspension of the operator license may result when correspondence from the FCC is returned as undeliverable because the grantee failed to provide the correct mailing address."

If you know the actual physical location of the station owned by George Arsics, Jr. used to jam and stalk other hams, please report this information to your local FCC Field Office or contact Riley Hollingsworth, Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement at rholling@FCC.gov.

James,

FYI, no where in the Constitution does it say "separation of Church and State". totally fabricated by a misguided Supreme Court.

The evidence is this. A person's rectum was meant to get rid of human waste. It was not meant for some other perverted man's penis to be placed there. It is for outgoing, not incoming. That is a fact, not a belief.

Felon Drivel Snipped

Keep it up buddy, and I will contact the courthouse.If you want to stalk me behind a fake 610, fine. If you want to shoot paint balls at my house at midnight like a pussy and run like hell, that is fine too.If you want to jam 14.300 with tape recordings of my melodious voice, that is fine too. But if your cowardly hiding self violates that court order again, I'll have you sent off. Grow up, jerk.

Sent off to where? On whose authority? Yours?
And who in the courthouse will listen to you, dumbo? You dare not set foot in there because you still owe money to a couple of attorneys for your other blunders and you know they have black-listed you. Word got around that you threatened one of your attorneys and also threatened his family during a phone call to his home. Sorry, bum, but NO attorney is going to represent you. Your threats are pure bunk and bluff. Empty air. Bluster. Lies. Bull. Hot Air.
What you skirt, dumbo, is that the Court Order you refer to was instigated by a person YOU were stalking and threatening...NOT the other way around. This other person did not park in front of YOUR house and take photos, did not call YOU in the middle of the night and hang up, did not send YOU bogus magazine subscriptions, and did not attack other Ham operators while they were on the air.
What you fail to grasp, oh dumbo, is that everybody out here knows what kind of sick person you are and you have not come to terms with it yet. You are famous.....yes, you are! You are very famous. In fact, when your callsign is mentioned the guys mumble words like, "sick", "back-stabber", "liar", and more. Heck, dumbo...even the guys on 40M are talking about you and what they say is not complimentary.
To be up front with you dumbo....you are being laughed at by a lot of people...lots of people know all your dirty little tricks and look at you with pity. You are a sad, angry, misfit of an immature little boy.
Now go chug a six-pack and play tag with the CB'ers. Maybe if you would pay your bills and stop being such a jerk you would not have to worry about having bricks tossed through your car windows and paint balls being launched at your hovel. Of course you are such an inbred liar that nobody can believe you about the "drive-by" and nobody knows if it even actually happened. Did you tell the cops that you were under attack by the Arabs because of your heroic days as a SEAL? Did you tell the cops that you are qualified to operate weapons systems from rifles to SAM'S? Gee...how is it that Navy Reserve personnel can do all this? Being a Felon and all......

You can learn a lot from a dummy.....

I bought one of these units from another person. I have a few questions/problems.

The volume is LOUD all the time and can't be turned down. Any fix to this???

The channel knob is very sensitive to the touch. Most of the time when you turn it left or right, it makes the channel (or frequency) go down.....

Also, the keypad microphone.....
What are the P, A, B, C, D buttons used for???

Are you supposed to be able to access a channel and/or program frequencies by punching in the frequency (using the microphone keypad) opposed to using the tuning dial???

Thanks for any help

We do not want a professional army, or police force.
What is needed is for all to serve and protect their

Hi!

I'm a proud owner of a Cushcraft R8 and I'm very happy with it. I would like to have a super-duper yagi, of course - but Sweden is a very "antenna-restricted" country so this is what I can put up.

I've started noticing rectangular boxes with antennas on them attached to the arm of residential street light poles. The boxes are rectangular and are usually mounted on the arm between the light and the pole. The box has an antenna coming out of it with two whip-wound inductors giving the impression that the antenna may resonate on three bands. These radio boxes tend to show up a few blocks apart from each other.

Anybody know what these are for? Wireless Internet, earth-based repeaters for Satellite Radio, PCS repeaters?

Thanks, Michael N9BDF

I asked the same question about three months ago, and the consensus was that they are either wireless internet or very low powered cellular repeaters. One guy even posted a web page from a wireless internet company with a picture of a unit that looked very much like what I was seeing around here. However, I'm not totally convinced since we don't have wireless cable in this small town, nor do we have a very impressive cellular system.

Do you have a radio? Are you sitting in front of a computer? Do you, like so many others, have that computer attached to your radio (for packet or whatever)? Then a message about computer communications monitoring sounds fairly relevant to me.

What isn't relevant is all the crossposted newsgroups (which is why this will be my only response to this message outside of r.r.a.m).

The units you are describing are most likely units that collect meter readings (electrical, water, etc) and then restransmit them to a central location. I worked for a company that produced such devices. They typically operate in the 900 Mhz band and use spread spectrum. Such systems eliminate the need for a meter reader. They can also be used to monitor power usage.

The activity will be at Furong Island (37 20'E,119 48'N) which belongs to Shandong Province Northwest Group of the IOTA program. Their operations will be continued until the local morning of August 13th. Activity will be on SSB, CW, RTTY and SSTV, using the normal IOTA frequencies from 40 meters to 6 meters. Their callsign sign will be BI4F. The team members consist of BA1AJ, BA1DU, BA1FB, BA1KA, BA1MK, BA1MT, BA1RB, BA1TU, BD1CC, BD1CL, BD1CU, BA4KR, BA4RD, BA4TA, BD4RS, BD5RV and others. They will be operating on the Amateur Satellites, mainly AO-27 during the daylight passes only, and UO-14 on all daily passes. For IOTA, this is a very very rare island. LIGHTHOUSE ACTIVITY .....
PRIZES AND AWARDS FOR THE NATIONAL LIGHTHOUSE - LIGHTSHIP WEEKEND, AUGUST 3-5, 2001. In honor of the USA national Lighthouse Weekend, "EVERY" participant who submits an NLLW log showing valid contacts with at least one USA lighthouse OR one ARLHS member will receive a "FREE" Harbour Lights collectible lighthouse miniature prize. (See the Harbour Lights web site at: http://www.harbourlights.com) The Harbour Lights company, makers of miniature lighthouse collectibles and a sponsor of the ARLHS, has donated one lighthouse miniature for every NLLW participant. These exquisitely detailed models are among the most valued by collectors. All you have to do is participate in the NLLW event and submit 1 USD along with your valid log to the ARLHS secretary, Lee Graves, WA7OBH, 4341 SE Satinleaf Place, Stuart, FL 34997. All logs must be postmarked by August 31, 2001, and must show the ARLHS lighthouse number (see page 10 of the web site: http://www.arlhs.com) or the member number for at least one contact. Be sure to include your name and address. Logs submitted that do not meet all the requirements and guidelines are not eligible for this prize.

The Amateur Radio Lighthouse Society makes the following Public announcement: "Through a lot of hard work and dedication by some ham radio operators, Thomas Point Light in the Chesapeake Bay (ARLHS USA-845) will be activated by two ham groups under two call signs for the ARLHS, NLLW and ILLW events, August 4-5th and August 18-19th. More important, this is the FIRST time the Coast Guard has granted permission for hams (or members of the general public for that matter) to board this automated and rather isolated lighthouse. We owe a debt of gratitude to the US Coast Guard for their interest in and support of this project. It is a tribute to the professionalism and expertise of the ham operators that the Coast Guard has placed enough trust to allow our boarding of this previously "off-limits" beacon. So significant is this event that Baltimore news-papers and TV are planning coverage, and there will be a live broadcast from the light over radio station WBCQ, 7415 MHz, at 7 PM eastern time on Saturday night, Aug 4th. The stations will operate from both the light and Thomas Point Park. Look for special event station W3T, which, through the efforts of Reg, W3REG, and his crew, will concentrate on CW and some SSB. Reg will also be giving out ARLHS member #329, as well as the ARLHS Thomas Point number. Then, if you are an old fan of AM radio, look for K3L set up at the light. This may be your only chance to work Thomas Point on AM fone, and the event takes on further significance in that it celebrates the first 'voice' transmission made from Cobb Island in MD by Reginald Fesseden. Ops N2INR and WA3VJB, among others in their group, deserve a lot of credit for taking initiative in activating AM phone operation and in choosing Thomas Point for their celebration." Further information can be gotten from the Amateur Radio Lighthouse Society (ARLHS) web page at http://arlhs.com or by sending an E-mail to Jim Weidner, K2JXW, President and Founder of ARLHS, at: mailto:k2jxw@arrl.net

The North Fulton Amateur Radio League (Atlanta, GA, USA) will operate special event station K4T from Tybee Island Lighthouse on the Georgia coast during the Amateur Radio Lighthouse Society's National Lighthouse Weekend, August 4 and 5th. Stations will be operating on (+/-): 28270, 21270, 14270, 7270 and 3970 kHz. QSL via K4PCF.

Members of the Metro Amateur Radio Club (MAC) will activate K9Y from Grosse Point Lighthouse (USA 359) in Evanston, Illinois. They will participate in the National Lighthouse Weekend sponsored by the Amateur Lighthouse Society. This is the first time that Grosse Point Lighthouse will be on the air for an amateur radio event. Grosse Point Lighthouse is one of eight lighthouses in the United States designated as a National historic landmark, and the only one located on the Great Lakes. Look for K9Y on August 5th, on CW and SSB (1800 to 2300 Zulu) on or around these frequencies: CW - 7030, 14030, 21030 and 28030; SSB - 7270, 14270, 21370 and 28370. A special event QSL card is available by sending a SASE to N9BOR via the callbook address. They will not reply to e-QSLs. Visit the Metro Amateur Radio Club (MAC) web site at: http://www.qsl.net/mac

Christian, DL6KAC, reports to look for activity from Helios Lighthouse in Cologne/Ehrenfeld (FED-107) during the International Lighthouse weekend. Callsign will be DN1KAV (QSL via DH4KAV / bureau) or DN2EI (QSL via DH7KAT / bureau). Activity will be on 40-10 meters, maybe on 80 meters on SSB.

During the International Lighthouses weekend (August 18-19th), look for Francis/F6HKS and Jean Claude/F6HDH, operating from Cordouan Lighthouse (located in the middle of the Gironde at sea). They will sign homecall/p and be active on 40/20 meters SSB/CW. QSL via their home calls. Cordouan reference numbers are: WLH - 0271; French "Phares et Balises du littoral (PBLF)" award - PB 018; ARLHS - FRA 007; IOTA - EU-159 and DIFM - AT-032.

Mike, GM4SUC, reports that with just about two weeks to go for the Internationl Lighthouse/Lightship Weekend (0001z Saturday, August 18th through 2359z on Sunday, August 19th), they have 257 lighthouse/lightship stations in 37 countries confirmed. Here is the list of countries and their number of stations: Argentina 4, Australia 17, Austria 2, Belgium 4, Brazil 5, Canada 6, Canary Islands 1, Croatia 1, Denmark 17, England 22, Finland 8, France 2, Germany 20, Gibraltar 1, Greece 2, Iceland 3, Ireland 3, Isle of Man 1, Israel 1, Italy 2, Japan 1, Lithuania 2, Malta 1, Netherlands 9, New Zealand 8, Northern Ireland 5, Norway 3, Poland 2, Portugal 1, Puerto Rico 3, Scotland 11, Slovenia 1, South Africa 8, Sweden 10, Turkey 1, USA 65 and Wales 4.

PY0T, TRINDADE ISLAND. Operators PY1LVF and PY1VOY are sailing to Trindade for a short operation to take place from August 7-10th. Currently it is unclear whether or not there has been confirmation from the Brazilian Navy that the two have received the requested callsigns ZX0T and PT0T. If not, they will be active as homecall/PY0T. Look for them on CW/SBB on 40-10 meters, including the WARC bands. QSL via PY1LVF, Jose Luiz Vieira Fernandes, P.O. Box 18009, 20722-970 Rio de Janeiro, RJ, Brazil. Those reading Portuguese can find more details at: http://br.geocities.com/py1lvf/destaques/destaques.htm.

VU (India) NEWS. Jose Jacob, VU2JOS, informed the DX community last week that permission to use the following frequencies by Indian Amateurs has been extended up to January 31, 2002. (It was to expire at July 31st, 2001). VU operators can use: 3790 to 3800 kHz, 10100 to 10150 kHz; and 50.35 and 50.55 MHz.

XW, LAOS. Charly, K4VUD, reports that he had to abandon his efforts to obtain a XW license this summer. He states that the process is rather difficult, but the personel at the Lao PDR are very friendly and responded to his E-mails in a timely manner. The big draw back seems to be the visa. The usual Laos visa is for only 15 days, and the license application process takes longer than that. Charly states, "One must depart Loas (or somehow get a longer term visa), wait for the license approval, and then return for ham operations." He recommands to work Hiroo, XW0X, who is now there and will be active in Laos for a limited period.

XX9, MACAU. Gary Jones, W5FI, informed OPDX that he will be active from here and will be arriving in Macau on August 5th and hopes to be operational on the 5th of August. He will operate until the 8th or 9th depending on when transportation has to depart back to Hong Kong. This is part of a business and pleasure trip to Asia and includes travel to Hong Kong, Korea, and Japan, however, he intends to operate only in Macau. Gary will be staying at a hotel and using a roof mounted Butternut vertical. He will be operational on all major modes: CW, RTTY, SSB, and PSK-31. His suggested frequencies will be the standard DX frequencies, QSX up as announced. Gary will operate on all bands 80 through 10 meters including the WARC bands. He will emphasize RTTY and will show on RTTY early in the operation since Macau is most rare on digital modes. RTTY frequency will be 14083 kHz and PSK31 14070 kHz. Gary states he will be running only 100 watts (maybe less on digital) to the Butternut vertical and dipoles. He is sorry the signal will be weak, but he will try to make up for it with persistence. His previous DXpeditions have been single operator solo operations at: HS0AC (1993), JD1/7J1AYK (Ogasawara - ChiChiJima, 1996), and ZB2/W5FI (Gibraltar, 1999), and some other smaller operations.

ZK1, SOUTH COOK ISLANDS (Update/Reminder). Mark, KM6HB, will again be operating from the South Cook Islands next week, August 7-17th. Look for him to be active as ZK1AHB, from August 7-8th on Rarotonga (OC-013), August 9-11th on Mangaia Island (OC-159), August 11-16th on Autituki Atoll (OC-083) and then back to Rarotonga, August 13-17th. In Southern CA they are coded radio receivers that control the traffic signals for emergency vehicles. Each police car or fire truck has a small "garage door opener" type controller that the driver can press as he approaches an intersection to cause the light to turn green in his approach direction.

These are somewhat newer systems and are replacing the older strobe light triggered systems.

1737. Hiram Man Fondles A Ten Year Old Girl

Police say Hiram man fondled girl, seek information

Fri, Aug 3, 2001
By Gengis Khan
Hiram Staff
A Hiram, Georgia man charged with criminal sexual conduct has spent the last 16 years working as "Quacky the Clown" in northern Georgia and southern Texas.
Dimmy O&#65533;Dimwitt, age unknown, was arrested last Friday and charged with first- and second-degree criminal sexual conduct as the result of an investigation by the Georgia and Texas state police departments that began June 29.
O&#65533;Dimwit posted the $50,000 bond and was released from the Paulding County Jail on Monday. He has a record of prior arrests.
O&#65533;Dimwit lived in the Hiram, Ga., area for four years until he moved to his present rental a few weeks ago. Prior to living in Hiram, ODimwitt had lived in the Atlanta area.
The arrest is the result of an August 2000 incident in which O&#65533;Dimwitt is accused of fondling and penetrating a 10-year-old girl with whom he was acquainted, said Trooper Matt Redneck of the Georgia State Police. Redneck worked with Detective Ryan Grimm of the Georgia State Police on the investigation.
Fondling is a second-degree offense, and penetration is a first-degree offense that carries the possibility of life in prison in Georgia, Grimm said.
Police know of two other alleged incidents between O&#65533;Dimwitt and the same child, one of which occurred two months ago in Paulding County. The Paulding County incident would be a misdemeanor offense and has been turned over to the Paulding County Prosecutor's office, Grimm said.
Because of O&#65533;Dimwitt&#65533;s contact with children over the years, police are asking the public to provide any information that may be out there about O&#65533;Dimwitt, said Sgt. Grimm of the Georgia State Police.
"O&#65533;Dimwitt has focused his life and career on small children ... our concerns are who else may have been in contact with him," Grimm said. O&#65533;Dimwitt was a Boy Scout leader before he became a clown, he said.
Grimm said O&#65533;Dimwitt was "Quacky" in as many as 25 parades a year and also performed at private parties.
The Georgia Bureau of Investigation is also looking into the case.

They are likely units for wireless internet access networks, like the Metricom / Ricochet system (which just went bankrupt !!!).

At $65 plus a month for 128k speeds, the market just was not there.
They had wired up a dozen or so major cities across the country.
Their stuff is being auctioned in San Jose on Aug. 16.

1747. Houston AMSAT Net and TWIAR distribution threatened -- Your help is needed!

Hello,

Your listening days may be numbered if you listen to the Houston AMSAT Net or This Week In Amateur Radio over your local repeater, another repeater while traveling, or on the TVRO (Big) Dish. I doubt alot of hams know how the repeater gets the program's audio and that it may go off the air at the end of August.

For years many repeaters provided these programs to hams via dedicated volunteers who retransmitted the audio from TVRO Satellite. The W0KIE sattellite network provides time on their audio subcarrier for North American distribution of these programs. W0KIE also carries programs about computers, media, and handicap issues. It is a grassroots type of network run by volunteers. The name of the network, W Zero K I E, is the ham call of the founder of the network, Mike Reynolds.

W0KIE does not own the audio subcarrier. W0KIE contracts with the Oxygen Network for the audio subcarrier in a barter arrangement. It seems the only feedback that Oxygen received about W0KIE was negative so they decided to end the contract. This is against W0KIE and not against the Houston AMSAT Net or TWIAR.

Unfortunely closure of W0KIE will mean the end of the era of hobbyist-oriented programing on TVRO. The founder of W0KIE is willing to keep W0KIE on but not to start it again. The situation is like that of launching Amateur Satellites, the 'free rides' are almost gone.

I realized I commented on W0KIE programs to W0KIE and people involved in producing the program. I took for granted Oxygen's support. Fortunely Oxygen has given W0KIE an extension of one month. This gives hams time to express positively how Oxygen's support of W0KIE is a good thing. This is not the time to flame Oxygen 8->. Please do not send email to Oxygen. It is more helpful to send a card or letter briefly mentioning that you support programs on W0KIE and appreciate Oxygen's support of W0KIE. Please send you cards and brief letters to:

You are right. Two wrongs do NOT make a right, but it sure makes sense to fight fire with fire. This sleaze-bag does all he can to make life uncomfortable for numerous Hams, then sits back on his mentally retarded arse and whines that HE is being victimized and stalked.
To tell the truth, I'd much rather deal with Roger. At least Roger has the cujones (that means "balls", Dimmy) to stand right up and respond one-on-one and make his case. This other one, the Coward of The County, hides in the dark shadows, chugs a dozen beers and only then decides to respond.
Yeah...ya gotta give Roger credit for at least one thing. He is not a cowardly lurker. He has the testosterone to confront his naysayers out front, in the open, and in their faces. Roger has the intellect, though at times hidden, to respond whereas the Coward of The County is somewhat limited with his mental facilities and has very few mental options open to himself.
Yes, About.com has been contacted and they were kind enough to respond to me in a timely manner. I made them aware of the spam problem and they said that they will be investigating it and responding in kind.
It is a shame that the Coward of The County caused this problem for all of us, including About.com.
And he wonders why anybody would want to toss a brick through his windows........

All this altopia.net crap is via the drunken homosexual mind of N9PGE. This moron has way too much time on his hands. Unable to keep a wife of his own, he loves to insult other wives. Terminated by the Elkhart County SO for chronic alcohilism,he spends his off time harassing others. On this thread the moron has posted four times with four different "sockpuppet" aliases. Of course, he constantly changes his address so the users of this group cannot killfile his childish, psychotic posts. To complain about all the childish altopia crap, complain to this psychotic directly. His e-mail is jmslater@mvillage.com
Or contact abuse@mvillage.com, they are reviewing his on line stalking already.

Man. Did I EVER underestimate the power of "usenet".

I throw a little insignificant but slight provocative thread title out, and you guys comandeer it and go at each other.

WHAT A COUNTRY! I'm truly humbled (NOT!)

Over $4,000 worth of HF gear went up for consignment sale at my local ham radio retailer this past week.....and you guys really do confirm I made the right decision.

Dimmy Dribble Snipped...see below.

Poor malcontent. Life has been difficult for him. He is dealing with a mental disability and pity for him is the order of the day. Poor little man lacks income, pilots a junker around that should be relegated to the scrap heap, owns nothing that he does not owe money on, and is a general all around failure. The crux of this sad situation is that the person in mind has NO idea that he is at fault.

By Mike Wendland, Detroit Free Press

Jul. 7--Call them the original geeks.
Ham radio operators, the hobbyists who pioneered the communications mediums we now take for granted, are still pushing the envelope and still irritating neighbors who think -- usually in error -- that their unsightly antennas interfere with watching television.
But hams may be victims of the very modern-day communications they helped invent.
The Federal Communications Commission, prodded by broadcasting and telecommunications companies, is jealously eyeing several chunks of ham radio frequencies to service the huge demand for in-car satellite radio broadcasts, as well as next-generation cellular telephone and wireless Internet services.
"Everyone wants to reallocate ham bands," says Chris Imlay, general counsel for the American Radio Relay League, www.arrl.org. "But the amateur radio service uses those frequencies to produce a strong core of self-taught communications experts that have historically provided the talent pool for every critical technology use we have."
Although the number of hams has grown considerably during the past two decades -- from 393,353 in 1980 to 682,240 today -- it's barely a blip when compared with the 140 million Internet users in the U.S. There are 21,009 licensed hams in Michigan.
Ham operators make contact in various ways, from bouncing radio signals off the moon, to two-way television, to relaying signals through their own satellite called OSCAR (Orbiting Satellite Carrying Amateur Radio). Some hams tap out the dots and dashes of Morse code characters.
Nobody knows for sure how the term "ham" originated. Some think it stems from the way they love to talk and talk -- "rag chew" in ham-speak -- or ham it up. Others think it's from the ham-handed " fists" needed to pound out code. Regardless, it's a noble hobby with a proud tradition.
Hams came up with the concept that makes cellular phones work. They perfected sending information through bursts of information " packets," or short transmissions of data, that became the basis for the way the Internet sends traffic. And hams have used their communication skills to save lives and coordinate rescue activities.
In fact, every time the area is put under a severe thunderstorm or tornado watch, hams take to the roadways and serve as volunteer spotters for the National Weather Service and area police departments.
"Computers and the Internet may be nice, but I can go into any natural disaster situation and, with a car battery, I can be up and coordinating emergency efforts on ham radio with any part of the world in 5 minutes," says Gaylen Minamyer, 62, of Warren. "Let's see you do that with no power, no cell towers and no phone lines with a computer."

Minamyer got into the hobby as a teenager but worries that not enough young people are coming into the hobby. "Computers and the Internet have really hurt us," he says. "People want the easy way. But somebody has to be innovating."

It used to be that to get an FCC license for a ham, you had to be able to communicate in Morse code -- at a rate of 5 words a minute for minimal operating privileges, and 20 words a minute for full privileges across the full ham bands. But in recent years, to help grow the hobby, ham organizations have persuaded the FCC to eliminate code requirements for entry-level licenses, and greatly reduced proficiency levels for others.

Walt Gracey prefers communicating via Morse code. From his Warren house, the 59-year-old salesman of marine equipment is hooked on making contact by code with hams in the former Soviet Union.

"I get a thrill every time I hear one come back to me," he says. "I don't know why I like code so much. It's that unique sound of the high-pitched dits and dahs and picturing someone in a land I'll never visit sending me a message over radio waves."

Jim Voight is more interested in the technology. The skilled tradesmen for DaimlerChrysler experiments with antennas and radio transmitters. His 42-acre homestead in Romeo sprouts a half-dozen towers, tripods and wire contraptions.

Last month, during the hobby's annual field day -- in which hams around the country try to get as many contacts as possible using emergency power -- the horse pasture next to his house was filled with tents and campers, towers and antennas.

"I'm in this to learn and experiment," Voight says. "One of my biggest thrills was sending a radio signal from my backyard to the moon, where it bounced off and returned to another ham's station on the other side of the country. That's a half-million-mile round-trip. That's really mastering technology."

No one says the hobby will completely disappear. But hams worry that the technology innovations they pioneered in this country will not be there if radio hobby experimentation doesn't stay strong.

"Hams incubated communications as we know it today," Gracey says. "Who'll do it for tomorrow?"

ONE EVENING last March amateur radio operator David Sumner carefully tuned his Kenwood transceiver across the 160-meter ham band. From the monotonous backdrop of static came a weak signal calling out, in slow bursts of Morse code, "CQ"--a ham's way of letting people know he's in the market for a conversation.

Sumner, 48, a Coventry, Conn. licensed ham for 31/2 decades, responded quickly. He knew from the call sign--UA9CR--that the guy was in Ekaterinburg, Siberia. Such long distances on this low a frequency (about the same as an AM radio) are exceptional. Trembling, he tapped out his response--UA9CR followed by his own call sign, K1ZZ--then waited.

A few seconds later Sumner heard his own call sign coming back in faint tones. Success: The guy had heard him! "It's the magic of radio," beams Sumner.

It may seem illogical in the age of the Internet and cheap and readily available overseas telephony that anyone would find magic in picking up faint sounds of Morse code. But there it is. Explains Sumner: "There's nothing to connect you--no telephone wires, no computer modems--just air, yet you're linked with someone on the other side of the world."

I know the feeling. In 1968, at 13, I got my novice-class ham license by studying radio theory and learning Morse code. On passing a Federal Communications Commission test, I was given my own call--WN3JID--and was ready to communicate with any of the 750,000 hams licensed worldwide. I scrounged up $75 for a Heathkit HR-10B receiver kit by delivering Baltimore Sun newspapers before school. I remember late nights working with my dad and a soldering iron to link exotic components--diodes, resistors, capacitors--within a maze of multicolored wires.

For a transmitter I purchased a used Hallicrafters HT-40 for $25. My antenna: two wires with insulators, strung to telephone poles across the front yard. With only 40 watts, I began working stateside hams in Florida, Kansas, California--even Alaska. As my operating skills improved, I upgraded my license to general class (WA3JID), and one night reeled in Antarctica--KC4USN, located right on the frigid South Pole.

By age 15, I had contacts with ham operators in more than 100 different countries. Many were from the U.S.S.R.: Kazakhstan, Armenia, Uzbekistan. Quite a thrill that, right in the midst of the cold war: Most of the Russian operators were high-level Party officials. I made a friend in Budapest--Dr. Lajos Horvath, a Hungarian doctor in his sixties with whom I'd converse regularly on Saturday mornings.

That was long ago. My equipment is back home with my parents in Laurel, Md. But recently I became curious. Is ham radio still around? "I'd be surprised if there were any hams left," one of my editors scoffed. "The Internet has probably siphoned them off."

Wrong. The hobby is thriving. Over the last three decades the number of hams worldwide has quadrupled, to 2.7 million, about 700,000 of them in the U.S. And since 1990, when the Internet started to become popular, ham ranks have jumped an average 6% annually. There's Walter Cronkite (KB2GSD); former Senator Barry Goldwater (K7UGA); actress Priscilla Presley (N6YOS); former Tandem Computers chief executive, James Treybig (W6JKV). A full 74 of America's past and present astronauts are licensed hams. They get on the air once in a while from the Shuttle, thrilling earthbound hams who manage to contact them. Country singer Patty Loveless (KD4WUJ) likes Morse code: she says the rhythms and pitch are downright musical. The magic is still there.
In the early 1980s hams actually developed the first crude model of the Internet--packet radio. Information was typed into bulky computers that converted it to ASCII "packets," then sent the information along using airwaves--rather than the phone lines utilized by the Internet.

In the 1990s amateur radio operators were among the first to adopt modern cybercommunications. The American Radio Relay League, amateur radio's largest organization, with 175,000 members, reports that seven of ten hams are Internet users. But rather than replace ham radio, the Internet has become an ideal mate. A slew of Web sites help hams to reach one another. Say you're a ham interested in DX--long distance communications--like that guy in Siberia. There's a Web site in Finland (www.clinet.fi/~jukka/webcluster. html) that updates activity of rare hams in far-off lands. It's a luxurious improvement over shoot-in-the- dark methods I once employed to reach hams in Moldova, Australia or India.
After they had exchanged radio signals, David Sumner looked up Ekaterinburg's Alex Prikhodko (UA9CR) on the Buckmaster Ham Web site (www.buck.com/ cgi-bin/do_hamcall). Sure enough, the fellow's cyberaddress in Siberia was listed. "I fired off an E-mail, and when I came home that night, there was a response," says Sumner.
You might ask: Why not go the E-mail route to begin with if you want to reach someone in Siberia? "People who think like that just don't get it," Sumner replies. "They've never run a marathon, climbed a mountain or sailed a 14-foot boat across the Atlantic. They don' t see the attraction of challenging themselves."

From PCs to streaming media to ham radio, musician Joe Walsh is all over the virtual spectrum.

Los Angeles Times
Home Edition

Legendary rock guitarist and singer Joe Walsh is best known as a member of the quintessential Southern California band of the 1970s, the Eagles, now in rehearsal for a European tour. He also racked up several hits as a solo artist and as a member of the James Gang.

But Walsh is perhaps the most accessible of rock stars, at least electronically--he spends a lot of his down time chatting via Webcam on the Internet and on shortwave amateur radio.

Walsh, 53, has homes in Sherman Oaks and San Diego.

DESKTOP: I have a PC in each of my houses because I need them for the Internet stuff I do and to handle music .wav and .mp3 files. But for Web design and a lot of the music programs I use a Mac.

Q. You designed your Web site?

I did some of it, but I have someone who puts it all together. When I am on the road, I take digital pictures and send them to her to put on the site [http://www.joewalsh.com].

When I'm home, I stream video and audio on http://www.hellonetwork.com late at night--you can go there and see me and hear me. I have a whole bunch of people I hang out with there. Many of them have seen us on tour, and I actually ask them what they think about the shows. They end up giving me critiques and suggestions--it helped me put the next tour together. I'm going to bounce some music off of them too, get them to help me with the direction I'm taking on a new album.

It's a really fun late-night deal. Usually, there are people from at least three different countries on there, all just shooting the breeze.

I haven't really been able to get the time to look into MP3s or Napster or that other stuff the kids do. I have to watch myself--I get on my computer, and all of a sudden it's Thursday and I have a beard and I don't smell so good. I know I have to force myself to turn the thing off to take care of things in the real world.

LAPTOP: I have a Dell that I use until I get sick of Windows; then I go to a Mac PowerBook. I go back and forth because I want to be well versed in both operating systems.

I use the laptops for e-mail on the road and to use Photoshop on pictures I send back. I'll give myself two noses, fool around like that.

BOOKMARKED SITES: I collect old tube radios. I have broadcast transmitters and receivers. I go to the Collins Collector Assn. site [http://www.collinsradio.org], where there is a lot of information on these radios.

I also go to the site for ARRL, the National Assn. for Amateur Radio [http://www.arrl.org].

Q. When did you first get involved with ham radio?

1962. I got into it, and the technical stuff I learned was very helpful later when I was souping up amplifiers and wiring up guitars. I got away from ham radio after I discovered girls, but later I came back to it as a hobby.

Q. How often do you get on the air?

When I'm home, I get on for the weekly Collins Collector meeting and then sometimes I get on just to talk. In the past three weeks, I talked to hams in Russia, Israel and Japan. I have met people through ham radio I would have never met otherwise.

And you know, whenever there is an earthquake, a hurricane or some other disaster, there are always ham radio operators who help out with communications. We plan for that. It's something I'm proud of--I got a whole bucket of batteries I keep around.

Q. What kind of equipment do you use now?

I built a computer--a Pentium with a nice motherboard--to run my main unit, which is a Kachina. It's totally computer controlled--it doesn't even have any knobs or dials on it. I also have an amateur radio in the car.

Q. Do people ever kid you about being a ham radio operator, about it being geeky?

I guess it is. But I don't mind. Some of my best friends are nerds.

Actually, there is nothing quite like it. You spend hours hooking stuff up, going up on the roof to get the antenna just right. Then you turn the thing on, send out a message and someone comes back to you--it's a wonderful thing.

Q. What kind of license do you have?

Amateur extra, the highest grade you can have as an amateur. I'm Morse code fluent.

HOME THEATER/STEREO SETUP: I don't do the home theater thing at all. If I'm home, I'll get on the computer or turn on the ham radio.

For music, I have one of those Bose Wave players.

Q. That's it?

Yeah. I used to have an incredibly elaborate system with huge speakers. It could put out something like 112 decibels of crystal-clear sound.

But when you do music for a living and are rehearsing all the time, you don't particularly want to listen to music when you get home. I need time to rest my brain.

Q. You don't have the big system anymore?

No. I decided to get furniture instead.

Hurricane Watch Net Activates As Barry Approaches Gulf Coast

The Hurricane Watch Net activated at 1800z (2 PM Eastern Daylight Time) Sunday, August 5, 2001, as Tropical Storm Barry strengthened in the Gulf of Mexico. Barry is expected to make landfall as a hurricane along the Florida Panhandle Monday morning, according to the National Weather Service.

On 14.325 MHz, the Hurricane Watch Net gathers real-time weather information that is relayed via National Hurricane Center station W4EHW to hurricane forecasters. The National Weather Service requested the activation as Barry, which had been drifting erratically in the Gulf, dramatically strengthened and turned northward this morning.

Hurricane Warnings have been posted along the Florida Gulf Coast from Pascagoula, Mississippi, to the mouth of the Ochlockonee River in Florida. The net will accept reports from in or near the affected region, according to Hurricane Watch Net Manager Jerry Herman, N3BDW.

If you can't find any help. Go to QCWA website. Don't have the URL offhand. I asked for help on my sons ticket back in the early 80s. Got the info I needed. Several OT's keep old callbooks.

This Homebrew GROUNDED GRID amp is in excellant condition. It has a NEW tube in it and an Eimac chimney with a very QUIET blower. Jennings VAC variable for final plate tuning and a very HEAVY band switch and is bandswitched - 160 - 80 - 40 - & 20 meters. With just 18 watts drive on AM I have been using it to the legal limit on AM and it just loafs along! Unit comes with solid state power supply and is controlled with a LARGE VARIAC. THE AMP OPERATES ON 240 vac. It is all installed in a rack cabinet 38" tall and is on casters. THIS IS A PICK UP ITEM ONLY IN MADISON, WI !! Picture via e-mail is available. Any 100 watt ssb transceiver will drive this thing beyond the legal limit and not be pushing it!! $650

Listen, turdling: if you're going to keep on posting that tired crap, at least learn how to spell MOLESTERS. It jars the flow of the reading, Dimmy, when you keep on screwing up the spelling in post after post.

It's a small thing I know, but have you ever thought about how your credibility suffers when you don't have the common courtesy to use a spell checker on your posts?

The readers of this news group are sophisticated members of the upper strata of society (e.g., Roger Wiseman), and you should try to act accordingly when in their presence. They, after all, are really, really good at spelling molester, and you don't want to look inferior.

1811. Help with Icom W32A signal receive

I own an Icom W32A HT and recently purchased a Larsen NMO mag mount 1/4 wave 2 meter antenna to use with my radio. After tuning the antenna to 146 MHz, testing the SWR, and then again fine-tuning the antenna, the SWR was down to an acceptable level (around 1.2:1), so I assumed that all was well and that my new antenna was ready to be used on 2 meters.

Today, I had a chance to drive around a bit and try out the new mag mount with my W32A HT. It's not in transmitting, but rather receiving that I seem to be having some problems. While driving around, repeaters that should come in nice and clear from my location were sounding very scratchy and full of static and noise. After experiencing this, I detached the mag mount and put on the rubber duck. With the rubber duck the repeater signals were coming in much more clearly.

Would anyone have any idea as to why I might be having this problem? I assume that I tuned the antenna correctly for the 2 meter band, so I would think that the antenna should receive 2 meter signals clearly. Could it be that the rubber duck antenna has gain that the 1/4 wave doesn't? Or, does this sound characteristic of the W32A's notoriously open front end? I'm really not sure if this is a front end problem though, since it's not like I'm hearing other stations or transmissions bleeding in--there's just a whole lot of static and noise.

Any help or advice would be greatly appreciated, particularly from anyone else who owns a W32A and may have had similar experiences. Thanks!

It's possible that a strong signal is crunching your receiver's front end. I've got a little Yaesu VX-5 HT which can receive parts of the HF spectrum. If I connect it directly to a decent outside antenna, I can't even hear WWV. It takes about 30 dB attenuation to reduce whatever's crunching it down to the point where I can hear anything else. That's a lot more extreme than just putting a quarter wave antenna outside the car, but it could be the same thing that's happening to you. If you try transmitting and people report that your signal is ok through the repeater, I'd guess that this is the cause. The cure would be to add a bandpass filter between the rig and the antenna. A short circuited quarter electrical wavelength stub teed off the feedline might be adequate. Or, if there's a particular single strong signal you can identify as causing the problem, a notch filter would do the job.

Well, it looks like I may have found the answer to my own question. I was browsing the technical FAQ section of Icom's website and found this:

>Q: My ICOM IC-W32A or IC-T7A handheld radio receives just fine with the >supplied "rubber duck" antenna. But, the receive seems to go down when I >connect my handheld to an external high-gain antenna (yagi, etc.) Why?
>A: These particular ICOM radios have been optimized for best performance while >used with the supplied portable antennas. External high gain antenna will >overload HTs front end resulting in poor reception.

I guess this describes my problem, however notice that according to Icom this applies to "external high-gain" antennas. I'm not very knowledgeable with respect to antennas, but am I not correct that 1/4 waves have almost no RX gain? (if i'm not mistaken, I believe the Larsen literature states that the antenna has unity gain.)

I'm surprised that the folks at Icom wouldn't try to make the W32A work a little better with an external antenna for mobile operation. Unless you're outside of a building or vehicle and in an open area, rubber ducks just won't cut it. Don't they take into account the fact that many users will likely want to use an external antenna while using the radio for mobile operation?

I'd still appreciate any comments or suggestions on this topic. Thanks again!

Thanks for your help.

There are now 3 1/2 classes. Four test elements, Element 1 is a 5wpm code test, Element 2 is a fairly simple written, Element 3 is largely rules and regs with not a lot of theory, Element 4 is fairly technical but known more for its breadth than depth.

Technician: Element 2. VHF privileges.
Tech with Code: Add Element 1. Add Novice code bands and 28.3-28.5
General: 1,2,3. All but lower half of 4 phone bands and lower 25 kHz CW on same bands.
Extra: 1-4. All Amateur privileges.

Thanks for your reply. The links you posted on the bottom came out quite useful for me.

I plan on taking the technician test the first week in October.

I have been looking at some hand held and mobile radio's and i'm trying to figure out which would be the best for me to purchase.. I have my sights on an Alinco hand held 5 watt output dual 2 meter / 70 centimeter band and a radio shack 1.5 watt output hand held dual 2 meter / 70 centimeter band radio. Would it be a waste of time getting any hand held under 5 watt output? I live in a heavily populated area (piedmont triad area of North Carolina) and there are quite a few repeaters in use that I have picked up on the scanner in the 2 meter band.

Sorry to be asking so many questions all at once :-)

Your help is greatly appreciated

I am not the one to ask about VHF gear.

At the risk of making you and some other people mad, I do not view the Codeless Tech as the entry level license. Get the code cert before you become mired on VHF phone and your Amateur career will be longer and happier. So long as 25.5 of the Geneva treaty is in place, and the prospects of getting rid of it in 2003 get dimmer by the day, a code test is going to be required below 30 MHz no matter what arguments are put forth. Simple reality and human nature would indicate getting it over with even if you don't give a rip for Morse. The Morse Academy software I recommended comes out of the box at exam speed, spacing, and tone although all are variable. I would recomend a cheap set of earphones from Walmart before your family assasinates you, however. You actually have plenty of time to get set up for the code test in October as well. Set it for Lesson 1 and beep away

Justin,

I also have a 95 ford explorer and I use "ham stick" type whips for the different bands. You should be able to get them at the local ham store dor around 15-20$ each band. I took a mirror mount and bolted it onto a piece of galvanized steel strap. The strap is about 1/8" think and 1.5 feet long or so. They are normally used to strap landscpeing timbers together in the garden and things like that and are available at the hardware store or home depot. The straps have holes predrilled for screws, I drilled on of those holes out to make it large enough to fit a 1/2" bolt. Under the bumper in the back of the vehicle you will see several holes that have nothing going through them. I used the hole closest to the drivers side and bolted the mount there then bent is down a little to make the bar ride parallel to the ground. You will want to find a place to run a ground strap, made of 1" copper weave, from the mounting bolt to the chassis of the vehicle. The bumper is electrically insulated. You will want to go around grounding the large pieces of metal too if they are not already. I lucked out, ford gorounded the hood and tailgate for me. This setup works great or me, I have worked all kinds of DX. The only problem I encountered was a VERY high amount of QRM from the fuel pump. Ford makes a filter that goes on the fuel pump that took care of that problem. After the fuel pump was silenced I had a little ignition noise, changing the spark pulgs took care of that.

Good Luck, let me know if you have questions.

Gary

Is this normal one can live with or our afford will pay back for further tuning?

I know you will ask many questions, but a "loose" and quantitative info will be OK?

Thanks for any opinion.

My preference would lie with the stronger radio. The Radio Shack radio might allow you to hit all the repeaters in your area, but when you decide to go simplex (and it WILL happen), you'll find that the range of the radio is severely limited. I have an HTX-400 that I picked up only because the price was good. Only time I really carry it is when I'm in business attire. Otherwise, I carry my reliable HTX-404 (or HTX-202, depending). The punch of 5 watts and ensuing ability to hit repeaters up to 30 miles away more than compensates for the added bulk of the radio. With the HTX-400, I'm lucky to hit a repeater 5 or 7 miles way.

get E-mail shipping confirmation. Your snail mail letter

On my old HTX-200, I yanked the SMA connector out and put in a BNC (ugly mod, since one of the case screws had to go, but it looks a little more durable than SMA+adapter) and used the MFJ-1710 telescoping antenna. When not in use, it's nice and small, but extended, it tripled the range over the factory rubber duck. I suspect performance through an SMA>BNC adapter would be similar.

Excellent point. I have the HTX-404 and on low power, 5 miles is about the limit with no 'bacon frying' in the background. On high power, at 10 miles I begin to get the 'bacon frying'. I purchased a longer gain whip from a commercial VHF/UHF shop where I used to work. At 10 miles, I'm full quieting on LOW power. On high power (using aa alkalines, only about 3.5 watts), I can use a ton of repeaters. I can open Bristol Mountain 30 miles away. Definately get rid of the stock rubber ducky dummy load and put a better antenna on it. Sure, it is not as compact (the antenna might be 15 inches in height), but it sure works a whole lot better. Especially if you get to use low power most of the time and conserve battery power!

I'm in the process of transferring various cassettes and vinyl albums to digital formats as time permits. That includes some old cassette recordings of the 3898 gang. Robert, Hugh, Wilkie, Jimmy, and all the rest.

These are from my early SWL days. They date from early 1991 to early 1993.
I guess I missed quite a few of the classic moments from early days.

Some are hilarious, some merely mundane, but after not hearing them all together for such a long time, I think they're fun to go back and listen to.

Anyway, I know there were a lot of folks who enjoyed listening. I remember Jim White of KMOX checked in from time to time and mentioned more than once that 3898 had more listeners than many broadcast stations.

I figured while I was in the process of transferring things to the computer
I would offer other folks a chance to go back and enjoy some of these great moments in radio.

I'm in the process of ul'ing as many as possible to a station at Live365.
It's called 'Radio3898'.

Not much there at the moment. We'll try to add a little each day. Each segment is an entire cassette side - 45 minutes.

I'll gladly offer the mp3 files at a website once I can find one with storage space for a large collection of 45 minute mp3 files!!

Otherwise search '3898' down the road on WinMX or AudioGalaxy and perhaps I'll have them available there as well.

I've recorded them at 'low-fi' to save space, and since ham radio ain't hi-fi to begin with, hopefully the quality is acceptable.
A 45-min 'show' runs about 5 1/2 megs.

I'd love to hear from others who enjoyed listening to 3898. And if you happen to drop by Live365 and listen, let me know what ya think.

If you have any recordings or other info about 3898, please feel free to drop me a line and maybe we can find a way to share it with others.

Thanks for your time and enjoy the boys of 3898 together again!!

Please don't stir up the code/no code debate in this thread... ;-)

Just got a new Nokia 7160 cellphone. It has many selectable ring and alert tones. Discovered it beeps "connecting people" (their slogan) as one of the ring tones and "SMS" as one of the alert/warning signals (does this when you recieve email, which happens to be encoded using a scheme named "SMS").

Kind a neat!

Sorry gutless anon boy, it was not me. I did fill out the survey though, and I am glad Jeff made such a positive post. Sure was refreshing. At least he does not hide behind a remailer like yourself. And please change your flames to W4AMP, employed engineer. Thanks

The SMA>BNC adaptor is about a $15 item at Radio Shack. I'd assume there would be a small amount of loss through the connector, maybe in the neighborhood of 1dB or so. Regardless, tripling the range of the 200 mA radio from roughly 2 miles to 6 miles (on flat terrain) is not bad. Regardless, when you can buy a 5 watt radio for slightly more than the HTX-200 (which still has not dropped below $129 at the local Radio Shack outlet), I'd go for the radio with more output. BTW, the only reason I bought the HTX-400 was because it came down to about $79. Would not have spent any more than that for a .2 watt radio...

Which reminds me..... The 4 inch ducky that comes with the HTX-200/400 radios is crap. You can improve your performance by adding a short length of wire as a counterpoise (it works, HONEST), or do what I did and search eBay for a better antenna. I located a 7 inch ducky for my HTX-400 (if you do the math, you'll realize it's a full 1/4 wave at 440), and nearly doubled the range of the radio for about $7.00...

Never seen one available at Rat Shack. Do you have a part number for it?
The adapter I use on my D7A is from Tanner's at about $6.50

My girlfriend has the 200 now. That was part of the deal when she got licensed. It's fine for what she uses it for now, which is mostly listening, and the occasional bit of very short range simplex. I'm thinking about getting her something in a nice dual-bander, though, as a couple of the places we spend a fair amount of time have a lot of interference on 2m.

>BTW, the >only reason I bought the HTX-400 was because it came down to about

When I was using the 200, I usually had it hooked up to one of those lightweight cellphone battery eliminators...basically a small 12V gel cell in a nice carrying case. That gave me 2W and decent time-per-charge.

I've stuck it on the D7A occasionally when I'm within a mile of the repeater, and portability becomes more beneficial than power. I normally use a Comet rubberized whip that's almost impractically long in some situations.

OTOH, the stock antenna on the D7A wasn't much better than the RS one.

The only one spamming here is you, clown. Having to post the same pathetic false hood crap, you hide behind a remailer, changing your fake la-la- land address to avoid kill files. No wonder the administrator of this group is using the death penaly to block your drivel. Your obsession with me is proof of your lack of a family and a life. Spam on gutless anon nobody, spam on. When you die, your tombstone will be just like your sad anon posts: blank and meaningless.

I'm hitting this morse code pretty hard trying to get it memorized. I just started with it 3 days ago and I've got these letters and numbers down pat so far.

b e o s
1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,9,0

I can remember the dah and dit's but im not really picking them up fast enough when they come up on my program all of the time. I'm using Morse Academy. How long does it usually take to remember all the letters and symbols to where you can pass the 5 wpm test? I've got 2 months till my testing date so do you think that is long enough?

Anyone have any suggestions to help me learn them any better in addition to the program im using?

Thanks

The object of the exercise is really to get your mind out of it and just write it down. Five wpm usually takes three weeks or so so you got lots of time. Don't burn out on it, an hour a day is plenty and that in two sessions. As you get a bit of proficiency, try things like sounding out STOP (dits and dahs, no dots and dashes) when you come to one. Your carpool will whack you with a dead mackerel but it is a small price to pay.

I do not recall the letters you mention being Lesson 1 but WTH. There is a reason for the MA sequence.

Yep it was based on a faked tape submitted by the above poster. As soon 1899. DXEXPED. Needs advice.... what to use for 30' mast.

I am going to be taking my 6M7JHV (31' boom @ 17lbs) on a dxpedition. I want to setup a 30' mast for it. The mast needs to be collapsable or be able to disassemble down to at least 6' sections to fit on the plane. The only critical issues we have is that it can handle the wieght and torque of a 31' boom. I expect to use at least two sets of three guys.

I'd prefer something that is 2" wide at the top. Weight is also important as we'll be charged for each pound of our equipment over limit on the plane.

Please EMAIL suggestions, comments to: n1rz @ n1rz . org

Goto www.fairradio.com/antenn.htm and look at the following:
AB-1244/GRC MAST KIT twelve aluminum alloy on steel sections form sturdy, yet lightweight 30 foot 1.7" dia mast. Kit includes five each lower and upper sections, one ea lower and upper adapter sections, gin pole swivel base, four ea 36 and 42 ft guy ropes, four guy stakes, two guy rings plus a 2.5 pound sledge hammer. Part of OE-254/GRC antenna set; 30 lbs sh. NEW, $139.50

This Mast is not 2 inches in diameter but we used 4 of them at this years Field Day for a 4 1/4 wavelength 20 meter rhombic under call K7IP. There are real easy to put up. We had 40 foot masts , you use 5 sections of the 40 foot mast and the square plate on the base to locate your guy anchors. Then you pretension 3 sets of the 4 guy rope sets and using the last (4th) set you pull the mast up into place. Then you go about adjusting the mast for best verticle position. They worked very good. We have also had a tribander upon one of these masts in a past field day.

Good Luck

What do expect out of a broken-down bunch of alcoholics? Lysen only has Dumbass Donnie to talk to. Ever notice when he transmits he punctuates every other word with "Ahh!"? It sounds like he gets sexually excited talking to Donnie or is inserting that ferret or gerbil or his dead mommy's dildo up his ass as he transmits...

I'm sure that I have no business posting here, so apologies in advance. I'm a 53-year old recent retiree. I finally have time to do something I have wanted to do for 40+ years...get my ticket and get on the air waves.

I was surprised, I admit, by the "new" licensing requirements. The written tests for Tech and General are not going to be a problem for me -- I am having trouble learning the code, though. I'm sure I'll eventually be able to drag my dyslexic mind to 5 wpm (certainly an easier goal then the 13 wpm I thought I was going to need).

Ok, enough of the background.. here's my concern, fwiw...

I've been lurking most of the rec.radio.amateur... newsgroups. I see an inordinate amount of yelling, screaming, name calling, and (pardon me) juvenile behavior. I am wondering if this is really a culture in which I want to invest considerable time, money, and emotional involvement.

Is the tone of the culture accurately reflected in the newsgroups? I certainly hope not.

Sorry to take up the bandwidth, but I felt a strong need to express my concern.

Hi, Paul:

Sadly, what you say is, to a point, true. Like so many other things, though, it is a VERY small minority that gets into the flame wars, both here and on the air.

Don't let them discourage you!

A few strategic BLOCK SENDER commands to most news clients and 99% of the problems are gone. I have less than 20 senders blocked and I seldom see the flap here or in RRAP.

Good luck on the studies and I hope you enjoy Amateur Radio as much as I!

Take Care & 73

Paul, take it from an old timer of almost 56 years as a ham, that the Internet and amateur radio are two completely different things!

Ham radio is greatly different in many ways from when I started, but so is the general population, the accepted behaviors in public, the acceptable language, etc. Hams are people, too, so you have to expect things to change with time.

But, NO, in my experience and judgement, what you will encounter on the ham bands will be nothing like what you can read on these newsgroups.

As a suggestion, concentrate on your study and code work, and just ignore the newsgroups until you get your ticket, get a station on the air, and get some operating time under your belt.

Good luck and welcome to a great hobby!

A more accurate reading of amateur radio would be to listen to the bands. You will find then that these newsgroups dont reflect the amateur radio body, except for the antenna, equipment, homebrew, swap, and to a lesser extent the space, vhf and packet groups. The Misc group is attended by a bunch of rude, obscene foulmouthed juveniles, and thank the waves that they are using the group and not the radio. There are plenty of good people all around the world for you to have enjoyable qso's with, so by all means go for it, and ignore the bs on these groups.

Marty:

Thanks for the comments. I have used the dreaded Black Senders. In fact, that's what caused me to send my message. I have more Black Senders issued for the ham groups (well, resulting from my reading of these groups) then for all my others combined.

I'm chalking all this up to me having a bad hair day -- hard to do considering my lack of any kind of hair, but probably worth the effort. <grin>

I still have plenty of hair... It's just growing from my ears now days.. :)

I have seen a few others jump in here, all to the good, but I do disagree with the idea of not reading here until you get your ticket and get on the air... The Usenet in general is sort of like diving for pearls... You have a LOT of empty shells, but every so often, a really BIG pearl comes along and makes it all worth while.

Just use the blocked senders list and take much of what is said with a grain of salt.

Take Care & 73

Don't let what you read on the newsgroups form your opinion about ham radio. Most of the foul mouth name callers here used to do it on the air until the FCC started tracking them down and calling them in for retesting and even revoking licenses. Now they can't vent their rantings on the air so they do it here.

Hello Paul from Andy N9NRA. I`m in agreement here, as well. The best way to see what ham radio is like is to listen to the bands...but do it with an open mind, and remember that all hams are not like those you`ve heard about. And above all, have fun and enjoy this great hobby! I know i sure do!

Good luck and 73 DE N9NRA

Paul,

I agree with all who have responded. I have had my ticket since 1991 and have enjoyed every minute of it. Met some of the nicest people and even gained some friends who now have become more like brothers to me. You won't regret a moment of it.
As for your code problem, I too suffered from that "mental" block with the code. The only thing that worked for me was the package "Code Quick". It runs around $60 if I remember correctly. It was the ONLY code course that worked for me. I tried several of them. Now my 7 yr old is picking it up like a breeze, but he is very musically inclined. I think that helps tremendously. Good luck to you and hope to find you on the bands soon! Come join us...not all of us are crazy....but sometimes it helps..:)

Paul:

As others have indicated in various posts, this (and other amateur newsgroups) do not necessarily reflect the ham radio fraternity at large. I call it a fraternity, because in many ways, it seems like a brotherhood and sisterhood of people with a common goal, that of communicating via ham radio. Overall, they are kind, patient, and compassionate human beings that are interested in furthering ham radio, helping their communities and generally being good people.

Unfortunately, like with any endeavor, there are a relative few that feel they need to "stir up the pot" just for the sake of seeing who they can get a rise from. Many of these sort of "people" have a tendency to get into the newsgroups and make post after post, most of which are inflammatory. I've observed more trolling and baiting done in newsgroups than anywhere else. The largest reason seems to be the relative anonymity that is possible on the internet. Nearly anyone can represent themselves as any name they choose, and it's difficult to tell the honest people from the scum. Personally, I find it difficult to take anyone seriously that hides behind a free or anonymous email address, as they are there just to mask the individual's true identity.

As a recently upgraded Amateur Extra, having finally taken the time to get the code requirement done, I can imagine your difficulty in preparing for the code test. However, I've personal knowledge that it's really not that bad, if you just take the time and dedicate yourself to learning it. (I went from Technician to Amateur extra in a single testing day, so I know it can be done! I used an old "listen to the world with Ham Radio -- ARRL tape from the late 80's or so to learn the code. It used farnsworth timing, spaced for 5wpm, which has the individual characters at 13wpm, but spaced for 5wpm, which is the way the test is. I took the code test during field day, and could hear QRM from the field day SSB radios almost as loud as the actual code, but still managed to copy OK. It wasn't a whole lot different from copying real code off the air, and probably a better test than the sterile environment that is usually used for testing.)

Go ahead, listen around the bands, and you'll find a few wierdos out there, but they are way in the minority, just as the number of oddballs that post the nasty stuff on the newsgroups are a very small minority of the actual community. Bear in mind the internet allows one to post a message to many more people than they could be exposed to in other venues, and they can reread it later. This gives some of the miscreants a thrill for some reason, and tends to cause them to post considerably more crap over time. On the ham bands, people that aren't polite and reasonable tend to be ignored, but on the internet, there is always someone that will respond to a troll or provocative message.

I guess this was a very long way of answering your question, and saying that the newsgroups are definitely NOT indicative of the tone of the ham radio culture.

Ham radio is a wonderful hobby, and can be quite enjoyable even if you don't spend a lot of money or time on it.

Thanks

Through military surplus outlets you should be able to get a fiberglass mast kit that should fill your need. It consists of 6- four foot pieces about 2 inches in diameter that slip together in swage fashion for a 24 foot mast. They come in a waterproof rugged carry bag and are fairly light in weight but appear quite sturdy (about 1/4 inch wall thickness and appear to be of resin coated fiberglass construction). You should be able to add additional pieces to make up the 30 foot you want if 24 ft is not enough.
I understand these were used in Desert Storm to support camoflauge netting. It must have been heavy material as the masts are very stout. I was given one kit by a ham who had bought several sets at a military surplus sale. Sorry, I don't have the military description available now, and I'm not where I can get to it.

73 and gud luck

No, the newsgroup does not reflect amateur radio in the slightest. This is not to say that the newsgroup has no value to a ham, because it does, if the proper filters are applied to one's newsreader.

As someone else has pointed out, there are sufficient pearls to be found to make it worth reading and participating in.
At least there are for me. Welcome aboard.

Don't worry about it, and just get your ticket. There is so much to do in Ham Radio you don't have to worry about having any problems with operators on the air. The ones who do cause real problems are few in number and hopefully that number is getting smaller.

TROLL RATING: 1/2

CRITIQUE: The initial apology is a good technique; it hooks a number of well-meaning repliers. Likewise the comment about being dyslexic garners the sympathy vote. Also, placing the already-licensed hams on the defensive but allowing the possibility of redemption is a time-proven method for triggering responses. The bandwidth apology at the end is also good technique.

OVERALL: A better than average troll, clearly the work of an experienced troller. We look forward to your next work.

I think that has to do with the ease in which we can change the frequency on the radio and make the bad people disappear. It can be done on the newsgroups too, but some of the culprits are intelligent enough (?) to use aliases to get their points across. The other side of the coin is the lack of operating savvy many computers uses posess. Lots still do not know how to use their kill file function. Now, where did I put that spellcheckers?

Paul,

I don't think you will find the type of behavior that you have observed on the NG's, on the Ham bands. It's been my observation that the offensive trolls and potty-mouthed numbskulls that hang-out in these NG's rarely - if ever - get on the air...TG

My advice is to totally ignore what goes on in the newsgroups and get on the air. I too have concerns about the junk that goes on here, especially when prospective Hams like yourself see the garbage. I have not encountered any of this garbage on the airways; everyone seems like a very nice bunch. There is a lot of good stuff in the news groups but you will just have to ignore the junk. I agree with you and for the life of me do not understand all the filth and junk in the groups.

Cecil,
It's PILATE, not PILOT but you still write interestingly. I had my own dental practice from 1967-1989 and retired. I and an optometrist owned our building in a shopping center in Clifton which explains why we also were for an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.

I've been to several ham websites where OWNERS post individual reviews on their rigs (often conflicting reviews). Are there any good ham websites that fairly compare similar rigs...sort of a Consumer Reports type website for hams?
Thanks for any suggestions.

1972. 6.900 UPR goes to "Red Alert"

You missed a rather curious edition of UPR (United Poultry Radio) on 6.900 at 10:00 Eastern time last night.
Here's a transcript of what happened..

Kornel Steve was again in a rant, bemoaning the fact that UPR does not send QSL cards. Apparently many people want some kind of a reception report from Poultry Radio before it's shut down, presumably via Tomahawk cruise missiles. Stevie was 5 or so minutes into the show, when he got a phonecall from Charlie Schmucket of the Kentucky Fried (Original Recipe) Shicken Militia.
UPR goes off the air for 2 minutes, then Stevie comes back on the air saying that UPR and all Militias across the USA are now on "microwave oven Code-2 red alert". It seems that just an hour or so prior to his 10 PM show, folks from the Bureau of Alcohol and Turkey Fillet Inspectors raided the headquarters of the Indiana State Militia and Turkey Farm. They carted away all of his turkeys, spices, corncobs, cranberry sauce and whatever else looked tasty, because the Kommandant of the Indiana Militia Turkey Farm had the balls to label his sliced deli meat as "kosher" when in fact he was using the same slicer to cut pork and bologina!! (naughty..naughty..naughty!) At last word the Kommandant was out in the woods (according to Schmucket) hiding out with 3 cans of spam and a rusty Daisy BB gun vowing to not be taken alive. {you should have seen them trying to round up all those live turkeys, all dressed in cammo BDU's with shit all over the turkey pen, slippin and slidin and fallin on their asses every 4th step...it was not a pretty picture folks} So as of now UPR is on DEFCON 2 alert. Better go and buy that 20 piece bucket of the Original Recipe and sit down in front of that Icom for a night of extreme paranoia and humor on 6.900 for the next few nights! (also check out around 3.860 at 8:00 PM for the "Eastern Regional Poultry Pluckers Militia Net". It seems that Stevie has put the word out that ham radio 3.860 LSB will be used for militialoon communications, even if Reily and Purdue don't like it....

With that UPR went off the air at around 10:12 pm.
No word if Steve has been sighted in chicken suit and henmobile on the way to Indiana. (..the henmobile looks like the truck that Super Chicken used to drive in the 70's cartoon of the same name. If you see it be careful ! ! It has 50mm semiautomatic egg launchers in the front and back that can splatter a windshield with a barrage of raw henfruit at 300 yards)

Stay Toon'ed ! !

(the preceding was intended purely for humors reading only.
Anyone who takes it seriously or thinks that there is a hidden messages in the above report should report to their nearest mental health center for a complimentary Prozac and water)

Paul, go for it. We Tech's and former Tech's keep the malcontents busy here, so you won't have to put up with disgruntled OF's on HF. The plan is working gangbusters.

Hello Paul,
For the most part the bickering and crap you refer in these newsgroups is not present on the HF bands with the possible exception of 80M sometimes during the evenings.

I would heartily encourage you to get your HF privileges in order and join a great bunch of Hams on the HF bands.

Hello:
Please help. I have been trying to get a keyer to work with the TS-690.
I have wired the 1/4" plug correctly. I have hooked up the cable to the keyer to the DIRECT plug in.
I am using a Bencher key thru a MFJ Grandmaster keyer. It will not key the rig to send CW. When I push the SEND button it will send CW. Should it not key the rig without pushing in the SEND button. Help!!! Thanks.

Hi Paul,
While not a licensed ham (I too am planning to take the Extra exam in October sometime), I am a long time computer scientist and semi-long time USENET reader/poster. As such, let me assure you that USENET is a very different beast from almost any other communications medium in the world, complete with it's own philosophy.
On USENET, for a variety of reasons both historical and technical, it's very easy to `sound off' and post something irregardless of the nature of the post or its content or tone (for lack of a better term).
The ability to do so anonymously has always been present, though doing so is now more easily accessible to non-technical users.
It is common to see an individual jump into a USENET post without forethought to the subject or the ramifications of his or her post; I confess myself guilty of this at times, though I hope I strive to keep it to a minimum. But that is part of the general philosophy of free speech that has been used on USENET for some time now.
My general impression of amateur radio (btw- do people really want to be called a form of processed meat? ;-) is that this does not occur as frequently, and in general, the quality of conversation is higher. This is especially true as the content of USENET has degraded in recent years (at least for discussing computer science research; but that is only my personal opinion).

Perhaps this is due to the regulation of amateur radio by government and international treaty; USENET is well-known for it's commitment to ``anything goes'' free speech, particularly in the alt.* hierarchy. While stringent attempts to keep things `on topic' and to a certain extent useful used to be made, most folks have given up on trying to keep USENET in line.
At anyrate, all of this is a very long-winded way of saying that USENET culture and amateur radio culture are, by my estimations, worlds apart. Given what I've seen of USENET culture, this is probably a good thing. :-)
I sincerely hope to meet people on the airwaves interested in pursuing the frontiers of technology and moving radio to the next level when I get licensed (assuming I pass the exam!). Perhaps I'll see you around!

Better dig out the dictionary, Bill. Webster's New World Dictionary defines "irregardless" as an non-standard or humorous adjective or adverb meaning "regardless." I learned of that following a recent usage where someone else complained. It may be a non-standard word, but it is a word nonetheless.

This is a warning notice to all in radio land about a test equipment company located in Auburn, KY. They are Auburn Metrological Labs at 12345 Bowling Green Road, Auburn KY. 42206. Their number is 270 542-6000.

Based on information given to me by their General Manager, Ken Knowles, they would be able to repair my Cushman CE-50 that was having a receive problem. It generated fine and all pll were locking fine. They gave me an estimate of under $300.00 with a turnaround of about one week. I sent it to them for repair on February 24, 2001 based on this information. After a couple of months went by without even an acknowledgment of receiving it, I tried to contact them by telephone and email. Still I received no information on it and after numerous emails and a couple of letters, one being a legal demand letter, the unit showed up at my door with a 110.00 COD charge. After contacting the company I was advised that Ken Knowles was on vacation and the service manager was arrogant, rude and even hung up on me. If you value your equipment and it is in need of repairs or calibration, PLEASE do Not send it to them. You will regret it.

My options, against them, are not exhausted but I would rather have never had the problem to begin with. It has the tendency to taint all repair facilities. This outfit was recommended by a person from one of the amateur news groups. I hope I have prevented any grief for others by this post. Thanks for listening to my ranting. 73's Don Smith KB6GQA

Sorry Donald, I really do not understand your need to express your views here. As I read your post you paid $110 when they estimated "under $300". We have your side of the story and I do believe you version, but I think it is fair to have the other side. I am involved in servicing and while perhaps 95% of all repairs are straightforward, some do go wrong. I'm not really trying to give excuses, but some of the problems I have encountered include.
Leaving a message at the contact phone number regarding repair and they do not pass it on (they will never admit this later).
Wrong phone number supplied.

No response to phone calls (or message left). Please understand I may have 50 repairs at any one time and I can not call each client 5 times daily (work it out).
Email can be impossible. I often receive over 300 messages per day. How can I read or replay to them all and still have time to repair your radio?

I have also hung up on callers. Some can never see reason.
No doubt others have had bad servicing experiences, but many will have good ones. We will always hear the complaints.

Best Regards
Neville

Dear Neville,

If you are as busy as you say, you owe it to your customers - and yourself - to hire help... if only office help, to keep open the lines of communications between you and your customers.

The key word here is service! To do this, you must be able to take a true interest in your customer's concerns, then make every effort to satisfy them. After all, you are in the business of offering a service - not a bad experience.

Methinks the service folks who have attitudes similar to yours_are_part of the problem; it's always the other guy's fault - never yours. Have you ever considered the possibility that_you_may be the one who is lacking reason? In any event, hanging up on a customer is as un-professional as you can get!

In the final analysis - when your service business fails - you will have no one to blame but yourself! I hope you come to your senses before that happens...

Hello Neville,

Unfortunately, I cannot accept your justifications... obviously you either reside in a well populated area - else you would have run out of customers by now - or you exaggerate the time you've been in business... without any office help!

In no way would I work in someone's shop again... I moved past that 30 years ago when I went back to school for my degree. At that time I was the national service manager for a well known international corporation.

As far as my business background, it is extensive...

It's obvious you see nothing wrong with your business attitude, therefore I see no reason to continue this thread. Good Luck!

Paul,

In arenas everywhere, there are juveniles, adults and every shade in between. A ham for nearly 50 years, I cannot speak for or about all hams, because I've only operated on a small portion of the spectrum with a miniscule part of the technology.

The question of stereotyping answered, I'd like to point out:

1. The FCC now has a regulator who means business.

2. Hams still serve the public in times of emergency.

3. The allotted spectrum, which is the prize, has been increasing.

4. In an interconnected world, hams have the privilege of communicating without having to rely on others.

5. In comparison to yesteryear, the equipment you can buy is rife with masterpieces.

6. More accomplished people than ever are hams, since the median age is now in the forties.

7. In a world increasingly loathing towers, you can still, in many situations, erect a substantial tower, buttressed by federal law.

8. In the face of dire predictions of doom, ham radio's future appears secure.

Oh, no. Lets not get into another dictionary debate about the meaning of a word, Bill. The last one went on for weeks. :-)

It may be a non-standard word, but it is a word nonetheless (commonly used around the country - much to the dismay of the English

Subject: Why Doesn't It Taste Sweet?

In a biology class, the Professor was discussing the high glucose levels found in semen. Roger Anon raised his hand and asked, "If I understand, you're saying there is a lot of glucose, as in sugar in semen?"

"That's correct," responded the Professor, going on to add statistical info.

Raising his hand again, Roger asked, "Then why doesn't it taste sweet?"

After a stunned silence, the whole class burst out laughing, the poor Roger's face turned bright red, and as he realized exactly what he had inadvertently said (or rather implied), he picked up his books without a word and walked out of class ... and never returned.

However, as he was going out the door, the Professor's reply was classic.

Totally straight-faced he answered Roger's question, "It doesn't taste sweet because the taste-buds for sweetness are on the tip of your tongue and not the back of your throat."

Gun Control Date: Wed, 15 Aug 2001 17:34:44 Subject: A message from Australia Hi Yanks, I thought you all would like to see the real figures from Down Under. It has now been 12 months since gun owners in Australia were forced by a new law to surrender 640,381 personal firearms to be destroyed by our own government, a program Costing Australia taxpayers more than $500 million dollars. The first year results are now in:

Australia-wide, homicides are up 3.2 percent; Australia-wide, assaults are up 8.6 percent; Australia-wide, armed robberies are up 44 percent (yes, 44 percent)!

In the state of Victoria alone, homicides with firearms are now up 300 percent. (Note that while the law-abiding citizens turned them in, the criminals did not and criminals still possess their guns!)

While figures over the previous 25 years showed a steady decrease in armed robbery with firearms, this has changed drastically upward in the past 12 months, since the criminals now are guaranteed that their prey is unarmed. There has also been a dramatic increase in break-ins and assaults of the elderly.

Australian politicians are at a loss to explain how public safety has decreased, after such monumental effort and expense was expended in "successfully ridding Australian society of guns." You won't see this data on the American evening news or hear your governor or members of the state Assembly disseminating this information. The Australian experience proves it. Guns in the hands of honest citizens save lives and property and, yes, gun-control laws affect only the law-abiding citizens.

Take note Americans, before it's too late!

Paul,

Thanks for your kind response. Tongues wag about 5 Mhz as a potential ham band. Those of us who have operated 3.9 Mhz and 7.2 Mhz are thrilled by the prospect of propegation on 5 Mhz, should spectrum there be carved out for us.

Always a problem, towers have become more difficult with the advent of restrictive covenants and cellular telephone. As you point out, the highest hurdle can well be the XYL.

Obviously, if you agree to keep your property tower-free and/or antenna-free, you seal your own fate. Zoning and local jurisdictions are scrutinizing towers more than ever; however, many know very little about legality.

I have always taken the position of erecting my tower as of right and seeing what happens. Anxiety fills the initial period, as neighbors look up with anger and surprise on their faces. There isn't a time when I don't have words with some neighbor, but I have always cooperated to eliminate interference.

On legality, the ARRL is expert, citing PRB-1, the federal pre-emption rule. PRB-1 calls on state and local jurisdictions to give "reasonable accomodation" to federally licensed hams in the erection of their antennas. However, "reasonable accomodation," when litigated, can well be decided adversely.

While there is one ham here in Miami-Dade County who pulls a building permit for his hundred foot tower, most proceed successfully as I.
(Mine is a 70 foot self-supporting Tri-x tower next to the front door.)

As to XYL's, that is a tough one. I've always considered the privilege to erect a tower as basic as the First Amendment, U.S. Const. If my Wife ever interfered with my tower, that would have gone right to the heart of marriage. Towers can be beautiful in my view. Even if viewed as unaesthetic, my privilege to erect would outweigh my spouse's opinion. However, let not my opinion control, as this subject differs depending on marriage.

Within this NG are hams with diverse knowledge on any of the subjects you may need answers. I know they're only too happy to help.

Neville,

I think you miss the point. If the person doing the service quotes that the work will be done in a week or whatever, then misses it by a factor of 10, then the person did not live up to the agreement. The man's point is correct, you are in a service business. Deliver the service that you commit. If you tell people if will take months at half the price, then so be it if that is what they accept. No one appreciates a commitment that cannot or is not, delivered. And yes, in some cases, I would pay more to receive good service. Poor service at half the price is no deal in my book.

THE PY0T STORY. Vieira, PY1LVF, provided OPDX with the following story and information on his recent Trindade operation. This press release has been edited for publication. He writes: "We (operators Vieira/PY1LVF and Ricardo/PY1VOY) arrived in Rio after a short stop in Vitoria where we decided to get off the ship and take a plane. The ship is still scheduled to arrive in Rio with the entire crew next Saturday. Equipment and antennas remain in the ship. I realize that some information should be spread out to avoid any misunderstanding and/or confusion as follows:
The ship arrived at the island on schedule August 7th at 1900z, but we were not allowed to disembark (not even the militaries) because of the strong winds and heavy rains. We stayed overnight on the ship to start on the next day, August 8th. We finally took a helicopter at 1000z, and the trip did not last more than 5 minutes to step onto the island.

Equipment arrived after us, trip by trip.
The first day was tough, windy, cold and raining most of the day. We felt some weather improvements on the next day but not in terms of wind intensity. At least there were no more raining, and the temperature was higher than the previous day. Unfortunatelly, we had to close down the station's operation 5 hours before departure. All the equipment was scheduled to go back to the ship in the morning. A break from the Island was celebrated with cocktails, and we departed during the afternoon. We actually had to use the boat to get back to the ship, which was a very dangerous experience but we got back safely to the ship. The actual dates of the operation were: August 8th, 2001 (first QSO at 1401z) through August 10th, 2001 (Last QSO at 1130z). The PT0T and ZX0Z call were authorized by the ANATEL while we were already on the island despite our use of the callsign homecall/PY0T. We did not want to loose time while waiting for the special callsign authorization. 4000 QSOs were made with 80 countries on 40-10 meters. Unfortunately, our antenna tuner did not work well on 12m and this the only band left blank. For QSLs, PY1LVF (Vieira) will be handling this task. It will take about 2 to 3 weeks to have all cards printed out. He expects to start mailing out cards in mid September. Cards via the bureau will be accepted, but since PY1 Bureau is running very slow on sending and receiving cards, we recommend to use direct if you need the country for your DXCC. Cards via Bureau usually take more than a year to receive. There are a few PY1 hams who have already sent cards direct to the destination bureau to avoid loosing and/or taking that delay.
We may have some more information to provide to whoever is interested to know about the trip, the operation and the island. I understand that many hams were not able to make a QSO since the operation just took 2 days. We hope we can keep this door open with the Brazilian Navy so that, not only us, but other groups can make many 2 days operations and give the opportunity to those hams that need the country for the first time."

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
Alex, PA1AW, reports as of August 13th, that all direct 5A24PA QSL requests have been answered and are in the mail. The 5A24PA logs are available at: http://dx.qsl.net
Also linked at: http://www.qsl.net/pa1aw (QSL section)

Don Field, G3XTT, D68C Publicity Officer, reports that Phil, G3SWH, states the D68C QSLing situation is as follows: "Cards are being processed in the order in which they are received. Direct requests are being dealt with first; after that bureau and E-mail requests will be answered. So far I have confirmed 10,000 QSOs. We are making good progress but please do remember that the D68C team made 168,000 QSOs with over 45,000 unique calls. Please do not send duplicate requests or E-mail chasers to G3SWH. This just slows down the whole process."
You can check if your contacts are in the log by accessing the D68C log server at: http://www.dxbands.com/comoros

Reports indicate that Jairo, HK5MQZ, states that Malpelo Island QSL card (HK5MQZ/0M) will be printed next week, and they will start replying within the next 30 days (in the order the QSLs were received). Please be patient.

Dave, VA3RJ, reports that an on-line log search for TY0CDX (Benin) is now working at: http://perso.wanadoo.fr/f5cwu/htm/logty.htm

Gary, W5FI (aka XX9TFI), informs OPDX that he has set up a Web page for his recent XX9TFI operation and is available at the following address: http://www.mdxa.org/w5fi-xx9.html
He states that currently it is a basic page with some pictures of Macau, the station, and Gary. There will be more details and many more pictures up later. The page will provide some interesting information, and eventually it will be a resource to others who want to get licensed in Macau.

Zik, YT1HA, member of the YU1AAV radio group, informs OPDX that QSLs for YZ1V go to YU1AAV. YZ1V is active in almoust every contest. QSL via the bureau or "Radio Sekcija Kozara", Jurija Gagarina 210, YU-11 070 Novi Beograd, Yugoslavia. Also QSLs for YU70K (1994-95), YU50AAV (1995) and 4N140T (1996) can be sent to the same address. QSLs for 4N140T can also be sent direct via YU1SB: Slavko Bozic, J.Gagarina 196/50, 11070 Novi Beograd, Yugoslavia. Zik also mentioned that about 5000 QSL cards were sent out via the bureau.

RA3, EUROPEAN RUSSIA. Ron, W6OM, is on a business trip again to Moscow and St. Petersburg, Russia. He will be active on 80/40 meters CW with his usual RA3/W6OM callsign each night. QSL to W6OM.

S2, BANGLADESH. Mr. SHIN will operate as S21YH again from 1800z of August 21st, to 1759z of August 28th. He will mainly use 7-24 MHz bands with CW (QRS) and SSB. QSL via 7M4PTE with a SASE to the following mailing address: Mr. SHIN, Makoto, 2-3-18, Naritanishi, Suginami-Ku, Tokyo 166-0016, JAPAN.

Look for special event station EO10G to be active August 20-28th to celebrate 10 years of Independence for the Ukraine. QSL via UR7GG: Victor Tkachenko, P.O.Box 73, Kherson 73000, UKRAINE.

Look for special event station UM9AA to be active August 27th through September 5th to celebrate 10 years of independence. The 1st of September is the Independence Day of the Republic of Uzbekistan. Activity will be on all bands. QSL via UK9AA: P.O. Box 58, Tashkent 700000, Uzbekistan.

2040. CwType 1.10 is released!

Hello, All!

CwType 1.10 was published at http://www.dxsoft.com and

http://www.hamport.com

It is the terminal program for CW-operators. You can transmit both from the keyboard and from the paddle connected to a joystick or LPT connector. While operating in paddle iambic mode sending (the memory of a unit of the symbol) is possible. The handle of the transceiver (PTT and CW keying) is made through one of the COM- or LPT-ports. Can cooperate with RZ4AG AALog logger.

CwType Versions History

V1.10
A bug was fixed. ~[rx] , `[rx] and `[pa] macrosequences didn't work when "User-defined Charset" option was selected.
The "Setup->Beacon Off at Paddle Press" option was made.
CwType can get data from another software to transmit now.
Data exchange can be made by DXSOFTEX.DLL library.
See http://www.dxsoft.com/dxs-exch.zip for details.
V1.05
A minor bug was fixed. The program did not restored saved speed when inter-letter space was not equal three.
The "Setup->OnTop" menu item is used in place of "OnTop" button now.
The "Setup->Iambic Mode" menu item is used in place of "OnTop" button now.
New "Beacon" button switch on beacon mode now. In this mode Alt-F12 macro is executed periodically. The period is defined by the regulator on the left of the "Beacon" button. The shortcuts for "Beacon" button are Alt-B and Ctrl-B. The macrosequences ~[bon] and `[bon] switch beacon mode on, the macrosequences ~[boff] and `[boff] switch beacon mode off.
The macrosequences ~[lsN] and `[lsN] can be used to select inter-letter space
now. There N is desured space in dots.
V1.04
User can select charset of transmitted symbols now.
User-defined charset can be used also ("Setup->User-defined Charset").
In this case charset is defined by simple text file.
See example in SAMPLE.CWT file.
When the "TX On at keyboard press" MOX option is enabled, a transmitter is switched on if at least two symbols was entered.

Bill -- the origins of the word Ham is probably lost to the mists of history, although there are several opinions at URL:
http://ac6v.com/humors.htm#ORG73

Origin of the Word "HAM" -- VERSION I -- via Gerry Crenshaw, WD4BIS Origin of the Word "HAM" -- VERSION II -- From The ARRL
Origin of the Word "HAM" AND "LID" -- VERSION IV

I favor the ARRL version at URL:
http://www.arrl.org/whyham.html

""Ham: a poor operator. A 'plug.'"

That's the definition of the word given in G. M. Dodge's The Telegraph Instructor even before radio. The definition has never changed in wire telegraphy. The first wireless operators were landline telegraphers who left their offices to go to sea or to man the coastal stations. They brought with them their language and much of the tradition of their older profession.

In those early days, spark was king and every station occupied the same wavelength--or, more accurately perhaps, every station occupied the whole spectrum with its broad spark signal. Government stations, ships, coastal stations and the increasingly numerous amateur operators all competed for time and signal supremacy in each other's receivers. Many of the amateur stations were very powerful. Two amateurs, working across town, could effectively jam all the other operators in the area.
When this happened, frustrated commercial operators would call the ship whose weaker signals had been blotted out by the amateurs and say "SRI OM THOSE #&$!@ HAMS ARE JAMMING YOU."

Amateurs, possibly unfamiliar with the real meaning of the term, picked it up and applied it to themselves in true "Yankee Doodle" fashion and wore it with pride. As the years advanced, the original meaning has completely disappeared.

merely mispelled the word.

I have an Icom mobile at home connected to an Astron PS. In the 2m band, when I key up with anything more than a few watts, all the speakers in the house emit a loud buzzing noise. The meter on my radio also bounces up and down. What could be causing this?? It appears that the radio isn't really xmitting.

Thanks.

Woe is us .. our Marriott-esque room at Huntsville Hamfest is not conducive to setting up a receiver, so we are not able to listen to The Great Liberty Net tonight.

Twice-fired FCC employee wanted by Federal Communications Commission for violations of Part 97. George F. Arsics, Jr., ex K1QKJ, AB4ZV, and currently W2ZB, is wanted by the FCC for multiple repeat violations of part 97 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. As you will recall this is the ex-Powder Springs FCC employee who was caught by his co-workers jamming KV4FZ on 14.313 in a drunken stupor, and promptly fired. Since that time Arsics has been directly involved with the jamming, stalking, and harassment of several amateurs through a group known as the "Goodfellows". Other accomplices of Arsics in this activity have been N4CND, WB2OTK (call revoked), N4XCV (call revoked), KA9BSD, KK9G, and N9PGE. Arsics lost his home at 2571 Bethany Lane in a last minute sale to avoid foreclosure earlier this year. Thus his FCC ULS data is fraudalent. Arsics has done this in the past, once listing the retirement home where his father passed on his 610. This enables him to freely jam other amateurs on HF with no fear of revocation. According to part 97, and we quote,
" ?97.23 Mailing address.
Each license grant must show the grantee's correct name and mailing address. The mailing address must be in an area where the amateur service is regulated by the FCC and where the grantee can receive mail delivery by the United States Postal Service. Revocation of the station license or suspension of the operator license may result when correspondence from the FCC is returned as undeliverable because the grantee failed to provide the correct mailing address."

If you know the actual physical location of the station owned by George Arsics, Jr. used to jam and stalk other hams, please report this information to your local FCC Field Office or contact Riley Hollingsworth, Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement at rholling@FCC.gov.

Ain't some of this stuff ironic?

From: KC8JBO (kc8jbo@msn.com)
Subject: Poor, poor Jimmy, w4AMP what a LID!
Newsgroups: rec.radio.amateur.misc
Date: 1999/12/16

Poor, poor, neurotic W4AMP. He suffers from severe mental problems as evidenced by his latest posting and on-air episodes. I suppose he's off his medication, and back on the "street medicines." You have to feel sorry for the guy, having been a loser for his whole life. And usually, Dimwitted Jimmy brings problems upon himself. His latest substandard English postings mark a new low for the boy. If he didn't leave any doubts about his mental condition, he shined a spotlight on his many flaws with each and every post from his malocculated mouth. Of course, this is the same guy who yelled crap at Oris Grimm from a safe distance at a hamfest. His posts are ripe with malapropisms, and reflect his education or lack thereof. His preponderance for prevarication is quite known. O' Brainless never lets the facts get in the way of his lies. His continual spamming of this newsgroup will be the cause of his own downfall. His operating procedures on amateur radio will result in the loss of his license. His use of profanity and qrming are legendary on 14.313 and 75 meters. Jimmy is beyond redemption.

Oh, Jimmy.....<PLONK!>

It also lacked high-end Hallicrafters receivers in mint condition. I didn't see a single NIB / NOS SX-88 in the whole place.

Was it just me or was business a little off this time ? I only saw 2 guys in the HRO exhibit, and they were managing quite well. Seems like last year they had 4 guys and they were all too busy moving merchandise to answer questions. Ditto for The Ham Station.

And I didn't see Henry Allen.
Or the guy who sells the MDM5 screwdrivers.
Rosewood's exhibit looked a LOT smaller.
I didn't see RT Systems. (?) (I know .. but they still sell control software for several popular radios.)
Etc etc. (?)

Still a good fest. Worth another look next year, for sure. The 6 of us had a GREAT time. What's not to love about a town that has both a Landry's AND a Copeland's. (Yes we did, and will probably do so again next year, Lord willing.)

So whats wrong with that, its the Truth. All there saying is Prime RF Spectrum isnt being used and they are correct, hopefully the FCC will take a closer look at things and do whats right and put the Spectrum to good use.

I said a while back that the main objective of this 'easy path to HF' was to clean out the V/UHF bands and put everyone on DC where there is not such a demand.

At which point the FCC in a move of the magic wand will decree that since they are not being used much anymore, we will 'reassign them'.

Watch and see.

In the most recent MRT issue, an editorial suggests public safety should go back to High-band frequencies because of 800 interference issues but ignores current incumbent public safety users in that band. It's a case of someone making a broad statement that might only make sense in a unique case he is familiar with. Although 2 meters wasn't specifically mentioned, If such an idea ever sold, the sliver of Amateur allocations would innevitably be coveted again.

There are numerous factors to be considered for selecting any band/mode/frequency/system and it is rediculous to think that there won't be numerous advantages and disadvantages with any selection.

The fact remains that growth is responsible for many migrations from older Public Safety Hi-band operations to trunking systems and often involved re-use by other less intensive Public Safety uses by the same jurisdiction. In addition, the larger trunked systems allowed numerous smaller communities and agencies in a common urban area to co-op dispatching to allow better privacy between departments, and still allow some level of interoperability where appropriate.

It is ludicrous to even suggest going backward, when the problems that brought us forward only get worse. It is also ludicrous to expect that a step forward won't have pitfalls of it's own or lead to better solutions in the future. LAPD's new Astro system is is a major step forward, even though complaints exist. It must be realized that for now, a big HT with a lot of electronics and a battery to match, might seem like a throwback to the days of the HT200 to the man in the field, but efforts put into the system today, to make an all digital HT only system highly reliable, may make it possible to buy an integrated Radio/Badge communicator to work the system instead of buying a replacement battery.

It occurs to me that (at least in growing urban centers) co-oping dispatch services and intelligent systems that allow higher traffic loads While spreading out the costs may be one answer, but many more rural communities with a more personal approach to Public Safety, may have more traditional options available.

2104. Restructuring

Lets face it. restructuring is here to stay, it is not going to go away. For all those hams that cry about the “Dumbing down” (Their words) of ham radio. Get over it, the world of Amateur Radio is changing. After WERK 2003 it is more likely than not that CW will be gone as a requirement for HF privileges. Evan the ARRL is not going to oppose CW as a requirement at WERK 2003. Of course the ARRL want’s the FCC to maintain the 5 wpm requirement for US hams. I have seen posted in the New Group an opinion that new people are getting into ham radio, but in small numbers. This may be true, but from what I have seen, these new hams are all over 40, and in most cases over 50. With new blood we should be looking at recruiting younger people, by younger I mean under 12 years of age. The club I am member of has over 120 members, Only about a dozen are under 50, of these only 3 are under 21. Of course our club recently started seeking out younger people a short time ago, some thing more club should do. As the OLD Guard dies off in the 10 0r 20 years we will see a very large drop in the number of hams. To bring people into ham radio we are competing with the internet and cell phones. Most people do not realize that cell phones will not work in a large disaster, we have seen this happen in the past. Instead of complaining about restructuring, get off your buts and get into the community and recruit new people into ham radio. The ARRL can only do so much.
Every club in the United States should participate in events like KIDS DAY, of course it would be nice if the ARRL would make it easy to find the KIDS DAY info the ARRL web site, I new it was there but it took almost and hour to find it (The ARRL needs a new webmaster). Our club participated in KIDS DAY last June and got a great response.
Another place to recruit is the Boy Scouts, contact your local Boy Scout Council regarding their Venturing program. This is a program for all youth 14 through 20 years of age, male or female. My club is in the process of setting just a program, it is not easy, but not everything in life is. For all those hams that can not live with restructuring for their selfish reasons, take up stamp or coin collecting, Amateur radio does not need you as representatives of this hobby.

Drinkwater actually. Just like the twins from Laverne & Shirley. The

NOW AVAILABLE

Two New Programs "DIFFRAC1.exe & DIFFRAC2.exe"

Radio propagation by diffraction over obstructions.

DIFFRAC1 covers diffraction over one obstruction and DIFFRAC2 covers diffraction over two successive obstructions.

If your QTH is stuck in a hole or in a valley surrounded by mountains, getting out of it over the tops may not be as difficult as you think.

Or if you are in the street on one side of a city building block and you wish to communicate with the other side at 2GHz what power or antenna gain do you need?

These programs may not be exact but they will put you on the right track. Who cares about a 6dB uncertainty when the next vehicle passing by knocks 20 dB off the signal? Or does it put it on ?

If you have a need for an SMA-TO-BNC antenna adapter that is custom made to fit and protect your H.T. or scanner radio, I have the solution.

Adapter allows you to:
Quickly change antennas to base,mobile or different style use.
Use the more popular and wider selection available of BNC antennas.
Prevent chassis connector wear or from coming loose due to antenna changes.

Adapter features:
Gold plated contacts with a teflon insulator.
A low profile design with a rubber covering for a factory antenna look.
The rubber base seals to the top of the radio with no spacers needed for moisture and dirt protection.
The base also provides an excellent support for any length of antenna or application.
No need to remove adapter once installed to make a quick and safe antenna change.

Sizes to fit radio models:
Yaesu: VX-5, VX-1, FT-50-R, VX-10, VX-150, VX-110, VXA-100, VXA-120
Icom: IC-T8A, IC-T81A, IC-Q7A, IC-R2
Kenwood: TH-D7, TH-G71
Alinco: DJ-V5
Radio Shack: HTX-200, HTX-400, HTX-245
Aor: AR-16

Previewed in the May 2000 Issue of CQ Magazine, and the Nov. 2000 Issue of QST Magazine.

This should be a simple question, I am a ham in California (Western United States) On several occasions while on HF. I have heard stations in Europe call for stations in the West coast on the United States. While trying to work these stations I keep hear hams from the Eastern US and from other states East of the Mississippi River. These are by no means new hams. Not when they have a one by two call. What is it that they do not understand when a station is calling for West coast Station only, Some time they are calling for Ca. Stations. Why is that hams in New York, Minnesota, Ohio, Michigan, and Texas, to name a few, insist on working them anyway? Maybe we need to have a geography exam to get on HF. Or could it be that these hams are just lids and do not really care about anyone be them selves. Just a though. I hear hams on the Pacific calling for East coast stations, I do not jump in.

Hi John -- my experience is that when the DX asks for "west" (east) coast USA only, most DXers will stand by. I recall numerous pileups where the only "west coast" was me!! A few will call out of context - some of these are not hearing the DX very well (if at all), some are desperate, and a few think "all is fair in love, war, and DX". These are the same folks that spit in church! Although we (the USA) are not as courteous as the JA's - all told we do pretty well IMHO. And keep in mind a W1 may very well live in Los Angeles, but most will append a /W6. Some DX operators will note the errant callers and not work them at all - which makes a good case for listening to the DX's wishes. With the vanity call option, a 1x2 call these days, does not necessarily denote an OT. And no additional courtesy oath is required for Extra class.

When I was overseas and able to operate on Ham Radio I discovered the only cure for SOME of the lids was to make a 'blacklist'. Then inform the guy he is on it. And don't work him.

What is a 'blacklist' you ask? Someone that calls out of turn, tailends when asked not to. Etc. You know the ones.

I used to run phone patches for US Citizens working for a US company in Saudia Arabia. There was a special agreement between the US and the Saudi government to allow third party traffic with this station only. The operator there would inform all stations on frequency that if they would stand by until the patches were finished he would then work as many stations at time permitted. It was incredible at how rude so many US hams could be and would call during these patches to try and get a contact. The operator there finally had to resort to a blacklist and the would do as stated below, inform the idiot he was on the list and would not be worked.

Hello all. I passed my Tech Plus exam back in '94 and got very involved in amateur radio, mostly in 2m, 70cm and 10m. I really enjoyed operating a shack, and never got into mobiling much. I loved listening in on lots of QSO's and I would get involved and talk once in a while.

Anyway, since '97 I have fallen out of the hobby. I was a kid living with my parents in '94, and I moved out in '97. I have been living in apartments ever since, and find it hard to get little indoor antennas to work any good. I finally gave up, and basically have been inactive for four years.

Lately, however, I have been interested in getting my General, especially since it's only a 5 wpm code test. I have a few questions.

Does anyone work an HF shack out of an apartment? Is it possible? What kind of antennas are successful (if any)? On big obstacle I run into in apartments is RFI from computers (not only mine, but my neighbor's), and I fear that I will bleed RF into everyone's phones and TV's due to the close quarters. Any advice? I sure miss my antenna farm that I once had.

Also, I just moved to Washington state from Indiana. I updated my address with the FCC, but they did not assign me a new call sign. Do I have to give up my N9 call and get a 6 call? I can't seem to find the regulation concerning this in my FCC Rule Book.

Thanks,

Scott Keller

No. When one moves, one has not been required to change callsigns for some 25+ years. It is expected that you keep your current call since you didn't ask for a new one.

Washington State is in area 7, not 6.

Far worse than these guys are the lids who tune up right on TOP of the DX.
Them, and the guys who keep saying their call sign over and over even when the DX station is transmitting. I suspect these guys can't even hear the DX, and are just hoping to get lucky with a spot they saw on the cluster.

You should have heard it in Europe on 80meter DX window. It was normally the stations to the East that were the worse. I was in Germany at the time.

* EDITOR'S SPECIAL NOTE (by KB8NW): I know I said that "There will 'NOT' be an OPDX bulletin for August 27th", but due to some significant and important announcements I decided to send one out anyway before going on vacation (Call me "dedicated to my readers" or "crazy" as my wife would say!)

DXCC COUNTRY/ENTITY REPORT: According to the AR-Cluster Network for the week of Thursday, 16/August, through Thursday, 23/August there were 228 countries active. Countries available: 3A, 3B8, 3D2, 3DA, 3V, 3W, 4J, 4L, 4S, 4W, 4X, 5A, 5B, 5H, 5N, 5R, 5U, 5V, 5X, 5Z, 6W, 6Y, 7Q, 7X, 8P, 8R, 9A, 9G, 9H, 9J, 9K, 9M2, 9M6, 9N, 9V, 9Y, A4, A5, A6, A7, A9, AP, BV, BY, C3, C6, C9, CE, CE0A, CE0Z, CE9, CM, CN, CP, CT, CT3, CU, CX, D2, D4, D6, DL, DU, E4, EA, EA6, EA8, EA9, EI, EK, EL, EP, ER, ES, ET, EU, EX, EY, EZ, F, FG, FJ, FK, FM, FO, FR, FW, FY, G, GD, GI, GJ, GM, GU, GW, H4, H40, HA, HB, HB0, HC, HI, HK, HK0/a, HL, HP, HR, HS, HV, HZ, I, IS, J2, J3, J5, J6, J7, J8, JA, JT, JW, JX, JY, K, KG4, KH0, KH2, KH6, KH8, KL, KP2, KP4, LA, LU, LX, LY, LZ, OA, OD, OE, OH, OH0, OJ0, OK, OM, ON, OX, OY, OZ, P2, P4, PA, PJ2, PJ7, PY, PY0F, PZ, R1FJ, S2, S5, SM, SP, SU, SV, SV5, SV9, T2, T32, T7, T8, T9, TA, TF, TG, TI, TJ, TK, TL, TR, TT, TU, TY, TZ, UA, UA2, UA9, UK, UN, UR, V3, V4, V5, V6, V7, V8, VE, VK, VK9N, VP2E, VP5, VP8, VP9, VQ9, VR, VU, XE, XT, XU, XX9, YB, YK, YL, YN, YO, YU, YV, Z2, Z3, ZA, ZB, ZC4, ZD7, ZD8, ZF, ZK1/s, ZL, ZP, ZS

* PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations. As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

3D2, CONWAY REEF. Raymundo, YS1RR, reports that he received a phone call from Hrane, YT1AD, and was told he couldn't get landing authorization for KH1 this time (see KH1 below), so he will go again to Conway Reef in October. Team members will be YT1AD, YU7AV, YZ7AA, YU1AU, YU1DX, Z32ZM, YT6A (possibly), RZ3AA and K1LZ. One member of their team is also a journalist. The team will leave from Fiji on September 30th, on the ship "MV Princess 2" and arrive on Conway Reef on October 1st. They should be active on the same day and then for the next 10 days (October 10th). The callsigns will be announced the first day of the operation (one call for CW and one call for SSB/RTTY). Their license is valid until December 31, 2002, and they estimate the cost of the operation is approx. 45000 USD. All donations are welcomed via YS1RR. Two stations will be active on 160-6 meters, including the WARC bands, around the DX windows. Pilots stations for this DXpedition will be YU1AA and VEJEXY. QSL CW QSOs via YT1AD: Dr. Hrane Milosevic, 36206 Vitanovac, YUGOSLAVIA.QSL SSB/RTTY QSOs via Z32AU: Dragan Kostevski, P.O. Box 35, 6000 OHRID, MACEDONIA, Europe. A Web site will be available after September 10th, for "Conway Reef 2" operation at: http://www.kragujevac.co.yu/3d2

4W, EAST TIMOR. Jose, CT1EEB (aka VK8CS, 4W6EB, CU3/CT1EEB), informed the DX community that Amateur Radio won't be forgotten in East Timor now that the only active DXers in the Territory have left or are about to leave. Carlos Poinho, CU3FT, active DXer from the Azores Archipelago and a Telecom Tech. for the Portuguese Air-Force, is in Tour-of-Duty for UNTAET in Dili, Capital of East-Timor, and will try to be as active as possible with the callsign 4W/CU3FT. The license has just been received from the United Nations in New York, and the creditation procedures is in process by DXCC. Special attention will be given to the WARC bands and 6 meters, especially the upcoming F2 openings in October/November. Also, he will work with ETARA (East-Timor Amateur Radio Association) and the local authorities to set up a future licensing authority after East Timor receives its full independence. Jose will also help in introducing Amateur radio to the East-Timor nationals. QSL via Manager CT1EEB: Jose Emanuel Ribeiro de Sa, P. O. Box 79, P-3860 Estarreja, Portugal.

9E, ETHIOPIA. Silvio, IV3TRK, will be active as 9E1S Friday, August 24th through September 4th. Activity will be mainly CW. He will also be active on the low bands. The only problem is that his antenna for the Top Band is a simple T antenna because he doesn't have enough space to install a better antenna for reception. The RX conditions on the low bands in Ethiopia are very poor during this season (rainy season). E-mail sked can be made via: et3vsc@telecom.net.et
QSL via IV3TRK.

C6, BAHAMAS. Several MDXA members are planning to operate in the CQWW SSB Contest (October 27 - 28th) from C6A. They will be active the week before the contest (October 20th) with individual callsigns operating SSB, CW and perhaps some RTTY. They have rented the villa offered by Ken Helton, KC4SZE / C6AHN on Treasure Cay, Abaco Island (NA-080). This is the same QTH used by the C6AJX group for the 1999 CQWW CW Contest. Confirmed operators as of now are: Ernie - W5OXA/C6AKO, Randy - W5UE/C6ARB, Alan - N5PA, Stan - K5NY and Bernie - KK5EW. Details are still being worked out, so watch their web site for up to the minute information at: http://mdxa.org/c6a-2001.html

CN, MOROCCO. Al, NH7A, will be active in the CQWW SSB Contest as a Single Op/All Band entry as CN2AC. QSL via F6BEE. Also, F6BEE will be active in CQWW CW Contest as a Single Op/All Band entry as CN2JS. QSL via F6BEE.

IOTA NEWS.....
AF-004. Frank, DH5JG, will be on holiday and active from Lanzarote Island from August 29th until September 10th, signing EA8/DH5JG. He will work mostly on CW on 40-10 meters, with a focus on the WARC bands. However, he will also participate in the WAEDXC SSB Contest. He will use an IC-706, 100w, with a dipole. QSL via home callsign, bureau or direct CBA (on www.qrz.com).

EU-048. Didier, F5BJW, will be active from Ile de Groix, September 15-24th. Activity will be on 80-10 meters on SSB (100 watts) with dipole and GP antennas. Callsign will be TM2A. QSL via F5BJW. Look for info and photos after the expedition on the Web page: http://castres.dx.gang.free.fr/

OC-142. Look for VK4HF to be active from Fraser Island, August 27-31st. Activity will be on 80-10 meters SSB. QSL via VK4HF.

KG4, GUANTANAMO BAY. Bill, W4WX, member of the Florida DXPedition Group (FDXPG), will be operating from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, September 7-14th as KG4DX (ex-KG4GC). He will be active on RTTY and some SSB along with activity on the WARC bands and 6 meters. QSL direct or via bureau to his home call.

KH1, BAKER AND HOWLAND ISLANDS. Hrane, YT1AD, states that they have "received provisional permit for disembarkation of our expedition" from the United States Fish and Wild Services, " and this is a main step for our activity."

KH3, JOHNSTON ATOLL. Just a reminder that Dan, KH6UW, will lead a group of four operators including AL7KC, W7TSQ and K7ZZ on a trip to Johnston Island (OC-023) from September 11-18th. The group will be active on 160-6 meters including the WARC bands using CW and SSB, using the callsign K3J.
Two 24-hour stations will be used, with a third activated as needed.
European contacts will be emphasized when band openings permit. In response to many requests, a six-meter station (with beacon) has been added to the group's capabilities. A web site, which will contain log checking, may be found at: http://www.qsl.net/k3j/>www.qsl.net/k3j/
Many people have contributed to the success of the trip, but special thanks goes to Force 12 for antenna support. QSL via AH6HN.

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
3B6RF QSL STATUS. Steve, N3SL, informs OPDX that they ran out of 3B6RF cards the weekend of August 11-12th. Rene and Christina (2 members of the 3B6RF team) drove to Germany and picked up more QSL cards (where Funk Amateur provided the printing). Steve received an E-mail Friday, August 17th, stating that 500 more QSL cards were mailed directly to him this past Wednesday, August 15th. The last batch of QSL cards took 12 days to arrive from Germany. Right now Steve has just over 200 cards waiting to be answered. He is presuming a significant number of people will wait until they know cards are coming out, then send for theirs, as these 200+ cards have arrived in the past 10 days or so. The day the new batch of blank QSLs arrive, they should be able to knock out the current pile in one evening. This includes those who QSLed via WF5E.

3Y0C QSL STATUS. Mac, WA4FFW, reports that 5000 3Y0C DX station QSL cards were mailed out August 17th. This did not include any stateside cards or bureau cards. They processed the DX cards first so as to give them some extra travel time in hope that they could be used for this year's submission. "It has been our goal to get the cards out in time to allow everyone to get them turned in before the September deadline." Stateside cards will be processed and mailed within the next two weeks. There are a lot of "NOT IN LOG", but they will check every one of these against the paper log before rejecting any request. The rework "NIL" verifications and bureau cards will be processed immediately following the stateside mailing. Joe/N4OL and Gene/WJ4T are assisting Mac with the QSL duty and things are going well and quick. They see no reason all stateside cards will not be mailed in two weeks. Please do not send E-mail inquiring or asking for special favors. They are processing as fast as they are capable of doing. They received the cards from the printer the first week of August and they have mailed over 5000 out to date. They can't respond to requests and process at the same time. Thank you for your help in this area. This first mailing does not include bureau cards, they will be processed after stateside cards. For those that did not send an SAE or envelope, these will get answered but after all the rest of the cards are mailed. Mac could not see delaying everyone's cards just to stop and fill in addresses. They will get answered along with the bureau cards. In regard to turning in the cards for this year's submission, they have not received any word from The ARRL as to the operation's approval. All documentation has been submitted.

CORRECTION. John, VE1JS, active from Brier Island (NA-127) should be QSLed via VE1JS, direct or via Bureau (not VE2JS as reported). His address is good in any callbook since 1999. All cards will be answered in the method that they are received!

VK0LD E-QSL (Good News!). Alan, VK6CQ (aka VK0LD), informs OPDX (in a long press release) that after having received several requests over the past few months for "valid" or "real" VK0LD QSL cards as well as suggestions as to how the existing VK0LD eQSL cards could be authenticated sufficiently for DXCC purposes, he has found an acceptable way to have the VK0LD eQSL valid for DXCC. It is IMPORTANT to read the following instructions from Alan to have your eQSL count for DXCC:
1) Anyone who had a valid QSO with VK0LD and downloaded a VK0LD eQSL card from the eQSL website who wishes to submit such a card to DXCC can forward the eQSL card to Alan for personal authentication.

2) Aaln will check the card against the original log and sign the reverse of the card, stamp it with a special VK0LD rubber stamp and return the card to sender. He would then suggest that the card be laminated by the sender.
The ARRL has advised Alan that this will be sufficient to make the VK0LD eQSL card valid for Macquarie Island according to the ARRL rules for DXCC accreditation. Cards should be sent to the following address and it is IMPORTANT that the envelope is clearly marked PRIVATE & CONFIDENTIAL: Alan Cheshire, c/o Station Engineer, West Coast Radio, PO Box 688, Mandurah, Western Australia 6210, AUSTRALIA. Please include a correct sized SAE and funds to cover return postage (ONE Greenback is sufficient to cover the A$1.50 for international mail from Australia).
Alan requests to Please:
1) DO NOT Send Australian Stamps (Australia Post now uses special international only stamps - other Australian stamps are no longer valid for international post out of Australia)
2) DO NOT Send IRC's. Half of the ones Alan has received in the past are not accepted for exchange by the Australia Post, either due to being incorrectly stamped at originating office or being more than one year old). All in all, IRCs are a general pain to redeem. He will therefore not reply to cards sent with IRCs.
3) He is not a member of the Wireless Institute of Australia and does not use the QSL Bureau.
4) DO NOT put VK0LD or any other callsign on the envelope.
5) There is no need to make a donation to Camp Qualityor the Children's Cander Hospital in Sao Paolo as these were a VK0MM/AX0LD thing.
Lastly, Alan's "complete" press release will be sent out to all OPDX InterNet Subscribers as an addtional bulletin.

Glyn, GW0ANA, QSL Manager for the ZD7K and ZD8K operations, informs OPDX that all direct QSL cards for their DXpedition have gone out as of August 18th. He is now working on the Bureau cards as they come in.

RI6, EUROPEAN RUSSIA. Ivan, UA6MF, informs OPDX that a group will be planning an island DXpedition to the Azov Sea. Activity will be from the RR 17-04 island group for the "Russian Robinson Award (RRA)". The callsign will be RI6LAP as well as their home callsigns: UA6LGR/p, UA6LAM/p and UA6MF/p. Operations will be on August 24-26th. Activity will be on 40-10 meters CW/SSB. QSLs for RI6LAP is OK via UA6MF, the bureau or direct to: Ivan. A. Gudima, P. Box 47, Rostov-on-Don, 344007, Russia.

SILENT KEY. Mac, WA4FFW, reports with deep sorrow of the passing of Joe Curlott, W4CTG. Many knew him as K5CTG before he changed his call to represent the 4th district as W4CTG. Joe lost a very quick 6 week fight with cancer and the swiftness was a shock to all. He was at Dayton this year and started having problems shortly after returning home. He became a Silent Key July 30. Many knew Joe as the Anchor and Beacon Station for 80 METER DXING. He gathered both Stateside and DX stations on 3772 kHz nightly for the past 16 years. Although he had worked and confirmed around 320 on that band, he was always there stirring up contacts for others to work. He was a gentleman and always willing to help someone work a new one on 80. He will be greatly missed.

SPECIAL EVENT. Look for special event station UM8LA to be active on all bands between August 27th and September 5th to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the independence for Uzbekistan. QSL via RW3RN:
Alex Kuznetsov.Box 57,Tambov-23,392023 Russia.

T2, TUVALU. Hiro, JA0SC, will be active as T22SC from Funafuti, August 23-30th. Activity will be on SSTV and RTTY. QSL via JA0SC, direct or via the bureau.

TI, COSTA RICA. Hide, JH8KYU (ex-3W2KYU/9M6HTT), will visit TI5KD's shack in Costa Rica from September 27th through October 2nd. The main purpose of his trip is to participate in the CQ/RJ RTTY Contest as a Single Op/All Band entry. The callsign used will be TI5U in the contest. Hide won the Oceanian low power record in that contest from KH0 last year. He wants to make many more contacts than last year's contest, so he will use some great antennas and a high power amplifier. Hide will also operate as TI5/JH8KYU on SSB/CW outside the contest. QSLs for both TI5U and TI5/JH8KYU go to Hide's CBA.

Z2, ZIMBABWE (QRP Safari Op). Harry, W6DXO, informs OPDX that he is pleased to announce, thanks through the courtesy of the Zimbabwe Amateur Radio Society, that he will be operating as Z2/W6DXO, September 27th through October 5th, from the Linkwasha Wilderness Camp, and the Victoria Falls Hotel both in Zimbabwe. Working conditions mandate QRP Ops. He will concentrate on 20 meters. QSL via W6DXO direct only.

2148. Yaesu VX-5R Lockup and Reset

Hi there,

I am new to the hobby and bought a Yaesu VX-5R HT. I have been extremely happy with it, but there have been a few occasions where the radio has locked up. The last time I reset the radio, it cleared the problem and I didn't lose any programming. This time, the display read OUT RANGE when it locked up. When I reset it, I lost everything. Oh my God, I was so pissed! So I have a few questions:

1) Is the Microprocessor Reset ([4(MG)DSP], [MR(SKP)SC], and [VFO(DW)SC] while turning on and then [F/W]) the only way to reset?

2) Any idea why I lost programming this time and not before?

3) What is the "Set Mode Reset" ([MR(SKP)SC] and [VFO(DW)SC] while turning on and then [F/W]) for?

4) What is the suggested software and cable to use so I don't go through this again?

Thanks, Steve

I have seen several code learning programs for computers advertised, I am wondering which is the best, easiest to configure, most flexible. I have studied the tech element and feel I can pass the test with ease, I am now getting ready to study the general element, and would like to get the code down.

I tried several morse instruction programs for the PC both freeware and I also purchased a couple.
I found that Morse Tutor Gold was far and away the best....it took me all the way to passing my Extra Class CW test back in 1995 which then was still 20 wpm.....

I have no hard feelings for those that recently passed Extra at 5 wpm.....the requirements changed and so be it...code speed is - NOT - the measure of a Ham. IMHO it is communications skills , on-the-air courtesy to all that and a helpful attitude that marks an operator as one that has " True Ham Spirit "

read in your manual about ARTS. it didn't lock up, it just kicked into arts and you had no idea how to get out of it. I thought the same thing myself when I first got mine.... if you just do a FW MR VFO it'll clear out the big menu thing but leave the memories alone.... read the manual. twice. trust me...

I have scrounged up a big quantity of .1 uF Polyester/Metal Film caps. These, according to the databook, are equal to ceramic disk caps in all uses. These are NOT NPO caps. Made by S+M Components.

How about 50 for $3 or 100 for $5.00 500 for $20.00 (they're abt 15 cents each from Mouser) I ship in a 4 by 7 padded envelope.

These are .1 uF, 10%, rated at 250v - New Stock, on paper tape, nice long leads. Good for bypass caps I am told. That's what I have used them for.

I still have BNC chassis connectors for 25 for $12.40

50 for $21.00
100 for $36.00
500 for $138.00

I also have:

LM7808CT voltage regulators. TO220 case. 5 for $4.50
LM7812T voltage regulators. TO220 case. 5 for $4.50

Little trim caps 3-30pF I have 25 to sell. How about $8.00 for all 25 inc shipping.

Let me know if you're interested. All prices are post paid to the USA.

I do accept Paypal and will ship to foreign address for additonal postage.

The group Scouting for All (S4A) has scheduled rallies around the nation through Saturday to protest last year's 5-4 Supreme Court decision that allowed the BSA to prohibit homosexuals from participating in its organization. This is the second year the group has organized such rallies. Please find the location of the rally nearest to you and participate this Saturday. Both you and America will be glad that you supported freedom of choice and religion for each and every Scout.

But when the east coast stations are giving 5X9 reports, that would mean that they do understand that the station they are working is not looking for east coast stations. As far as what cities they are in, I understand that they mayhave moved to the west coast from the east coast. I never assume a stations call sign has much to with where they are, I know quite a few hams that live out west who got their call signs while liveing in the east. The stations I hear are telling the DX stations that they are in New Youk, Ohio, Mich., Minn., and so on.
Of course it might help if the DX stations would tell he rude hams to

Bruce,

What if you had a son that is not allowed to participate in scouting because he is gay? Is that a fair situation? Many your gay adolescents committ suicide because they are ostracized by society. Would you want that to happen to your son. or for that matter any boy?

Gay people are not gay because they want to be gay. It is caused by brain chemistry. You should supports gays in the Boy Scouts. You may ultimately save a life.

Let's g4et out there and show that amateur radio operatior support gays in the Boy Scouts!!

Mind you, no one has the right to commandeer a frequency, specially when running an illegal phone patch. You must have known that commercial use of AR is not

Hi Keith,

I'm using the W5YI "HAM IT UP" software, (A bit expensive.) that is pretty good and very easy to configure. I also use Morse Academy which Best of luck to you. Despite claims to the contrary, it's actually

The patches were perfectly legal and there was no commercial traffic handled. The patches were simply company employees contacting their families back home in the states. Read what I wrote more carefully, I stated, there was an agreement between the FCC and the Saudi government to allow third party traffic with this amateur station. This went on for some time, if it had been illegal don't you think we would have heard from the FCC? So tell me, just what do you think was illegal about this third party traffic?

Gee, I'm so sorry you won't be able to get into the Boy Scouts to play around with the little boys. At least in that organization, for the short periods they're participating in the activities, those boys will be relatively safe from people like you. At least in that regard, we can all thank the Supreme Court for it's occasional good sense.

Friday night's UPR 6.900 at 9:00 was another classic.
All hot and mad and "i'm-not-gonna-take-it-anymore-pfhbbbltttt!"
Steve was on a rant about how the pay-triots out west are a bunch of wussies for not intervening to stop the BLM from shutting off the water supply at Klamath Falls, Or. In Steve's bizzare thought processes this western water issue is destined to be the next Waco ...or something else like it, despite the fact that the two are totally different situations in reality. (reality is something in short supply at UPR) He berated the local militia, and others, for not going in with trucks to crash the gates and other stuff and acts not worth mentioning.
Take a listen to this loon on 6.900 USB at 9PM Central Mon - Fri.
Hear it before UPR is B'cst from inside a rubber room

X-FLARE! Sunspot group AR9591 unleashed a powerful X5-class solar flare at 1645 UT (1245 EDT) on August 25th. The explosion also hurled a brilliant coronal mass ejection (CME) into space. The site of the explosion was near the Sun's southeastern limb, so the CME is not heading directly toward our planet. However, we might experience a glancing blow from the expanding cloud late Sunday or Monday. Above: This false-color movie captured by an extreme ultraviolet telescope aboard the Solar and Heliospheric Observatory shows today's explosion above sunspot 9591. Stay tuned for additional information.

Our dauhgter in law is an MD. She, like most medical professionals, dislike the term "nutz", or "crazy as a bedbug", but she agrees that for General Steve, regular medical terms are just not strong enough. She said this clown is a sad example of someone who needed help several years ago. There is a growning body of medical evidence that being "crazy" damges the brain.
In Steves case I suspect his brain is fried beyond repair.
I suspect the feds (asuming that good old Steve is not an plant), have wisely decided to allow him to rant on. At some point he will degenrate to the point where he can not keep the radio on the air.
Shortly thereafter he will be hauled off to the funny farm.
Or to the state hospital of psychiatry. Which was originaly named the Eastern State Lunatic Assylum. (They also have one in Western Ky)

Steve is constantly waiting for the next "Waco" to happen. He just can't wait for it to come about. It's apparent from his past rants that he was hoping he would be the next Randy Weaver. He's long taunted the FCC to come in and get him, saying that he is well armed. My guess is that he grows more and more frustrated day by day because the "evil gummint" isn't shooting "patriots" yet. He has been trying to instigate some "patriots" to rise up from his past rhetoric.

Only time will tell whether or not he ends up in the funny farm.

I contend that freedom of choice is what the Scouts do. They have the freedom to include or exclude....and the Gay Community should just butt out.
There comes a time when common sense should prevail....and Gay ScoutMasters and the Gay Agenda should take a back seat and shut up.
Face it....being queer is NOT mainstream every day life, despite the efforts of this vocal minority to make it seem otherwise. Gays only represent two percent of the community at large...yet they have the highest percentage of AIDS infection in the United States.
I wonder what Queer Nation would do if I were to demonstrate against them for being exclusive.....trilly-voiced little twinks that they are.

A lot of silent keys on that list. For those slightly younger in the audience (but not necessarily young) you can add Joe Walsh, musician entertainer formerly of the band "the Eagles", former baseball player Joe Rudi, numerous astronauts, night radio talk show host Art Bell.

If you are in the New York area, many may remember Jean Shepherd, a radio story teller, now a SK, K2ORS.

How about Hiram Percy Maxim, of ARRL fame, who was also an inventor, big into sound silencing, such as car mufflers and machine gun silencers?

I believe the current Jordanian king is also licensed (wonder who administered his test) but I don't know how active he is.

Governor George Pataki of New York is a former ham, and is supposedly thinking of becoming licensed again.

I've seen so many of these lists, some of them to be taken with a grain of salt. For example, the one at:

http://www.aesham/fun3.html

still lists WA7WYV, Andy Griffith, as the famous actor.
Obviously, it is not the famous actor, as WA7WYV is only 56 years old. He would not have played the sheriff of Mayberry when he was in his late teens.

Anyway, here are a few more:

http://www3.nbnet.nb.ca/daveh/celeb.htm
http://www.hamradio-online.com/notable.html http://www.nerc.com/~gjurrens/famous_hams.html

If you go to http://www.google.com and type in "famous hams" you can get a veritable plethora of lists! 8^)

I have one of the original IC-706 radios and have developed a problem with the 2m section. It fails to transmit on 2m when it's first turned on and the radio is cold. When the car sits in the sun for a while, I have no problem. This sounds like a cold solder joint to me and I've been told that it's a known problem with this vintage of the 706 but when I contacted Icom, they say they've never heard of such a problem. Has anyone else heard of this failure?

I too, am in the repair business and do not take lightly the ethics of repair. They had the equipment for almost a year and never even opened it up. They never responded to my requests for an update or sent me any kind of communications regarding the status of its repair. If you or I ever ran our business that way we would not be able to enjoy our good reputations. Don

Here are the rules you must accept in any service industry:

Never make excuses. The truth is the only answer that is ever acceptable.

The customer may not always be right, but you must treat him as if he is.

Respect and courtesy for your customers, workers, and suppliers are absolutely essential.

Never over-promise. If it's going to take a year, say so.

Never under-estimate. If it's going to take a grand to fix it, say so.

If you're so busy that you can't attend to the details of customer service, then you can't afford not to hire somebody who will take on that task.

If you point your finger at a customer and say 'He's the problem!' then note that while one finger's pointing at him, the rest are pointing back at you.

An argument occurs at the intersection of two jerks. You can avoid the argument by behaving in a non-jerk-like manner.

Deliver the unit as promised. If you can't get to it in the quoted time, contact the customer and explain. If he asks for it back, return it without hesitation, with an apology, and postage paid. It's worth it for good customer relations.

Your standard of service must be the same for all customers.
Do EVERY job to the highest standards and EVERY customer will be pleased and will deal with you again.

Last but not least, NEVER jump customer's equipment in line.
They come in first, they get serviced first. No customer's equipment should ever be set aside to do an expedited repair on another unit for a more important customer. No customer is any more or less important than any other because they're all paying you.

A little late in seeing this tread but I just got back from holidays.

The last three weeks I was DX (sorta) myself. Being OY/ and TF*/ was fun and it seems many (even Europe) consider OY and TF a real catch.
Most of the time as soon as I was spotted on the cluster I had a 9+20 pile up going from EU and when I wanted to listen for JA, W or anything else MOST people stood by. When someone would call out of turn I would point out that XX is not JA and that I would not work them.. yet. this worked 99.99% of the time.
Things got worse during 'normal' pile ups. When calling 'only station ending AA..' 10's would still call with anything but AA in their call.
Poiting out I would not continue until 'AA' was worked solved most problems but still stations who clearly know they have booming signals would call on top of the qso.
No matter how difficult it got I would always make sure I had the other stations call 100% even if that meant a standstill in QSOs for 5 minutes. repeated offenders would get worked but I marked them NIL in the log.
I had about 3 times when it would not work to control the pile, I then said I would QRT, since a few kept calling I gave a last warning and then QRT'ed. sorry for the good guys but that was the only way. I would start calling 5-10 KHz with a better controlable pile-up.

On a different note, I noted several stations who called me and when I called them back they would just keep on calling... I guess they just keep pressing their voicekeyer but fail to listen...

In nearly all cases, the standard response to an SOS is to notify the FCC of an illegal transmission. :-)

Now that we have the sarcastic answer, let's get down to reviewing mobile distress communication procedures as prescribed in International Radio Regulations Article 39:

The mobile station (vessel or aircraft) in distress first sends an ALARM SIGNAL - a set of 12 four-second dashes each separated by one second by telegraphy or a warbling two-tone signal by telephony.

This is followed by the DISTRESS CALL - the group [SOS] three times, followed by DE followed by the station call sign sent three times - then a pause of two minutes and this Distress Call repeated. By 'phone, the word "MAYDAY" is substituted for the group [SOS] and "THIS IS" or "DELTA ECHO" is substituted for "DE".

This is followed by the DISTRESS MESSAGE - the group [SOS] followed by the name or ID of the mobile station in distress followed by the particulars of the position and nature of the distress and any other information to assist in the rescue. By 'phone the word "MAYDAY" is substituted for the group [SOS].

A telegraph station then transmits two long dashes (at least 10 seconds each) to facilitate direction-finding followed by the call sign of the station in distress.

Now we get to the meat of the question --

The above is ACKNOWLEDGED by any station in a position to render assistance by the sequence [SOS], the call sign of the station in distress sent 3 times, DE, call sign of the acknowledging station sent three times, the group [RRR] and then the group [SOS]. By 'phone, the word "MAYDAY" is substituted for the group [SOS], "THIS IS" or "DELTA ECHO" is substituted for "DE", and "RECEIVED" or
"ROMEO ROMEO ROMEO" is substituted for [RRR].

A distress message (defined above) which is not acknowledged by another station can be RELAYED by a station not in distress with the following sequence: Alarm Signal, [DDD] [SOS] [SOS] [SOS] [DDD] DE call sign of relaying station sent 3 times, Distress Message. By

'phone, the words "MAYDAY RELAY" spoken three times are substituted for the [DDD] [SOS] [SOS] [SOS] [DDD] group, and "THIS IS" or "DELTA ECHO" is substituted for "DE".

The signal used by the mobile station in distress or the station taking control of the situation to notify other stations coming on frequency that a distress is in progress is CQ QRT [SOS] by telegraphy or "TO ALL STATIONS SEELONCE MAYDAY" by 'phone. Any other nearby station which finds it necessary to notify other stations of such silence in the absence of the station in distress or the control station substitutes the word DISTRESS and its own call sign for the group [SOS] or the word "MAYDAY".

When the distress is TERMINATED or the need for radio silence on the frequency is ended, the control station sends the following sequence: [SOS], CQ sent three times, DE, call sign, time of termination, name and call sign of station in distress, QUM (for termination of distress) or QUZ (for termination of silence). By 'phone, the words "HELLO ALL STATIONS" or "CHARLIE QUEBEC" is substituted for CQ, "MAYDAY" is substituted for the group [SOS], "THIS IS" or "DELTA ECHO" is substituted for "DE", "SEELONCE FEENEE" is substituted for QUM and "PRU DONCE" for QUZ.

Although manual Morse telegraphy on 500 kHz is no longer used for Mobile Distress communications, the 'phone procedures are still valid - and used - on 2182 kHz (SSB) 121.5 MHz (AM aircraft) and 156.8 MHz (FM - Channel 16).

The new Global Marine Distress and Safety System, which is MF/HF/VHF and satellite-based, uses Digital Selective Calling for alerts, calls and messages (see FCC Rules Section 80.1101) but permits the 'phone versions of thr above as well as SITOR (same as AMTOR) with the 'phone text spelled out.

I used to teach this stuff.

It's a bloody shame that this is not required - and tested - knowledge for ham communications of any class.

What more is needed than simply being able to e-mail the QSL report and verify that it is not tampered with, something that existing e-mail certification already provides? A standard format might be nice, but that wouldn't take another half year to do (unless it was being standardized by committee). Of course being able to generate this from existing logging programs would be great, but once the standards are disclosed, that can easily be added by the authors of those programs (if they aren't SK).

Shame that all that blather is not required? What planet are you from?

All that's really needed is knowing what "SOS" for CW and "MAYDAY" for phone means. Practically everybody knows that already. In a real emergency, the other stuff will go out the window and the real, necessary communications will go forward.

A Scenario....

Emergency Caller: "HELP, HELP, MY BOAT IS SINKING"

Control Station: "PLEASE PHRASE YOUR CALL FOR ASSISTANCE CORRECTLY"

Emergency Caller: "WHAT THE HELL ARE YOU TALKING ABOUT? I NEED THE COAST GUARD RIGHT NOW"

Control Station: "THEN YOU MUST USE THE CORRECT PROCEDURE"

Emergency Caller: " * YOU, JUST CALL THE DAMN COAST GUARD"

Control Station: "FIRST, I MUST HEAR THE WORD 'MAYDAY' REPEATED THREE TIMES. AND WATCH YOUR LANGUAGE, OBSCENITY IS FORBIDDEN BY REGULATIONS".

Emergency Caller: Blub, blub, blub......

While it might be ideal, the person calling a distress is not really expected to use proper procedure, Bill. But there are reasons for the responder to. In addition to insuring the response is heard and understood clearly (even by a person near panic), it also installs confidence in the caller (a competent person has heard me and is going to help).

You know, Phil, the bureaucracy sometimes stumbles over it's own feet. In '85 when we first fired up under the new VE system my team made it a practice to see to it that every newly licensed ham went home with a free copy of the current FCC regulations pertaining to ham radio, which I believe included this information. We bought these booklets with our other VE supplies and paid with our testing expense money collected from applicants. Wasn't long until we were ordered to cease this practice by our VEC, seems someone at FCC had decided this was an improper allocation of testing funds.....

I want to solder a bridge from point A to point B on a handheld device. It's a simple job that will increase its receiving capacities, and doing it myself will spare me all of the hassles associated with approaching FCC boot lickers who wouldn't do it anyway.

Problem is, it's a very tight area and I'm a novice. I realize inaccuracy is the kiss of death, so what I need are tips from you seasoned veterans on which type of solder and solder gear I should use, and the correct method of ensuring that I get it where I want it!

Agreed, a calm but competent voice at the control station end is always a great help.

IMO, there are more important things to be taught to the potential calling station than voice procedure. For instance, knowing where you are is a major problem when using radio (as opposed to a phone), especially out in the boonies. People should be taught to be aware of their surroundings ("I'm about a mile south of the big hill with the water tank on top") and if possible, to use a GPS. Learn to use a compass for bearings. Learn CPR and basic first aid. Learn water rescue. I could go on, but you get the idea.

At least, I am glad to see that people are interested in such things.

never to take the hobby, Life, or anything for that matter too seriously,
He was a true blue freind in every sense of the word. His voice, presence

The U S Power Squadron, an all-volunteer organization, teaches all of the above in addition to proper/standardized radiotelephone procedure to recreational boaters.

You asked about the format of acknowledging [SOS]. Remember please that a Morse [SOS] was not sent by a Sunday boater but by a PROFESSIONAL licensed radio officer on an ocean-going vessel carring mandatory radio equipment and following procedures prescribed by maritime safety law.

Following what you call "bureaucracy" is what differentiates the professional communicator from the dillitant, whether it's a shipboard radio officer or a public safety dispatcher.

Phil, I'll never forget one time when I was with Command, Amphibious Group 1, in the Navy during Vietnam. I was a radioman. I was sleeping (8 hours on, 8 hours off 24/7) during my off period when I was shaken awake with the question "can you copy Morse Code?". I couldn't believe what was happening. All radiomen were SUPPOSED to be able to copy Morse, but only two of us could with any proficiency. There was an SOS on 500 KHZ - and the idiots at NPN (Guam) and NPO (Phillipean Islands) were calling the station sending the SOS ON HIS FREQUENCY! They were even calling him WHILE HE WAS TRANSMITTING THE SOS! I've heard amateur pile-ups, but that was about the craziest thing I have ever witnessed. I had copied 40 WPM perfect copy at Bainbridge, MD, but was having a time of it through the mess. The other guy must have been a contester because he managed to copy it to a typewriter - but I had skid marks in my skivvies on that day. Maybe the amateur radio training isn't such a bad idea after all!

Several years ago, after the USCG had stopped standing watch on 500 with code-qualified ops, NMC (CG San Francisco, located at Pt Reyes, CA) called the op at KPH (RCA/MCI commmercial coast station just down the road) and asked them if they could copy abd work the

They are supposed to call him on 500 and after contact move him to 480 or 512 or 410 or 8634 for df-ing. The FCC Monitoring Net always had df receivers on 410 and 8634 in case the CG couldn't do it.

So, they commit suicide now or die of AIDS later...end result is the same.
It is not fair, but life is not fair. Suicide amongst teens is a real problem, but not ALL is due to a kid being ostracized due to his or her "gayness".

You kidding? Legal suit? Dimmy? Har Har Har......
In the last seven years Dimmy has threatened at least 100 lawsuits either verbally or orally. None have ever happened. Dimmy has been party to only ONE lawsuit, and that was filed and paid for by another AGAINST DIMMY....NOT by him, despite the fact that he often quotes the restrictions of the lawsuit.
The dude can't keep a car running from one week to the next without a water pump or a wheel bearing going bad, so how the heck is he gonna pay an attorney $175.00 an hour to file lawsuits? The dude has no credit, no savings account, and owns no property, so what's he gonna do? Heck, he can't even afford to pay for a window for his car, garbage bags notwithstanding.

Ugly folks have ugly kids. Ugly kids beget ugly grandkids. Good old Har Har spews the same old tripe message after message. It is getting old and very boring. Time for Har Har to come up with something new if it can be done.

Same old same old....."you will get yours soon", etc., etc.,.....
We are waiting. Waiting to see what we will soon be getting. You know the saying, Har Har, crap or get off the pot. Put up or shut up. You have been saying this for five years now and except for midnight hangup phone calls, some spam and a few magazine subscriptions you have not shown me what "getting yours soon" is.
Where's that big old lawyer who is gonna take my home away from me? Where is that letter from your imaginary "judge" who is gonna send me a legal notice? (For your info...Judge Roy Bean died over 100 years ago..) Hey...best of all...where is that termination of my service that you said Chris Caputo was gonna give you?
I'm waiting, and waiting, and waiting.
Consider that you are crying up the wrong tree and grow up. I post to a person I call "Dimmy" and that could be anybody. You post using names and call signs....be careful, Criminal. That saw cuts two ways and if old Chris wants, he can put YOU in very hot water for your posts. So also can the Judge who issued a Restraining Order against you.....

Have another cold one and chill....and learn to shut up and develop a sense of humor.

Thought this bit of history might be of interest to some of you...

Jeff KH6O

Until the adoption of the Radio Act of 1912, U. S. radio transmitters were unlicenced. As recounted in this article, in the period before the adoption of the act those with the most powerful transmitters ruled, which often meant that commercial and government stations were at war with the local amateurs. In this review Vermilya and a fellow amateur got into a friendly contest over who would have the most powerful station. Both apparently were from well-to-do families, as they could afford to buy expensive and powerful spark transmitters normally used for commercial service.

QST, February, 1917, page 8:

Amateur Number One
By Irving Vermilya

Amateur Number One is a snappy, up-to-the minute, humorous story of the original father of American amateurs. Generations have come since, but still Mr. Vermilya is an amateur at heart. The story of his early trials and tribulations when there were no brother amateurs starts in this issue. It will be continued in the next and you will enjoy reading this history with a laugh to every spark.--Editor.

NOW Boys, I don't want to make too much noise, and I want you to holler if I go too far--I am going to start off with a claim that's going to be a big one, but I'm pretty sure I can back every very word of it.

Here it is: I was the first amateur in this country to get an aerial up and investigate into the mysteries of wireless. No doubt, were I at a meeting, there would be an awful wail about now to "sit down". But fellows, listen, I am only sorry I have no record of the date when I first got the Wireless Bug, but I am going to look it up. I believe I know at least one gentleman who can throw some light on it, if I can only find his present whereabouts.

Along about the time when Marconi was first doing a little experimenting--long before there was any United Wireless Company, or any DeForest Company, or in fact, any amateurs, or manufacturers of wireless goods--I became interested in reading about what Marconi was doing with a kite and string some where along this Coast. Of course I became interested, but could not imagine how he was doing it. I can remember seeing the big head lines about Marconi, and I said right then and there, "Me for this wireless. That's the stuff".

Now it so happened that I was quite a good boy, so I asked the minister of our church to help me get acquainted with Marconi. Of course, he smiled at me and tried to calm my wild desires much as a kind mother would do for her little boy who cried for the moon. But I was not to be downed so easily. I had an awful bulldog grip on this wireless stuff, and I would not let go. Probably six months or so elapsed. I could not seem to get any nearer to Marconi, until one day, Dr. Tyndal, the kind-hearted minister, brought me the glad news that he had succeeded in seeing the wonderful wizard Marconi, and that he had given the minister a Marconi cohera and tapper. Well! when I got my hands on these--fellows--you can believe me, the world wasn't large enough to hold me. I wish you could have seen me paw over the old blue prints and dope on the "how and why," which Marconi had also sent. I went to my father and said "Dad, I've got to have some money. I'm going to build a wireless." Well, Dad laughed of course, but he handed me out the first batch rather easily, and I made for New York City.

After a ride on "air" for fourteen miles from Mt. Vernon to New York City I arrived at the Grand Central. I finally landed up at J. H. Bunnell & Co., who had plenty of telegraphs, but--no wireless. I told the clerk I wanted a polarized relay, and some wire for use in "Wireless Telegraphy". The clerk just stood as though he had become suddenly petrified--mouth open--eyes wild. Of course it was too early to have asked "What der yer mean, wireless telegraphy", as that expression "What der yer mean" wasn't born then. He finally did get up steam enough to get the relay and some insulated wire. Just imagine. I bought 150 feet of insulated bell wire, which was to be my complete aerial lead, and all. Say fellows, can you imagine going into Bunnell's at this time and have no one know what a transformer was, nor aerial wires, helixes--Just think, never been heard of. It does seem so queer now to look back.

The next day saw me up and out of bed bright and early. It was a great day, and I was eager to get the aerial up.--Bet there'll be an uproar when this is read.--My aerial was only twelve feet long--light wires. I made an arrangement out of furring strips in the shape of a cross. The main pole was twelve feet long, with a cross piece nailed to the top and bottom. Between the top cross piece, which was about four feet across, and the bottom one, I stretched light wires, and with double pointed tacks, and no insulators, nailed them to the cross.

That night I studied late over Marconi's old blue prints, and the dope. By the way, he didn't say anything about insulators or length of aerial, so how should I know? In the course of a few days, I had it all hooked up, and was waiting for it to work, although who I expected was going to hear me, I'll be hanged if I know. A few days passed, and no signals. Then I saw a piece in the paper that Marconi was going to send some dots--the letter "s" to be exact--across the "pond," at least he intended to try it. I thought, "I'll get in on this, and have a great time." Here I made the biggest mistake of my life. I invited all the neighborhood in to witness my reception of Marconi's signals, as they were to be flashed across the ocean. Everybody came. Oh, yes--all the ladies, mothers, fathers, boys and girls in the town for miles around. We all hung around until the time stated in the newspaper article. Up to this time, I was being talked of as "that smart little Vermilya boy," and such phrases as "I think its wonderful what a bright boy Irving is" and "where did he learn it", but after it got to be 8:30 and 9:15, and no signals, I was beginning to sweat. Several times I wanted to give it a push myself, but I knew if I did, that it would only get stuck, and give me only a long ring on the bell, so I waited--oh, so patiently. I really believed I was going to hear Marconi--even though he was way up in Newfoundland, and probably with a wave length of a few thousand meters while I had a wave of about 10 meters more or less. Mind you, we had no such thing as a tune in those days. You merely hooked one end of the cohera to the aerial and the other to the ground. No tune about it. By this time, I began to hear in low tones--"It's a fake" and "I don't believe there is any such thing as wireless telegraphy"--"Let's go home, ma," etc.

But lo and behold--it worked. Yes it worked twice. Two good full sized dots or possibly long enough to be called dashes--and then stopped.

Suddenly the door bell rang, and off it went again, right along with the door bell. I went to the door, and there was the minister who had called to see how it was working. I told him of its peculiar actions, and how it had made two dashes just before he came in. But my hopes were dashed when I discovered that he had caused those dashes by ringing the neighbor's door bell mistaking it for ours. You see, the wave length of my aerial was just about right for house wiring, and I had picked up the spark from the vibrator of the bell.

For about a year I plugged away at the Morse code--determined that I was going to be an operator any way. I got another fellow, Fred Skinner, interested in the regular telegraph line, and April 8, 1903, we stretched our first line between our houses, Progress was slow, until one day, the nurse girl who took care of my younger brother, came home with a new fellow--a telegraph operator. Well, I thought "Three cheers, I'm going to get this fellow to stick around." I sang his praises to our nurse, told her what a good scout he was, etc. etc. Finally he brought two new telegraph instruments,--a brand new 150 ohms resistance main line sounders and keys. We immediately threw our small four ohm learners set in the discard.

In the course of time, this line grew considerably, as my many friends can vouch for. Fellows, it was some line. After three or four years, it had grown to be six miles long, and had forty-two different fellows and girls on it. It stretched from one end of the city to the other. It even ran under ground for a distance of two and a half miles. But such a wire! I'm almost ashamed to relate it. It was made out of copper, iron, brass, and aluminum. Some parts of it were insulated, and other parts were not. And not a soldered joint.

We stretched this wire--(I say we, but it should be I, as I was elected wire chief, and for fear of getting pinched, I had full care of it) on trees, telephone poles, over trolley wires, and on back fences. Needless to say, the line was working day and night. Some one of the bunch always used it. It was the custom for every one to say "good morning" and then sign off his or her call letters, when we got out of bed, and "good night" before retiring. Some of the operators kept scandalous hours. In fact, some said

"GN" after our early risers had said "GM" for the next day. So you see, some of the night hawks were constantly a day behind themselves. New Year's night was always great on this. We would hear some fellow going to bed at 8:00 a.m. next morning, after we had heard our other early risers say "GM" at 5:00 a.m. I always kept my instrument cut in, and thought nothing of hearing my pal, Milo White, say "GN" three o'clock in the morning. We always knew when any of the fellows had been out with any of the girls on our line, as we would hear them chewing the visit over after he got home and while she was getting ready to retire. Then the final "Well, good night, dear."

We formed a company of all the members on this line, to help bear the expense, and held regular monthly meetings at each other's homes.

Up to the time when we had about thirty-six stations on the line, we had gotten along fine as far as juice was concerned. I had all the batteries in my cellar-- eighty-three gravity cells. But, the question of juice was fast becoming a serious problem, as we needed more power to overcome the great resistance of our poor line, and instruments. We had a meeting one night, and after long deliberation, decided we would have to get a dynamo, or something.

After the meeting disbanded, I called three or four of the fellows into conference--Conspiracy is what one girl called it--and told them that I intended to borrow some juice from a certain wire down on the corner. At first, they thought I was talking nonsense, but I finally impressed them that I was in earnest.

Bright and early one morning, I got up and ran the wire down to the corner. I ran in a twisted telephone line, and put it up on real insulators, so that it looked exactly like a real telephone line. Of course when I came to our point where the tap was to be made, I continued the wire on up the street, so that it would not look as though it had stopped, and would throw any pursuer off the track. The line was run on telephone poles about ten feet above the wire we were going to tap, which also ran along the same line of poles. Being a good pole climber, I put on my belt and spikes, and started up the pole on which I had previously strung our line. When I got to the "feed wire", I took out some fine magnet wire, and wrapped it around the feed wire, then I carefully cut a slit in the wooden pole ten feet up to where our line was, and made fast to our line. I laid the magnet wire in the slit I had cut, and covered it all over with putty. It would have taken a greater detective than Sherlock Holmes to ever dig that tap up, or discover it. The fact is proven by the knowledge that we had the juice coming from this source for two years.

While I was up the pole however, I had two great scares. First one was a cop, who came down the street and saw me up the pole. I thought surely he was after me, but he evidently believed I was a lineman, as he passed right on under me. The next and greatest scare, was when the trolley repair wagon came along, and I thought surely the jig was up. I had visions that I had blown out all the fuses on the trolley line, and they were after me. But they too, passed me by without even looking up. When I got home, sure enough, there was 550 direct current volts waiting to be used. I then hooked up ten sixteen candle power lamps in series, and put them from the tapped juice to the ground. This just made them glow, so there would of course be no amperage pulled off the tapped wire. At the fourth lamp up from the ground, I made fast our telegraph line, and then Hurrah, we had plenty of juice day and night. After this, we had no further trouble no matter how many instruments we put on, and no matter what kind of wire we put up. It always went through.

One day, we had a particularly hard run of wire to put up, and had to pass by a certain piece of property where the owner was noted for being a crank. I went to him, and said "Mr. Taylor, may I run a telegraph wire through your trees?" "You cannot. No sir" was my answer. I thanked him, for I knew I was going to run it through his joint somehow or other, even if I had to hang it on the clouds We couldn't have any one ordinary man stand in the way of this line now. I thought it all over, and finally got out one dark night, and tacked it all along his back fence. When we came to the end of his fence. we ran it under ground in a pipe, and then up the outside of the first tree, the other side of his yard. That wire is still there I'll bet, if his fence is.

The fun began, when we had our next meeting after acquiring the "loan" of the "Tralla Lue" juice, as we called it. Only five or six besides myself were in on it. The rest still believed our batteries were giving the power. The city electrician, who by the way, was my cousin, was by this time a full fledged member of the line. His official job in real life was to have control of every wire in the city. He still holds the job. Now, of course, it would not do to let him in on it, and you can imagine what an uneasy feeling I had when he came to the door to attend the meeting. We got away with it all right, but had several narrow escapes. One fellow said "Say VN, you must have an awful bunch of batteries down in your cellar, that line is working great these days". Another fellow (the nurse's husband now) said, "Where did you get that dynamo VN?" Ye Gods, I was ready to explode. One fellow, Al Jenks, who was in on the thing grabbed up a 45 calibre pistol, that I always had hanging around loaded with blanks for amateurs, and yelled "order". After plenty of storm and stress, and a tax for more blue vitrol for our batteries, the meeting broke up. I certainly was happy.

My ease of mind was never perfect though, and I finally went to the Mayor of the town and asked him if he couldn't fix it up for me to get a little juice from the trolley. Much to my surprise, he did. He wrote a very strong letter to the Receiver of the line (it was in the Receiver's hands) and he in turn granted the permission. I was then quite happy, and that old line lasted until I finally moved away from the city. We made some great operators out of that old line just the same, and fellows, if you are ever near the Hotel Manhattan in New York City, call on Mr. Fred Coleman, who is now manager of the Western Union office there. You will never met a pleasanter man. He is a small man in size, but he certainly had a great big heart.

This concludes Part One which appeared in February 1917. The very fact that part of Mr. Vermilya's article has been read means that all this description is unnecessary. It's a rip-roaring article with sparks all over. The decrement of this second part is far less than two-tenths.--Editor.

And, with that, you hit on the exact problem. Many situations are made far worse because people are simply not prepared for something bad to happen. And the impact of nearly all bad situations can be reduced with just a little preparedness.

Anyway, since you mentioned water rescue, and Phil used your message to promote the Power Squadron, let me also point out that the Coast Guard Auxiliary has a number of classes for those interested in boating and water recreation - seamanship, navigation, weather, safe boating, using the GPS, water safety for kids, and many others. In addition, those who join the Auxiliary can receive CG training in search & rescue, radio communications, and so forth. If anyone is interested in any of this, feel free to contact me by email.

Do what I did and send a donation to the real scouts, the Boy Scouts of America. I, like they, do not accept, and will not be forced to accept, your immorality.

Freedom works both ways. Freedom to say homosexuality is a perversion. Freedom says I do not have to accept your perverse way of life. Next thing they will try to get us to accept are pedophiles. We'll be told those people are born that way and can't help it so that behavior is perfectly acceptable. One perversion after another, yada, yada, yada.

I'm thinking of selling my Icom 735 and buying a 706. I have a separate 2-meter and won't work 6 mtr or 440. So can my AH-2 work for the HF part only? What are its limitations, etc.

Thanks,

When Christ gets back, that won't seem so big.

The image of God extends from infinity to infinity. And when Jesus told us the kingdom of heaven is within you, He really was not joking. But, as usual, we tend not to look at the obvious. Consider the seven days of creation. A lot of speculation on what a day really means. Here is part of the fractal. Lets go this way, kinda bas ackwards from how I put it together in my head. The way I understand it, the flood happened about 150 years before the Tower of Babel. Now if we take the ages 20-25 years old as being an ideal age for childbearing, then 6-7 generations would have been born when God confounded the language and speech of the people. If we then take one generation and have it equal one day, we are to day 6-7 of the major generation in progress. After day 6 and into day 7 the people underwent a change that made them all think and talk in different ways. They could no longer understand any but a few others. These congregated together and formed and became the different races we have today.

Now, please consider the growth of a baby in the womb.

Complete without being completed - In the beginning God - zero-dimensional

One cell - Day one - Light separated from darkness - one-dimensional

Two cells - Day two - Firmament separates waters from waters - two-dimensional

Four cells - Day three - Land appears, Man formed from dust, plants - three-dimensional

Eight cells - Day four - Sun, Moon, and stars - four-dimensional

Sixteen cells - Day five - Fish and fowl - five-dimensional

Thirty-two cells - Day six - Land animals, Man now Adam and Eve - six-dimensional

The fertilized egg divides rapidly into two cells, then four, then eight, and so on.

These early cells, when the fertilized egg (morula) is fewer than 32 cells, have the ability to form any part of the human body and are known as "totipotential" cells. (Stem cells)

This last is from page 47 of "Pregnancy and Birth" by Dr. Karina Reynolds, Dr. Christoph Lees, and Grainne McCartan.

Does any one see any connection here besides me? Don't the cells become specialized at this point?

Is not that what happened at Babel?

We are the body, the Spirit. God is alive and growing. And the pattern is wherever we look. And another thing to consider. The egg implants on the sixth day, and because it has exhausted it's energy, can't survive longer on it's own. It must implant to the mother or die.

So, tell me, where DOES Life begin? And where are we in Life? Where is God?

And SHOULD we be doing stem cell research? How about abortions? Genetics?

All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient. Who said that?!

Let Life live. Let death die. LET there be Light, One once said. And it was so.

Be seeing you

No US amateur rules were broken, phone patches in the US are legal and were used to allow employees of a US company working in a foreign country, many who were hams and members of the club station, to communicate with families in the US. Everything was according to the US amateur rules. Go blow your smoke somewhere else.

I recieved this from joe's widow.

Dear Chuck:

My name is Sharon Keller, and I am Joe's wife. I am able to get into w8ww email, so I did see what you had written about Joe.

I am so glad that you did write, because that just shows me how much Joe is being missed on the airway. He was an icon, and will probably be for a very long time. He had a way about him that some people took offense to, but those that really got to know Joe understood him.

They are a few out there that didn't like the way he did things, but then everyone in this world is different. We are all different, but we except people for what they have inside of the heart and that is what counts the most.

Joe sure was different, but he stood by what he said and was always for the little people.

He was very ill at the end, and went out his way. He was tired of the dialysis, the doctors, hospital, tests. But I think what really did it was they wouldn't give him a new heart, and without that well he was tired of fighting.

So we are here to pick up the pieces, and go on alone. But I know that Joe is up there somewhere playing on his radio and calling CQ CQ CQ DX. And he is watching over all of us, and for that I am grateful.

Joe and I would have celebrated our Fifth Wedding Anniversary yesterday, and Twenty Years of Being Together. Having gotten married on the date that he and I had our first date. I looked at it this way, if we lasted Fifteen Years on the Date why not try for another Fifteen. But I guess God had other plans for him, and now the kids and I only have the good memories.

I appreciate all the kinds words that everyone has been saying about Joe, and I never knew that he had helped so many people over the years. I was told so many stories at the funeral home, and the Amateur Friend that showed up to pay there last respects to the Pres of the NAASSB. He will be surly missed by everyone, including the ones that didn't understand him.

Thank you again.

Sharon Keller

Anybody who hasn't already taken those words to heart hasn't had to change a tire on the side of a 2-lane road at 1AM on a night with heavy fog, no flashlight, and no flares. Of course, this will always be a tire on the traffic side of the car, unless the curb side is 3" from a bridge rail.

The only light you get is from the cars you need to dodge.

Needless to say, KD5OUY is now under orders to keep flares and at least two flashlights (a glovebox sized one, and a big rechargeable with a 12v adapter in the trunk) in her car any time she expects me to fix a problem with it.

Well, if any SOS or other emergency message comes your way, stay calm, and do it in a LOGICAL order to get the info you need.

That means, the FIRST thing you ALWAYS get is WHERE! Not who, not what, not when, but WHERE.
If communications break down, knowing where means someone can investigate. THEN worry about the what.

Bottom line is try to get all the info you can, but the
'where' transcends all else in importance.

Hey, it's like an E911 hangup. Someone can dial 911, not say a thing, not even complete the call in some cases, but help will be on the way. Maybe the wrong help, but that can be corrected later. ALWAYS get the WHERE first!

I have a partially dismantled Hickok 539A (it's NOT MY FAULT, I BOUGHT it in this condition) that I want to sell. Transformers, sockets, switches, etc., are still intact. If you need REPLACEMENT PARTS, this would be an EXCELLENT investment.

Picture available at;

Asking $50, will consider trading for saddle mount compactron sockets.

Please respond BY EMAIL to < OvrReactor@aol.com > if interested.

I guess I might have agreed with the 'anonymous coward' stuff - until I checked the ARRL website. Go check out about 'rabbit ears'. Seems he rammed the vehicle that was DFing him! There are some folk who are a brick short of a load - but usually this stuff happens as a result of something else; in this case the DFing was legal, but you get the drift.

Nothing was outside the spirit of amateur radio, in fact it was very much IN the spirit of ham radio. Hams have been running phone patches for years, for deployed military personnel (I have run many patches for Naval personnel on board US Navy ships), missionaries in foreign countries, personal stationed in Antarctica (the late Senator Barry Goldwater's station K7UGA ran thousands of such patches). Nothing about it inflamed decent (evidently unlike you) operators, there was nothing done wrong, maybe in your country but not here, so deal with it.

Just ordered a new "5th wheel" RV (my first), mainly as a "portable cabin" for fishing remote lakes in northern Minnesota. The unit (if it makes any difference for the discussion) is a Keystone Cougar 278. It has an aluminum structural frame, fiberglass skin, and steel underframe.

I'd like to put in HF/VHF/UHF ham radio capability. The VHF/UHF part is probably pretty easy, but HF may be more challenging, especially regarding a credible antenna system. I'd be interested in hearing from anyone who has engineered a workable solution that does not involve major changes to the RV but is reasonable easy to deploy and take down. I'm most interested in "mid bands" (40, 30, and 20 meters).

Having experimented with about everything there is, a simple Hustler mast and set of resonators clamped to the luggage rack or top of the ladder works as good as all of them.

Lakeview makes shortened verticals that can be mounted to a mag base, the latter stuck to a steel plate glued down near the ladder. I rigged mine on a pivot so I could, in open coutry, use it for mobile operation. By tilting it forward it would just lay there wirthout having to unscrew the whip.

Short verticals are lousy antennas, of course - they radiate & receive with equal mediocrity in all directions. But they do work.

I've used Hustlers and Hamsticks, both worked out very well. I am now using a High Sierra screwdriver antenna mounted on the rear bumper with the whip above roof line. It works 80 thru 6 meters at the flick of a switch. It's easy on , easy off if you do want to remove it. I run a Kenwood TS-690, no amp and work the world from the trailer. You can check out these antennas at www.hsantennas.com. There are other screwdrive brands also.

high sierra. they are good 10-80 meters (160 with an attachment) .

I came across some parts in the basement that I've had around for years and don't even know where I got them or what they are.

Eimac X578U ? They appear new and it says Electron Tube on the tags. They appear to be some kind of microwave tubes. Heavy little suckers, for their size. I have maybe 6 of them.

Are these possibly worth anything if I sell them?

See me in court? Yeah. Sure. That tired old threat has been made at least twice a week for the last three years. More hot air from the psycho....
Let's see...going to court. What does that mean? Well, first it means you have to hire an attorney. Not likely with your empty purse. Secondly, this means you have to find an attorney to take yer case and since they all blacklisted you, forget that.
Next you will have to have a good case. Making fun of you is not grounds for any legal action and you can blow smoke all you want....no dice. If you think a crime has been perpetrated you will also have to contact a Prosecuting Attorney to file the charges...and you and Prosecuting Attorneys do not get along very well. Maybe Mike Deaver will take yer case...hee, heee, heeee.......
Yer threats of legal action are as empty as your bank account. Go blow smoke somewhere else.... and I don't mean the smoke from those illegal twisties you like so much.
How are the job offers going? Can't find employment yet? Wassa matter? Do the job offers require a drug test?

I want to buy a used mobile home. It does not have to be fancy. I have my own furniture and a refrigerator that I'm buying on time payments from Mike's Package Store. I grew up in a mobile home and I like them.

All I need is some place to park my old junker and hang a couple of wires in the trees for my CB antennas. I need a telephone, too. If the mobile home is next to a pay phone that is even better. I also want it to be near a liquor store, perferably in walking distance so I don't get busted for DUI in the middle of the night when I need another case of Old Milwaukee.

I can relocate since I am mobile, agile and hostile. We Navy Seal Combat Veteran Heros know how to adapt to any conditions.

I also need a place where I can let my cloven-hooved honey graze without the neighbors complaining that there is a domestic pig on the loose. Some counties do not allow farm animals in residential areas.

Send all responses to this news group and I will get back to you when sober up.

They do have that right. And the Public (including Public institutions) has the right to withold funding and support. Just as they have the right to call for the Scouts to change their ways.

Isn't freedom grand?

And very few practicing engineers ever bother to get a license.
Reason: Graduation from an engineering school such as that run by MIT is more than sufficient to get employers and others to take you seriously. Only work on certain government projects may require such a license, and even that only happens rarely. It is usually limited to the field of architecture involving regulated public safety (bridges, buildings, etc.)

An engineer is by definition an individual who has graduated from a nationally accredited engineering school. Licensing requirements are quite rightfully resisted by the major universities as a usurpation of their authority.

Another perspective:

I have dealt with Mr. Knowles and his companies for the last 16 years on a fairly regular basis. I have always found them to be responsive, competent, and responsible. Hopefully, whatever went wrong was the exception rather than the rule.

Just my opinion.....

CARIBBEAN TOUR 2001 - SUMMARY/RESULTS. Rob, PA5ET, sent the following press release to all OPDX readers: "We hope you enjoyed 4 weeks of radio activity from J3 and J8 like we did. We logged 25,825 QSOs from Carriacou

(J3) and 24,323 QSOs from Bequia (J8) on CW, SSB, RTTY and PSK31 from 160-10 meters. Our goal was to make 50,000 QSOs which has just been met. The 2 stations have been active around the clock, which has been a touch job for only 4 operators. The PacketClusters worldwide have been making overtime. The Tour web site is still alive (http://www.qsl.net/lldxt) and contains pictures, real audio files, statistics, on-line logs and many more. We would appreciate if you sign the guestbook and let us know how you experienced this year tour, we can always learn from your comments. We experienced that we need to improve our reception on the Topband, it has been better than previous years but it's still not good enough, this will be high on the Agenda for next year. Just to let you know, the Dutch postal rates are increased since July 1st, if you are sending multiple QSLs 2 USDs are required to cover the costs. See you next year from ..... Bouke J3/J8/PA0ZH, Ronald J3/J8/PA3EWP, Rob J3/J8/PA5ET, Dennis J3/J8/PA7FM, and by the whole team J38PA and J8PA."

ARLHS To Hold First Convention! Members of the Amateur Radio Lighthouse Society (ARLHS) will gather in Georgia this November for their first ever convention. The event is set for Friday and Saturday, November 9 and 11 at the Holiday Inn- I95 in Brunswick. The burgeoning organization is less than a year old and already has almost 400 members worldwide. Jim Weidner, K2JXW, (ARLHS #001) founder and president of ARLHS, urged all members to mark the dates on their calendars and plan to attend. Lee Graves, WA7OBH, (ARLHS #155), who with Jim Buffington, K5JIM, (ARLHS #150), came up with the idea for the convention, noted that activities are expected to include a banquet, an informal poolside gathering and an opportunity to operate portable or mobile from the historic lighthouse at nearby St. Simons Island. Jeff Cole, N4XGI, (ARLHS #376), who is keeper at St. Simons, will give tours of the lighthouse and museum. A special convention room rate of 59.95 (USD) plus tax is available to those attending by contacting the Holiday Inn I-95 in Brunswick direct at 912-264-4033. "Be sure to mention ARLHS in order to get the special rate," said Graves. Members are encouraged to make their reservations soon, since the block of rooms set aside for the convention is limited and are expected to be taken quickly. Graves and Buffington emphasized that dress will be casual the entire weekend.

PIRATE ACTIVITY. Mike, G4IUF, reports that a station signing 3A0FC is saying that he is Mike, and is giving his callsign as QSL Manager. This a pirate. Mike has never been to 3A, and does not know who this nut is or why he is doing this.

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
3B6RF QSLs. Steve, N3SL, reports that, "As of Thursday, August 30th, North American cards are completely caught up, and new arrivals are being turned around in 1 day. I put a batch of 280 more cards in the mail Wednesday, representing all those that had built up while I awaited more blanks, so people should see those within a week (because of the holiday). These are the direct cards only, sent to my address, and do not include any bureau cards which are being handled 100% by HB9AGH. Those sent via WF5E's service are also now complete."

Bert, PA3GIO, reports that as of August 29th, all QSL for operations 5R8GY , FH/PA3GIO/p and /m and FR/PA3GIO/m are in the mail and in the Bureau.

BQ9P QSL Status. Steve, KU9C, reports: "All QSL cards that matched the logs are in the mail. However, there appears to have been a fair amount of SLIM BQ9P operators on the bands, which means that some cards do not match the logs. These requests are in the 'hospital' at the moment, requiring a more thorough check. I'm working through those as fast as I can, but it's a slow process."

MORE FROM STEVE, KU9C:
"PW0S: I'm current on these, and this week the hospital was completely cleared.
PJ/FS-W3HNK: These are current, save a few in the hospital.
IF YOU ARE ANXIOUS FOR one of these cards, but ONLY FOR A DXCC SUBMISSION DEADLINE, please email me at: ku9c@arrl.net .....I'll find your envelope and see if i can get it back to you. PLEASE NOTE: Many of you requested 5, 6, or even more calls in your envelope with one of the above cards. These will be completed when I get to each of the calls. My assumption based on the number of cards you requested is that you were not in a hurry....and not worrying about any submission deadlines. If you are awaiting one of the calls above and fall into this category, please E-mail me with EVERY CALL you requested, and I'll take a shot at finding your envelope." Steve's E-mail address is: ku9cqslmanager@ku9c.com

The Kingman Reef Palmyra DX Association announces that all QSLs received DIRECT with SASE for K5K, KH6ND/KH5 and T32R have been answered. All QSLs now being received are answered the same day. Any station having a QSL problem with any of the above, send an E-mail inquiry to < N4XP@juno.com >, who will research the problem. DO NOT RESEND, ask first. Bureau QSLs will be answered in the near future but QSOs already marked as receiving a QSL will not be answered again through the bureau.

QSL Manager Jean Michel, F6AJA, informs OPDX and its readers that Camillo, HP1AC, contacted him by E-mail because he has collected some QSL cards for HP1XBI (Gerard, F2JD) from the HP QSL bureau. After an arrangment was made with Camillo, cards were sent to Jean. He received more than 300 cards (mostly from USA). Some 37 QSL cards clearly did not indicate/mark "VIA F6AJA" and unfortunately they arrived via the Panama bureau. Jean has processed the cards for the next batch to go out via the French QSL Bureau. He also states and reminds everyone, "Make sure you indicate clearly the QSL route when you send cards via the bureau it's NOT the work of the bureau to find the right route for your card."

OPDX has been informed that Pierre, HB9QQ, is saying that a single USD is no longer enough to pay for an airmail stamp from Europe. He said it costs almost 2 USDs to send airmail to the States.

QSLs for Otto, HC2/UA4WAE, go via Michel, PY3ZM. Otto is waiting for a new HC2 callsign. BTW, PY3ZM lives in France! His address is:

QSL Manager Bill Horner, VK4FW, has a new address. Effective September him. Meantime, the old 929 box will continue to be cleared once per month at best.

W1AA is NOT and never has been the QSL Manager for TI9AA. There are indications that they assume TI9AA is a pirate.

Tony, WF1N, reports that E-mail requests for Bureau Cards for any of his IOTA operations should be sent to his new E-mail address at:

The old address (megahertz260@...) will become inactive shortly. If you request a card via the Bureau, you do not have to send Tony your QSL card.

SAD NOTE: Al Harbach, WA4DRU, recently became a SK in Houston, Wednesday, August 15th. He was known by many as Mr. Heathkit after Heath shut their doors. Al was also quite a prominent DXer, and many know him for his many travels to the various islands, lately at VP5 and other places. He was a long standing member of the North Florida DX Association. Also, Al had a small business which provided many with Heathkit parts that kept our old rigs going. Our deepest sympathy goes out to his wife Pat. Type in Al Harbach in your search engine (google.com) and you will find all kinds of things about Al. Below is a website Al did for his company, Harbach Electronics. It is his bio sheet.

Hi Hans. go to http://www.k7no.com/hamradio.html and you can see the mag mount (4-big honkers). I use the Hustler mast and have resonators for all bands. Works great with my 706MkII. Notice the connector hanging down on the tool box. I have a barrell conn and can connect either a coax going into the truck or another from the 5er so I can ham to my hearts content from the trailer.

If you want more detail, I can snap some digipix and e-mail.

For what it's worth (remember that free advice is worth every penny it costs), here are my experiments and testimonials:

First, the rig: 36' National Dolphin - steel frame and fiberglass, wood, rubber and whatever.

The radio: A Ten-Tec Omni VI+ (irrelevant to the discussion, IMO)

The antennas:
1. Cushcraft R-7000 mounted on rear ladder with home brew tilt device so it lays down on the roof while traveling. Climb up on the roof, muscle it to vertical, then bolt on the four small radials. Climb down and listen to high noise level with not much either coming in or going out. When through, climb to roof, remove radials, lower the beast.

2. Hustler mounted in essentially the same position as the Cushcraft. Climb the ladder and attach the short mast with desired resonator(s) attached. Climb down and listen to high noise level..... When through, climb ladder and detach mast and resonator(s).

3. Two 10' sections of Radio Shack antenna mast. Pulley attached to top one and the whole levered up to vertical and bungeed to the ladder. Use pulley to raise a trap dipole into inverted vee configuration. Ahhhh, bliss. Noise level on the floor, good signals in and out. Drawback is that I need some room to spread out, so small campground spaces are poor choice. However, there is no problem in the desert around Quartzsite.

4. Not yet tried: screwdriver antenna. High Sierra is not the only purveyor, merely the most expensive. Many of my acquaintances think they are the best of all possible worlds. The others are notably silent.

Last week ABC World News Tonight started a new feature where they asked for viewer "feedback" on news stories. The posters (you could be anonymous) decided the topics and ABC posted the feedback for all the world to see.

Israel quickly became the main topic. The racist state's detractors and Zionist defenders wrote the most posts.

THAT was apparently was too much for ABC News. They quickly changed the format from one which the public picked the topic of the posts to one where the ABC bosses decided what viewers would respond to. They could have just added the controlled topic forum to the free forum, but they didn't. They removed the free forum.

Once again this proves the Big Brother "media" is interested only in controlling what the public sees and is afraid of even allowing viewers to post comments on their carefully crafted "news." The same censorship and control can be seen in talk radio, where calls are carefully screened and the talk show jock keeps careful control over topic and callers.

This shows the fear that media has of public having any input into their "news" propaganda machine.

Twice-fired FCC employee wanted by Federal Communications Commission for violations of Part 97. George F. Arsics, Jr., ex K1QKJ, AB4ZV, and currently W2ZB, is wanted by the FCC for multiple repeat violations of part 97 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. As you will recall this is the ex-Powder Springs FCC employee who was caught by his co-workers jamming KV4FZ on 14.313 in a drunken stupor, and promptly fired. Since that time Arsics has been directly involved with the jamming, stalking, and harassment of several amateurs through a group known as the "Goodfellows". Other accomplices of Arsics in this activity have been N4CND, WB2OTK (call revoked), N4XCV (call revoked), KA9BSD, KK9G, and N9PGE. Arsics lost his home at 2571 Bethany Lane in a last minute sale to avoid foreclosure earlier this year. Thus his FCC ULS data is fraudalent. Arsics has done this in the past, once listing the retirement home where his father passed on his 610. This enables him to freely jam other amateurs on HF with no fear of revocation. According to part 97, and we quote,
" ?97.23 Mailing address.
Each license grant must show the grantee's correct name and mailing address. The mailing address must be in an area where the amateur service is regulated by the FCC and where the grantee can receive mail delivery by the United States Postal Service. Revocation of the station license or suspension of the operator license may result when correspondence from the FCC is returned as undeliverable because the grantee failed to provide the correct mailing address."

If you know the actual physical location of the station owned by George Arsics, Jr. used to jam and stalk other hams, please report this information to your local FCC Field Office or contact Riley Hollingsworth, Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement at rholling@FCC.gov.

Who's wife ? Do these movies have titles, like the old days ? Remember Deep Throat and Debbie Does Dallas ? Titles like that ?

How many movies were made by this "Georgia Peach" actress ? Is she famous for any of the films she made ?

Hmm ... Georgia .. Julia Roberts is from Georgia. Is that who you're talking about ?

Clue us in .. it sounds interesting .. maybe funny too .. but we need the "filler info".

how much amps is the power supply. if it has less then the amount rated for the radio when tx'ing. you will get that fluctuation. hook it up to another power supply or in your cig lighter in the car. see if it does it there. if it does. it is the radio. but sound like not enough amps for the radio to use.

Sorry this is a bit off-topic but ham guys are the only ones I know of who know much about antennas. What I want to do is connect an external antenna to something that wasn't intended to be connected to. Examples: Boom Box, Portable Tv, etc. If you have something like a TV antenna or one of these amplified mini antennas(75 ohm F-connector or 300 ohm wire connection) and one of these devices with only a telescopic tube to attach to, what can you do? Not opposed to going inside to connect. Thanks in advance!

Which ex wife? My first ex wife moved to Arkansas 35 years ago and is now living in some hideaway commune near Little Rock. She watches the QVC channel all day and doesn't have a job. My second ex wife is not likely to be in the movies, either. She is working on an oil rig somewhere in the Atlantic Ocean and nobody has heard from her in years. I guess those burly construction workers keep her pretty lubricated. My third ex wife is still working at a MacDonald's somewhere in Boise, Idaho and is a spokesperson for their potatoes. Besides, she would not appear in any movies since her face was so badly burned a few years back when she tried to show her fellow MacDonald's employees how to bob for french fries.
My fourth ex wife? That is a question I have never been able to answer. Rumor is that she is dating Al Sharpton and lives somewhere in Harlem. We just don't know for sure. I hear that she has Herpes.
My fifth ex wife decided she likes women and can be seen every now and then on ESPN. She is one of those body builder gals with biceps like Popeye. No, she does not eat spinach.
My sixth ex wife joined the Navy and was last seen on an aircraft carrier yelling, "Anchors aweigh". I hear that she is very fulfilled and teaches a course on muff diving.
My seventh ex wife just disappeared into the wind right after I inflated her and she has not been seen since that fateful day.
Guess I will stay single for a few weeks.

W4AMP made several comments on 14.313 this afternoon but nobody could make any sense of what he was saying. He rambled and ranted and just made no sense at all. Maybe it was because of those funny little cigarettes he likes so much.
Nobody answered him and he seemed to be making one way transmissions yet again.
The poor dude just cannot get it through is head that nobody wants to talk to him.
He is a slow learner.

RUMOR -

Infinity Broadcasting's KFRC San Francico has hired West Coast Ledgend Bobby "What A Guy" Ocean, America's Favorit Disc Jockey, for afternoon drive, 3 - 7pm starting today, Tuesday September 4.

Ocean most recently was the Voice of the Oldies Station at 99.7 FM for over 7 years.
Through the years, Bobby has done some fill in work, however, This marks the first time that Bobby will be on the air, on a full time basis, since his stint at KYUU in 1988. (KYUU is NOW 99.7 KFRC-FM) In 1986, Bobby was at the ledgendary BIG 610 KFRC right before the switch to Magic 61.

Bobby spent many years entertaining Northern California at KFRC in the 70's and 80's as well as being a part of Bill Drake's Boss Radio format at KGB in San Diego and KHJ Los Angeles. Bobby currently runs a production company in Marin California.

<drivelsnip>

Twice-fired FCC employee wanted by Federal Communications Commission for violations of Part 97. George F. Arsics, Jr., ex K1QKJ, AB4ZV, and currently W2ZB, is wanted by the FCC for multiple repeat violations of part 97 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. As you will recall this is the ex-Powder Springs FCC employee who was caught by his co-workers jamming KV4FZ on 14.313 in a drunken stupor, and promptly fired. Since that time Arsics has been directly involved with the jamming, stalking, and harassment of several amateurs through a group known as the "Goodfellows". Other accomplices of Arsics in this activity have been N4CND, WB2OTK (call revoked), N4XCV (call revoked), KA9BSD, KK9G, and N9PGE. Arsics lost his home at 2571 Bethany Lane in a last minute sale to avoid foreclosure earlier this year. Thus his FCC ULS data is fraudalent. Arsics has done this in the past, once listing the retirement home where his father passed on his 610. This enables him to freely jam other amateurs on HF with no fear of revocation. According to part 97, and we quote,
" ?97.23 Mailing address.
Each license grant must show the grantee's correct name and mailing address. The mailing address must be in an area where the amateur service is regulated by the FCC and where the grantee can receive mail delivery by the United States Postal Service. Revocation of the station license or suspension of the operator license may result when correspondence from the FCC is returned as undeliverable because the grantee failed to provide the correct mailing address."

If you know the actual physical location of the station owned by George Arsics, Jr. used to jam and stalk other hams, please report this information to your local FCC Field Office or contact Riley Hollingsworth, Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement at rholling@FCC.gov.

I used Code Quick to pass my Element 1 last week. I started using Code Quick just before New Year's and about 3 wks later I had my General!!

BUT. . .
I also used NuMorse, a Java Applet I got off Arrl.org, AA9PW's Java QSO generator, and one more QSO package that I forget at the moment. The key is to do the QSO's in as many different packages as possible to get a wider variety of styles. The Code Quick QSO generator is cheesy to say the least (you do 2 QSO's and you get complacent because the pattern is too easy).

Here in San Diego, several of us including VE's have discussed the matter extensively.
Here are how folks learn the code, depending on how they perceive things -- audible, visual, association, etc. FROM THE BOOK DX101X at URL: http://ac6v.com/DXSAMPLE.htm

There is no one way to learn the code that will work for everyone. Beware of the ham who says ï¿½here is a sure fire way to learn the codeï¿½. Here are several methods ï¿½ choose the one that works best for you.

VISUAL -- some learn best by seeing it on a computer screen as they hear it.

AUDIBLE - Musically or language associated- some learn it as a song or word -- dah dah ditit -- The zebra did it. dah dah di dah -- here comes the bride - queen. Code Quick does this with mnemonics.

AUDIBLE - INVERSE - Some study the opposites A then N, K then R, etc.

AUDIBLE PHONETICS - Some learn by associating it with the NATO Alphabet i.e, dit-dah followed by A or ALPHA after a while you will hear dit dah and A or alpha pops into the brain.

PATTERNS -There are patterns in morse code letters. For example: the letter A is similar to the letter W except that the letter W has an additional dah to it. One might study A, W, J, 1 in order, then mixed. This is effective if one has difficulty in discerning J from 1 etc.

TYPING - some find that they have an automatic reflex to hearing a character and hitting the right key on a keyboard. Check with your VEC if they will allow you to take the test this way. One of our local examiners does allow this as well as a Braille keyboard for the blind.

SENDING ï¿½ Some folks learn better or improve by sending with a key. Others read signs while driving on the highway. This is usually in conjunction with a listening method.

CHARACTERS - at 5 WPM it is feasible to repeat (or count) the dits and dahs in your head and pass the test --- this is the hard way and Farnsworth makes this tough ï¿½ not recommended but may be the only way for some.

PLAIN TEXT VS MIXED RANDOM CHARACTERS. Studying Morse in plain text gives the advantage of being able to anticipate what is coming next where mixed random characters ï¿½ ya gotta know them all. Maybe practice both if that works for you.

KOCH METHOD - Learn morse code using high speed random characters.

FARNSWORTH - All tests are soon to be given at 12 WPM character speed, 5 WPM overall speed ï¿½ if you are tested in Farnsworth -- then study that way -- several who have studied straight 5 WPM - couldn't copy a darn thing in Farnsworth.

BRAIN SOAK ï¿½ Some folks give up on methods and just pain listen to code practice until one day it just all comes together. The impediment to increasing speed and proficiency is called a barrier which you may feel you will never hurdle, but is amazing when one day after brain soaking ï¿½ it magically all comes together. Your mileage may vary.

and try them out -- choose the one that works the best for you. Remember that the one that works for your buddy or elmer may or may not be the best for you.

Hans: Don't get too complicated!

Many years ago I met a group of three US hams with a van in a camping ground on the western side of the island of Newfoundland, Canada. (Newfoundland is still VONxx territory even though rest of Canada is VE.....).
They were returning to the US from a trip to the only part of coastal Labrador, also part of the Canadian province of Newfoundland, that was, at that time, accessible by road. Well via two ferry rides and then by road!

Basically the camp ground was a supply of water and some washrooms and some lighting. But they did have an AC hook up from somewhere IIRC. Simple and cheap; and back then, like three of four bucks a night! Much more elaborate, hard standing sites etc. available today!

I gathered that the purpose of their field trip was to create opportunities for contacts with a station located in that part of VO... territory. The population, even today, of the whole vast territory of Labrador is only 60,000 people and there are few hams!

Anyway they had some kind of a vertical crank up pole antenna, mounted on the van. I seem to recall it had traps or loading coils in it? I believe they were typically operating 20m? And maybe 15? But also notable was that they seemed to have equal success with a random wire with a weight on the end that they threw into a convenient and not very high tree in the campgrounds! So much for high technology! If it broke off they just lengthened it and tried again. Wire is pretty cheap after all!

They were pretty serious about making more contacts but were having a good time with the conditions they were encountering; in other words it was fun!

So unless you are going where no trees grow; the Mojave desert? Why not an old piece of random wire?

To illustrate this point I vividly recall one Sunday morn. "going trouting". Had a few worms in an old tobacco can and the odd fly stuck somewhere in the jacket! Parking the truck I passed a US Air Force officer and his young son getting prepared to 'go fishing'. They had about three substantial tool boxes of fishing gear, spools, lures, reels... you name it out of the back of their car! Wished them good morning and went down 'the gullies' as we call them. Coming back about 45 minutes later with my three trout for a late breakfast, they were still there selecting their gear to 'go fishing'. Maybe that was the fun part for them. But my impression was that they were so mechanized; had so much 'gear' they had lost the point and the fun of what they doing. Anyway my three little mud trout were just 'pan size' and sufficient for one meal. Waste not want not! The cat didn't mind the 'bits' either!

So a suggestion if I may. KISS (Keep it simple Simon). Terry.

I have an IC275h allmode 2 meter that has the following problem:
USB, LSB or CW the receiver goes dead and the S Meter moves to half range
In tx the meter movement pegs with no audio to the microphone and no power output
With audio applied to the microphone the meter stays pegged but an external watt meter shows normal output Switch to FM and all is fine
Any ideas before I ship to Icom for repair.
Thanks

Steve;
I saw an IC275 radio for sale on e-bay with similar symptoms and was tempted to bid, so much so, I studied the schematic to try and troubleshoot it. There is a block (no schematic provided by ICOM) shown within the main unit called "DAS". I believe it contains the BFO circuitry for the SSB and CW modes. Trace back from pin 7 of IC4 and you will see what I mean. I suspect a bad crystal oscillator. IC4 could be bad as well. You will see a picture of this portion of the circuitry on page 6-5, look for adjustments L30, L31, C119 and test point R186.

I would think troubleshooting from the receive standpoint should yield success with the transmitter as well.

Please let me know how you make out with this, I would be real curious to hear what you find.

I might not phrase it the same way, but I did learn it by sounds.
O.K....So I memorized the 5 WPM, but after that it was only sounds.

Out of all the tests I found the Extra the easiest as I'd learned it like a language by then. (by then I'd been a ham for a long time <:-))) It was hearing word sounds...Problem was that I had to learn how to spell all over again and I no longer heard letter sounds.

For some, the sending can be a henderance as they can send faster than they can copy. Others find it to be an aid.

I have a devil of a time copying the Farnsworth way as it doesn't sound like it does on the air where the letters, words and spaces are all at the same speed (with some notable exceptions <G>)

It's a good way for learning...I think...But not helpful "for me" to get my speed up when copying conversation.
I spent about 3 weeks with the receiver turned up to a comfortable level while working on equipment. If I stretched out on the couch, I'd first tune in a good conversation going just a bit faster than I could copy. One day I realized that it was like listening to some one talking.

> KOCH METHOD - Learn morse code using high speed random characters.

"To me" this would be by far the most difficult method of all.

> FARNSWORTH - All tests are soon to be given at 12 WPM character speed, 5 WPM

After running into people transmitting this way, I find I'm learning to despise the code that is sent this way as well as the guy who came up with the method. On the bands it can be very difficult to seperate words when you run into this ... Even when writting it down, you have to go back and seperate the words. Good code that is properly weighted and has the proper spacing between letters and words is much easier to copy.

As you said at the beginning...It varies from person to person.

2396. Sharks, anyone?

UPI: News Release
Authorities along the shark-infested waters off the coast of North Carolina reported today that numerous sharks were seen in the shallow, warm waters by a Coast Guard helicopter that was patrolling the beach areas.
Authorities alerted the lifeguards along the beaches that several sharks were circling the warm waters and that swimmers were in extreme danger of attack. The lifeguards were quick to respond and rapidly spread the alarm to the swimmers in the area.
One lifeguard reported that after the warning a lone female swimmer refused to leave the water. The woman told the lifeguards that she had lost her glasses in the water and would not exit until she found them. She was floating about in a circle with her face down in the clear waters and was reportedly using a straw as a snorkeling device. When one of the lifeguards used his amplified bullhorn to tell the woman to leave the dangerous waters she turned, spit out some water and flipped him the ﷺfingerﷺ and used such foul language that many of the parents held their hands over their childrens ﷺ ears.
After several minutes of watching this woman the beachgoers gasped in apprehension as several sharks began circling this seemingly oblivious redhead. The menacing approach of the sharks seemed to not bother the woman, who continued to float about. The circling helicopter also used a public address system to warn the female, but she floated on and ignored the warnings.
The drama ended quite as quickly as it started. The woman found her glasses in about four feet of water and triumphantly plucked them from the bottom, put them on her face, and jumped happily up for all to see. In so doing the bottom of her bathing suit came off. The sharks did a sudden about face and fled the waters in record speed. One shark was reportedly seen regurgitating as it fled the beach area.
Officials declared the beach safe for swimming and allowed swimmers back into the watersﷺbut only after they made the woman put her bathing suit bottom on.
The Hiram Times reported that the red headed woman was allegedly offered a full-time job as a shark-repellant buoy. That has not been confirmed at this press date.

Question: If an ugly woman takes off her shoes and leaves cloven hoof prints in your yard, what do you do?
1. You call the local zoo to come get her.
2. You tie your Rottweiler out to keep her out of your yard.
3. You bring all the neighborhood kids inside.
4. You put a Rat Trap outside with an Old Milwaukee as bait.
5. You hire the Ugly Patrol to get a photo of the BigFoot.
6. You leave her alone while she goes to WalMart to buy soap.
7. You let her and her hubby get drunk and make crop circles in their neighbor's lawn.
8. You lend them a Hefty bag to tuck around their air conditioner to keep the rain out.

RESCUE RADIO: ATTY GENERAL ASCHROFT PRAISES HAM RADIO

United States Attorney General John Ashcroft had nothing but praise for ham radio operators who participated in a recent anti-terrorism drill in the Mid-West. Ashcroft was in Dayton Ohio when the city conducted a Weapons of Mass Destruction Preparedness Test on Friday, August 17th. According to District Emergency Coordinator Ron Moorefield, W8ILC, the Attorney General liked what he saw:

--

"John Ashcroft, the US Attorney General was really amazed at how all of our departments work very closely. He did make a comment to me: `...I have heard of Amateur Radio but you people are professionals. You are not amateurs.' That was a quote from him.

He [also] said that you guys had your act together and backed up everybody and kept everybody informed of what was going on."

The exercise, also known also as an Nuclear, Biological, Chemical Drill was held at the University of Dayton Arena. The American Red Cross first asked the Amateur Radio community for communications assistance. Ten operators took part and another twenty were on stand-by alert. Moorefield says it was a very well planned exercises:

--

"Everything fell into place. There was about 53 different departments involved. There was also enough time conducted for the drill so that each agency could set up what they had to set up." --

The radio amateurs were used to shadow important officials, communicate with local hospitals and talk to shelters set up by the Red Cross. Communications took place over the Dayton Amateur Radio Association's 146.94 MHz repeater and the Kettering Medical Center repeater on 145.11 MHz. Ron Moorefield, W8ILC, says that the hams in Dayton seem prepared for any eventuality:

-- "We are living in an age now with terrorism and weapons of mass destruction that makes this something we must all be concerned about, and the Amateurs are well aware of it. And I think that they will be prepared.

We would not barge in on something like this but we would wait until we were called and given a place." --

As a result of the exercises success, the state of Ohio has now been granted about 2 million dollars to aid local officials to fight possible terrorism through training and procurement of badly needed equipment . Moorefield says that even hams will be trained:

-- "The federal government has offered us some preliminary training on how to deal with coming in to such a [disaster] scene. I am starting to set some classes toward he end of the year and get a number of amateurs involved." --

Moorefield says that the classes will be open to all interested radio amateurs living in the area. Attorney General Ashcroft who was there to oversee the Weapons of Mass Destruction exercise declared it a complete success.

The complete interview with Ron Moorefield, W8ILC can be heard this week on Hap Holly's RAIN Report. Its on the web at www.rainreport.com or by phone at 847-827-7246. (ARNewsline(tm), W8ILC)

I wonder if the repeaters that this exercise relied upon will be available in a disaster.

Communications took place over the Dayton Amateur Radio Association's 146.94 MHz repeater and the Kettering Medical Center repeater on 145.11 MHz.

I've upgraded and am trying to liquidate some of the stuff I have left over.

The Alinco DR600 is an older dualband radio but works like a champion.

The mobile dualbander has been used in the car so it has a little bit of dust on it. All the mods have been done to this. It has three power settings. 2m has 5w, 25w, 50w. The 440 side has 5w, 20w, 35w.

I also have a Kenwood handheld TH-215 220 radio. It looks brand new, hardly ever used.

I have no idea what this stuff is going for so, lets give it a try on price.

Dualband $250 and HT $150. Payment will be prepay or COD with Cashiers Check or Money Order only.

Now if you don't agree with these prices, just keep it to yourself. The prices can always be negotiated.

Thanks, Juan

Very sage advice here. It's interesting to hear things come back to me that I thought might've been just me. I learned to copy on a keyboard and then found it challenging to do the same on paper. I passed the test and then found the challenge of recognizing a character without a space to "think" about it. I'm sure I could copy a character at 20wpm or more easily but not without that PAUSE to let it register. I'm sure the elmers out there aren't physically "copying" anything and I'll get there some day to recognize words vice characters. Possibly the most interesting of all is the frustration that the more experienced fellas feel when that PAUSE breaks their concentration.
After I've passed the test, now I have to clear hurdle of UN-learning bad habits. If I had the chance to do it again, I think I might start slow with normal character spacing and improve my speed 'til I made 7 1/2 - 10 wpm to take the test.

When i built my last house, i ran CAT5 wire throughout the house for ethernet. Worked great..... now i'm building a new house and i'm wondering whether i should again run a bunch of CAT5 or if i should try using wireless ethernet cards/hubs. Has anyone seen/heard of any interference from or to ham radio and these wireless lan devices?

If the HF radio is going to interfere with the network devices, or vice-versa, then i'll go with CAT5 again....

I haven't detected any wireless lan interference (or at least none I can attribute to such), but I've had plenty of interference from 2.4GHz cordless phones, including several which trigger my repeater (because they pass audio frequencies in the "PL range" [i.e. 64-256 Hz]). There is another transmission in my area, but it could be some sort of data transmission between the phone and its base, not wireless LAN stuff.

The following doesn't answer your explicit question, but since you mentioned that you're about to build a house...

I future-proofed a previous residence by installing strategically-located outlet boxes which were initially empty, but each was connected to the unfinished basement by way of a length of half-inch electrical conduit (often just a foot-long scrap). The upstairs boxes were connected to the unfinished attic (which was a bit more effort and longer conduit scraps). The attic was (in turn) connected back to the basement by way of yet another, much larger diameter, conduit.

The whole house is interconnected by way of embedded conduit. It was cheap (almost free) and most of it was extremely easy to install. Only a couple of conduit runs were a minor pain. As needs changed, the telephone line could be pulled out of one box and moved to another. The satellite TV cable could be moved to chase the home theatre around the living room. And of course, ham radio antenna cables (or CAT5) could be run anywhere. If and when someone were to arrive bearing fibre optic cable, then it would be simple to accommodate.

No matter what you decide to do with the LAN, a few outlet boxes around the ham shack, the computer desks, and the home theatre locations, with conduit to the basement (or service room), would be a safe bet.

When you say "tap in" do you mean snooping, or actually insert a device into the lan?

I'm not too concerned about snooping, as i have nothing to hide, and any private info, if ever on the wire, is always encrypted with SSL. I even use a VPN from my workstations

I use wireless ethernet through out this house, and amateur radio on most bands, I have absolutely no problems at all. Only problem I had at 1 point was it bothered my 900 MHZ cordless phone but I just went and got a 2.4 gig cordless phone for $60 which I wanted anyway I just had no reason to buy one til then, but anyway, the amateur radio setup doesn't bother the ethernet at all and I'll tell ya it is a hell of a lot easier to do that then to run wires all over the place. I tried both.

My wife and I took our element 2 last Saturday and have been anxiously awaiting our call signs. Something gave me the impression that the license would be in by about Wednesday, though I can't remember what gave me that impression. It's Friday and I see no sign of my registration in the FCC database so I'm starting to get a bit nervous. At what point should I assume something went wrong?

I know I'm being a bit impatient, but I've still got a lot to learn!

NORMAL licensing delays:
- The VE Team has 10 days to mail the results in.
- The USPS indicates that first class mail can take up to 3 days
- The VEC has 10 days (under normal circumstances) to electronically file the results with the FCC.
- The FCC takes one day (excluding Sundays) to process it.
At this point, two separate actions happen:
- The FCC posts the results one day later
- Third party database web sites download the daily changes and post (one more day)
AND simultaneously
- The FCC prints and mails a license, received 7 days later.

So, you could be waiting as much as 25 days for your license to show in the database and 31 days for a printed license to show up in the mail.

As for the shortest time:
- The VE team overnight mails the results the next day. (2 days)
- The VEC processes it the day it's received.
- The FCC posts it the next day.
So, it could be three days. I have actually seen results post in 4 days (with an intervening Sunday) in some cases.

I don't want to get into a big political discussion on THIS group, but note that hispanics are going to overwhelm blacks entirely as a constituency. The GOP has lost (and will never regain) the black vote, because of their inability to be the liars and deceivers at the most base level like the Dems are.

However, both GOPers and Dems aren't happy about Bush's behavior (Rush was almost tearing Bush a new ahole a few days ago). I don't listen to Rush all that much, so I don't know the context for his semi-rant, though.

(Note that I am neither GOP nor Dem, and would be embarassed to be a Dem, and am VERY UNHAPPY with the political incompetence of the GOP.)

sounds like most people have no interference problems with the wireless lan and ham radio. that's a good thing, and since i use a vpn from my workstations to the gateway, i feel ok about using it. Maybe i'll go for it... i just wanted to make sure there'd be no interference. I have enough interference from my computers. :)

I did? Now you might want to take that club-foot out of your mouth, fuckling.
I 've been lurking but, I've enjoyed you being roasted in another thread as the anonymous coward you are. You have such a talent for making yourself look stupid.

And it's nice to see that you have such an obsessive attraction for me that you track my

You can do that, can't you, imbecile? Of course you can.

Of course. It's exactly like noting that you're an inbred sister-fucker from Chickenfuck, Alabama, who's alias reveals an undying love of the proto-Nazi Rednecks who fought to keep African-Americans as slaves.
There's nothing wrong with doing either of those things.

Shit, boy, why the hell didn't you just name yourself Nathan Bedford

That and the snowstorm of dandruff you've somehow managed to accumulate on that unconvincing wig of yours. It's time you had that fucking rag put down Lee. I've heard there's more wildlife living within your man-made thatch of horsehair than residing beneath. If you're such an accomplished artist you might consider merely drawing some stringy wisps of hair across your sweaty scalp to avoid the skin complaints you suffer. That is, if you can manage to keep your vibrating, parkinson's-motivated paws from doodling all over your boil ridden face.

> Great inventions are always that way.

You're hanging around the trailer park too much to know better. But I suppose if you asked one of your neanderthal parents to explain the above, they would give you that same confused look of shock like when they first discovered that their only son is really a masturbating faggot...

I apologize up front for being complete naievely and inexperienced. Because what I'm asking about isn't commonplace I assume there must be a theoretical flaw with it, and I don't understand the theory enough to know what it is. Thanks goes to the kind soul who can clear me up on this. Here's my question:

How come we need high frequencies (eg gz) to transmit data (eg mz)? Why can't one encode one bit of data on one cycle of a carrier wave -- or even multiple bits on a single wave?

For example, couldn't one takes four bits and uses a FM scheme to map them to 100 - 115 mz, yeilding a throughput of roughly 400 megabits per second? (Ok, so I have no knowledge of licensing or practicalities of choosing one frequency over another, but theoretically speaking...)

Also, I'd be delighted for URLs of websites which can help a curious novice like me along my trek of RF-electronics comprehension.

Excellent questions.

Answering them is basically the first step into the world of information theory, a discipline founded by Claude Shannon, a man whose work no radio amateur should remain ignorant of. His book "The Mathematical Theory of Communication" is excellent, and still available.

Shannon determined that the maximum rate that information can be transmitted (called the channel capacity) is determined by the formula

C = B * log(1+SNR)

where C is in bits per second, and B is bandwidth in Hz, and SNR is the signal to noise ratio. So in other words, you can get faster transmission by increasing bandwidth, and that works much better than trying to increase your SNR.

So you mean that if our signal is 9 x stronger than the channel noise (ie 1+SNR=10, and assuming log = log base 10) then one can encode one bit per Hz, right? And if Signal is 2x the noise then we get just under one bit per two Hz (ie 0.477)... Either these are outrageously high signal to noise ratios (what are normal real-world values?) or typical radio modems are real under-achievers.

What am I missing?

Thanks!

If I were a betting person, I'd bet that Roger has a massive archive of these kinds of responses saved somewhere on his hard drive. He does this because, first and foremost he is a proven plagiarist. He does so secondly because he has not the talent to write such responses by and of himself. Can't you just see Roger? Squinty-eyed little guy with small beads of perspiration forming on his upper lip while he furiously searches the news groups for other peoples' responses? Next he wipes those little beads from his pouty lip, does a cut, copy, and paste so he can begin adding names to suit the response du jour.

I hope that someone out there has done this before. We have a new baby girl here as of today! Bringing her home today caused some new problems. The new baby seats require that infants must face the rear of the car. My wife nor I can see the little one without doing major contortions (I drive a Dodge Neon). I have a little CCD video camera here and an old Sony Watchman (QRP TV) that could make a dandy mobile baby monitor. I would like to add a video in jack to the Sony. I do not have a schematic for the set. This was a popular mod to do as many CCTV installers had units modified to do this.
(Sony made a Watchman minus tuner built for this purpose but at $350.00 many companies bought the regular watchman @ $99.00 and added the video in jack.) Anyone know how to do this? I could figure it out if I had access to the schematic.

Thanks in advance,

Translation: Roger has no clue as to who is posting what. He is angry at being thwarted and sees this as an affront to what he considers to be his above average intellect. In short, Roger is quite simply angry. His last desparate step is to delve into the depths of the local garbage container and use W4AMP to threaten Stagger. Gee....crybaby! You can't handle it so

The mount I think you are referring to is made by IIX Equipment Ltd. His WEB page is http://w9iix.com/.

I have one of his mounts in a 98' Ford Escort with a 10 and 2 meter radio mounted to it. It was the only way I could get a radio(s) in this car as it has no other place or way to mount. I am very please with it. This is a very heavy duty mount. Check out the WEB page and if you have any questions please let me know.

[UPDATE] HIRAM, GA: The FCC has sent a Warning Notice to General licensee James V. O'Brien III, W4AMP, indicating that he or someone using his call sign was "deliberately interfering with and jamming radio communications" on 75 meters and was coordinating on 2-meter FM with another station, KE4KXP (Charles W. Parris Jr, now K4JMZ--see below), to interfere with stations on various 75-meter frequencies. The FCC's Riley Hollingsworth, K4ZDH, said March 24 that he received assurances from O'Brien regarding the allegations outlined in the Warning Notice. "We've talked, and the matter is closed for now, as far as I'm concerned," Hollingsworth said. In a call to the ARRL, O'Brien--a League member--denied any wrongdoing and asserted that the FCC Warning Notice was based upon "totally false and inaccurate" information from a third party.

HIRAM, GA: The FCC on June 28, 2000, sent a Warning Notice to General licensee James V. O'Brien III, W4AMP, and a Notice of Intent to designate O'Brien's Amateur Radio station license for a revocation hearing and his operator license for suspension for the remainder of its term. FCC Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement Riley Hollingsworth said monitoring information before the Commission dating from January of this year indicates that the licensee is "seriously misinformed about the basis and purpose" of Amateur Radio and about the FCC's enforcement of the prohibition against obscene or indecent transmissions. The FCC alleges the offending transmissions took place on 3894.5 kHz, 144.35 MHz and 223.5 MHz. Hollingsworth said if the alleged operation recurs, the FCC would designate W4AMP for a revocation hearing and O'Brien's General license for suspension. Hollingsworth noted that the FCC's rules prohibit transmitting obscene or indecent words or language and that, for indecency purposes, the FCC uses the same standard for commercial and amateur transmissions. "Obscene speech is not protected by the First Amendment and cannot be broadcast at any time," Hollingsworth said in the letter, which also defined and detailed the proscriptions against indecent and obscene transmissions. In a lengthy e-mail response to Hollingsworth that he shared with the ARRL and others, O'Brien vigorously denied making any obscene transmissions. He said he keeps a "complete and accurate log" of his radio operations and would "gladly submit it for inspection." Additionally, O'Brien said, he has not operated on 3894.5 kHz at all this year. He suggested that any profanity monitored on the two VHF frequencies cited by the FCC was directed at him by an ex-FCC employee who, O'Brien asserted, has been harassing him for more than four years. O'Brien pledged to operate "in full accordance" with FCC rules. He also requested that the FCC provide any recordings, log information, and FCC monitoring information it has regarding the present allegations.

Here's at least one corroboration of that. I tested for General (and passed, thank you) at the Houston FCC District office. The surroundings were "early bureaucracy", certainly, but I have no complaints about how I was received and treated.

Now after all these years, I totally agree with the original poster. My HF station is being sold on consignment, and I'm off the air. Life's way too short to spend it fending off all the dipsticks on the bands these days. It didn't used to be like that.

It get's better. Right there in that same post, message ID <845850702.29882.0%40tiktok.demon.co.uk>, are paragraphs that have appeared in other (f)lames by Scheissman, aka "Mysterian2001".

(Google tip: to search for a specific message ID, use, for example, msgid:845850702.29882.0%40tiktok.demon.co.uk . The angle brackets are optional.)

From the FyRE post:

#Yet you still feel the compulsion to do so. Here's an idea,
#gibbon-boy. Take that tired and well worn sentence, scribble it down #with your edible crayons on one of the tissues you presumably keep #nearby, and stick it on the padded wall above your monitor. That done, #whenever you feel the urge to reveal your blinding ignorance in usenet
#you can just read the wise words, count to ten, and do yourself a #favour.

And from Scheissman, posting as "Mysterian2001", in Same words, same line-breaks, even the same target (moi).

Next is the "snowstorm of dandruff" paragraph, whose plagiarism by "KC8JBO" is already documented.

From the FyRE post:

#How true. Here's a man who set out to cause mirth with his somewhat

I don't think I'd read this post; that "Fester the twat" bit would have been a dead giveaway. ("Fester the Rat" was a bad comic strip drawn by long-spanked flamer James Koput; FyRE was his nemesis.)

From the FyRE post:

#Perhaps this would explain why Chason's "flames" are less "abnormally

Scheissman, I know you're reading this, because you just can't get enough of my words. I told you to get some new material. Instead, you got some old material. Somebody else's old material. Substituting

You have just completely discredited yourself. You are...the Weakest

PKB, pissant.

Did you finally awaken from your drug and alcohol-induced unconsciousness, smoke that twistie and log on with that inferior system box? The low-grade observer who's so easily led actually stutters out one of his pitiable excercises in mee-too-ism with mangled syntax. Shouldn't you go slurp some scotsman,

* PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations. As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

3W, VIETNAM. Robert, N4CD, expects to be active in 3W6-land, October 2-15th. No callsign was mentioned. Activity will be on 20/15/10 meters and maybe 40 meters (No other bands possible at this time). QSL via N4CD CBA or via overseas bureau.

6Y, JAMAICA. Harry/AC8G, Richard/N6NR, ELSIE/N7YX, Ron/WA8LOW and Ron/W8ILC will activate 6Y6L as a Multi-Multi entry in the CQ WW SSB Contest, October 27-28th, from a site near Montego Bay. The group plans to have four complete stations with amplifiers and a selection of beams, verticals and dipoles. QSLs go to WA8LOW - SASE preferred. Do not send to the 6Y5 bureau. The group expects to begin limited activity under the operators home call/6Y5 by late October 23 using SSB, CW, PSK31 and may include 6 meters. QSL via the appropriate home call. Again, do not send QSLs to the 6Y5 bureau.

AUGUST DX REPORT. "August is usually a slow month DX wise and conditions aren't that great, stated Joe." However, Joe, W1JR, will tell you otherwise. Joe states, "Despite the above, I put on a new Yaesu FT-817 just 4 weeks ago and the latest tally is over 158 different DXCC entities and 35 zones (missed zones 3,4, 19, 30 and 38) worked. No help or nets or going from QRO to QRP! The antenna is a Hygain TH-11 up 20 meters. Contacts are split, very close to 50% for CW and SSB with over 90 worked on each mode! Not bad for 4.0 Watts!. DX is still alive and well."

BACK IN MARTINIQUE (FM5GU/I wrapped up!). Denis, FM5GU, informs OPDX and its readers that after 5 years of transmissions from Italy where he had to stay for his job, FM5GU has now wrapped up his Italian portable station and has returned to Martinique. From Italy he had logged tens of thousands of QSOs, with 227 DXCC countries, most of them barefoot with an incredibly simple station and a "bewitched wire" as antenna. All details on the "bewitched wire", the station in Italy and Martinique, the logs, his contesting and DX schedule, can be found on the Web site:
http://www.qsl.net/fm5gu
FM5GU wishes to thank all those who gave him a report. All QSLs direct via KU9C.

BV7, TAIWAN. NODXA's good friend Holger, DL7IO, informed OPDX that he was in Taiwan for 2 weeks a few weeks go on business. Because of the very short preparation time (received info 3 days before flight) he thought there was no hope to be active from there. Nevertheless, Holger was able to receive a license (TNX to BV5AF). He was able to find some hours of spare time and some BV ops (BV7FO & BV7GA) to operate some radio a little bit as BV7/DL7IO. Holger told your editor that he will go to Taiwan again on September 13th for another 1 or 2 weeks, and there is a good chance he'll be back on the air again for a few hours during his nights. This time Holger was able to prepare some antennas (40-17m) and will be on CW on the bands around 1400-1800z, if he can (because of QRL). His callsign will be BV7/DL7IO, and he will operate from Kaohsiung in southern Taiwan. QSL via DL7VRO.
PLEASE NOTE: Holger states Taiwan's 30 meter band is from 10130-10150 kHz. So one has to check the upper part of that band. Other suggested frequency ranges to look for him are:
17 meters - 18068-18080.5 and 18110-18112.5 kHz
12 meters - 24890-24902.5 and 24930-24942.5 kHz

C9, MOZAMBIQUE (IOTA Op). Babs/DL7AFS, Lot/DJ7ZG, Karl/DL2FAG and Simone/DL8GCS (IV3NVN) will operate between September 28th and October 13th from Inhaca Island (AF-066), Mozambique as C98DC. The group will be on 160-10 meters, including the WARC bands, using SSB, CW, RTTY and PSK31. Two and possibly three stations will be used and when band openings are permitted, also 6 meters will be activated. QSOs with Babs will be specially signed to validate them for the YL-Awards. An online-log will be available after the DXpedition on their homepage. QSL C98DC via DL7AFS (bureau) or direct to: Babs Linge, Eichwaldstr. 86, 34123 Kassel, Germany Their web page for this operation is at: http://www.qsl.net/dl7afs/index.html

D4, CAPE VERDE. Xara, CT1EKF, has been active on the air with his new callsign D44TD and will be there until September 23rd (or possibly October 1st). DX MAGAZINE'S MOST WANTED SURVEY 2001. Carl, N4AA, editor of QRZ DX, announced this week the annual DX Magazine's Most Wanted Survey is now available on the DX Publishing Web site at:
http://www.dxpub.com/dx_survey2001.html
Please be careful when filling in the boxes at the top of the form so your reply will be counted in the proper time-zone/continent. The world-wide results of the 2000 Survey are posted on the web site under "DX News" and the continental/mode breakdown was published in The DX Magazine for January/February and March/April 2001. Carl hopes you will all participate in this survey as it is considered to be the most accurate survey of "Most Wanted."

E3, ERITREA. Chris/DL5NAM and Dieter/DF4RD inform OPDX that, "We are going to do it again!" After a very successful trip last year as E30TA they will go again this year as E30NA to Eritrea. Last year the two got many E-mails with questions for the low bands and CW, so they will double their team for this year to include Chris/DL5NAM (SSB,RTTY,6m), Dieter/ DF4RD (SSB/CW), Wolf/OE2VEL (low bands, SSB/CW) and Falk/DK7YY (low band, CW). The team will start on October 17th through November 3rd. The exact QTH has not been determined at the moment, however, they will try to go to the Dahlak Archipelago IOTA island group (AF-038). The problem at the moment is the power situation on the island and the high cost for shipping to the island. The only location on the island is under construction and should (!) be finished by the end of September. There is no ferry service, so they will have to charter a boat and will need a truck for transport from airport to the port (5 hour trip). If they can't go to the island they will stay again in the capital. The group must again pay 500 (USD) for each license. At the moment they have no big sponsors, as they have been told this is not rare enough. The group is asking the DX community for financial support. Anyone who can help support this operation is asked to please contact team leader Chris, DL5NAM, by E-mail to:
dl5nam@qsl.net
The emphasis this year will be for more North America, Asia, and the lowbands. A web site for E30NA will be coming soon to:

http://www.qsl.net/e30na

On this trip he expects to activate some IOTA islands in the Tuamotu Island Group: Nakupa IOTA OC-094, Hao IOTA OC-066, Pukapuka IOTA OC-062 and Hereheretue IOTA OC-052. Some transportation problems still have to be worked out upon his arrival in Tahiti. He expects to be on Napuka on September 26th. If he cannot get to Napuka he will go to Hao. For Hereheretue, confirmation of accomodation and local generator is OK, but he still has a lot of details to work out on how to get to this tiny island. His callsign will be FO0DEH, as usual, and QSL via his homecall ON4QM.

Since the Island is used as a military bomb-dropping range, there are a lot of unexplosive bombs on the Island and it is very dangerous. To insure team members' safety, an advance party which consists of Alan/BA1DU, Jerry/BA1FB and Chen/BA1HAM will head to the Island on September 5th, and will search the Island to see if it is safe enough for amateur radio activity. If everything is suitable, the rest of BI4F team members will arrive the Island on September 7th. They plan to operate until September 10th, using three stations and work on CW, SSB and RTTY on normal IOTA frequencies from 40-10 meters bands. QSL via operator's instruction. (Editor's Notes: This operation did start and is active with the new IOTA number AS-160.)

Their acitivity is planned to take place between 80-10 meters, using SSB and CW, maybe also some digital modes.

EU-170. Tibor, HA3HP, will activate the Island of Dugi Otok (CI-018) from September 8-15th. They plan to operate with their own callsigns during their visit; JT1FZW and JT1FYT. QSL to their home callsigns. They plan to be there until September 28th. Once they install the new vertical for Chak, they are hoping he will give out more Zone 23s this winter on 80 and 160 meters. Karl states that he worked him (Chak) this past December on 80 meters CW, but it was difficult from Virginia. With the new antenna, many more hams will be able to finish their 5BWAZ this season.

KH3, JOHNSTON ATOLL (OC-023). The final countdown has started for the K3J operation. Remember to look for Dan/KH6UW (leader), Mike/AL7KC, Bob/W7TSQ and Tom/K7ZZ to be active from here September 11-18th. The critical permission letter to visit the island has been received. Please do not send earlier than the second half of October. Answers on E-mail requests go out via the bureau.

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
3Y0C QSL UPDATE. Mac, WA4FFW, states "that with the help of N4OL and WJ4T, all DX and all Stateside cards have been MAILED as of September 6th, except for the bureau cards. There are several hundred cards, some DX and some U.S., in which one or more QSOs did not appear in the computer log. Before returning those requests as "Not In The Log ", Mac wants to check these against the paper log. He did not want to slow the overall process by doing this as they were processing the other cards. This would have delayed all the cards. We are working on all those cards presently and are mailing them daily. So we ask that you give us some time to complete. Bureau cards and any further request will be processed immediately following NIL cards. We appreciate everyone's patience while we were processing the cards. We did them as fast as we were capable of and everyone owes N4OL and WJ4T a big thanks for all the hours and effort they put in to make it happen. Without their assistance the cards would have not been out as soon as they were."

Emir, 9A6AA, is back home in Zagreb from the Island of Losinj (EU-136, CI-058) after 77 days and 3000 QSOs. Last QSO he made was on September

Ghis, ON5NT, reports that he is receiving QSLs for a "9X1A" who was active mostly in September 2000. He doesn't know anything about this station and apparenty he gave a P.O.Box in Kigali. However, Ghis is the only QSL Manager for 9X1A for the CQ WPX Contest in May 1995. This was an operation by Mark, ON4WW (9X4WW).

A61AJ now has a new QSL route. Bernie, W3UR, Editor of "The Daily DX", states: "Due to a lack of time with my family and business I must step down as QSL manager for Ali, A61AJ. Joe Veras, N4QB, will now be handling the QSLing chores. He will have all logs for all QSOs made by A61AJ. Effective today (September 5th), all QSL requests need to go to N4QB. If you have already sent your request to W3UR they will be answered by me. Direct QSLs will go out this month. Bureau cards will go out by the end of the year. Any requests sent to W3UR after today will be forwarded to N4QB. The A61AJ Contest team will be very QRV over the next 3 months. Please help spread the word to your friends, clubs, news letters and magazines of this change." N4QB's address is: Joe Veras, P.O. Box 1041, Birmingham, AL 35201, USA.

YASME DX PRESS RELEASE (Manchester, Conn., USA, September 4, 2001).... DXCC Squared the Hard Way! The late Iris Colvin, W6QL, and Lloyd Colvin, W6KG, worked, confirmed, and received DXCC from more than 100 DXCC Countries, operating as a team. This fact has now been established as research continues on biographies of the Colvins. The biographies' author, Jim Cain, K1TN, continues to seek information, photos, and anecdotes on the Colvins and on the early (1950s) Yasme days. He can be reached at yasmebook@mybizz.net <mailto:yasmebook@mybizz.net> . "We've counted DXCCs from 109 DXCC countries so far," Cain said, "not including any of the dozens of DXCCs Lloyd and Iris achieved as individuals from California. Can anyone top this?"

ZK1, NORTH COOK ISLANDS (Update). Victor, ZK1CG, informs OPDX that their plans for Manihiki, North Cook Islands (OC-014), are almost complete; just the food, more fuel and antennas will be shipped sometime within a week. This will complete the shipments of gear and food for the six operators who will to be active in the CQ WW SSB Contest. Victor/ZK1CG, Roger/ZK1VVV (W7VV) and their host Tuatai/ZK1MA will fly to Manihiki on October 18th to start setting up the antennas and do some testing for 24 hours before the contest. This effort will be the largest with the most antennas set-up for any North Cook operation in history. They want to make sure their score is something for other operators to take notice, and to make sure everyone has a chance to work North Cook on all the bands. They will be on Manihiki for 2 weeks with the main group for the contest, and then they will return to Rarotonga, South Cook (OC-013) for 2 to 3 weeks operating on all bands and modes. Victor reports that this is a costly expedition, so any donations would be a big help to the group. The group has donated to the Island a freezer and stove, plus gear for Tuatai/ZK1MA to be able to operate after the Atoll was hit by a hurricane a few years ago which wiped out his antennas and house. Donations can be sent to Roger, W7VV.

ZK1, NORTH COOK ISLANDS. Yuu/JR2KDN and Yasu/JI1NJC will be heading back to Penrhyn Island (OC-082), October 20th through November 3rd. They will receive their callsign upon their arrival. Jan has been getting busy on SSB on the higher bands, especially on 15/10 meters after 1830z. QSL via OM2SA.

ZS, SOUTH AFRICA (Radio Ops To Operate From The Hell). Dennis, ZS4BS, informs OPDX that over the weekend of September 21-24th, twelve radio amateurs from the Western Cape will pack their equipment and make their way to "The Hell", where a special station will be erected. "The Hell" is also known as Gamkaskloof or Gamka's valley, and is situated in the Swartberg Mountains of the Southern Cape Province. [In the area between 33 deg 28 S, 21 deg 15 E and 33 deg 33 S, 21 deg 42 E.] An application has been made for the callsign ZS1HEL, and a special QSL card will be issued for contacts. Subject: 9/12/01 is my birthday, be nice to me this week!

I will be having my birthday again this year on Wedensday. I will be 28. I think that if someone wanted to be real generous and send me something nice, my address is good in QRZ.

It's tough living alone on days like your birthday. I mean, i am depressed alot of the time. No one at the Church seems to care. So where do i have to go? Listening to Prophet Stair and Hal Turner, they comfort me. All i do is sit at the computer and read newsgroups and read Hal's webpages. I've tried going to a couple of country dance places, but none of gals would have a dance with me. It seems every time I try to do something that would be break away from this life of lonlyness always fails.

Just wanted to speak my mind,

Lloyd

Here's a birthday suggestion that will relieve your depression.

Get up and get out and do some volunteer work to help the needy. Look in your phone book for:

Red Cross
Salvation Army
Alzheimers Association
Meals on Wheels
Big Brothers / Big Sisters
Rescue Mission
Soup Kitchen

All of these agencies in the Athens area need volunteers to help people who can't help themselves.

Also a good chance for you to meet new people while being a "Good Samaritan". And by helping the helpless, your own problems will not look as big any more.

http://www.breaking.qpg.com/

Or .. call this place .. :
Downtown Rescue Mission
2411 9th Avenue SW
Huntsville, AL 35805-4159
Phone: (256) 536-2441

Serve God, help the helpless, get your mind off of your own problems, meet new people, learn new things, who knows what might happen once you go out and get involved.

Good luck and God-Speed. Let us know how it goes.

Look up Matthew 25:35-40 and you will see I am leading you in the RIGHT direction.

Interesting situation here...

As of the time I am posting this, N1RZB had received a total of eight responses to his inquiry, and not one of them had anything to do with answering his question! Instead of helping the guy, everyone gripes and whines about cross-posting!

Yeah, I know that there are both written and unwritten rules of "netiquette", and perhaps N1RZB shouldn't have posted his query to some of the groups that he did post to. But perhaps we need to take a closer look at this. What's happened to the hobby? What's happened to hams being helpful to each other? Instead of getting an answer to his question, all he gets is bitched at by a bunch of self-appointed "interenet cops". We keep hearing that ham radio is "dying out". It's no wonder! When someone can't get a straight answer to a valid ham radio question, or get ANY answer in this case, it ain't hard to see why people aren't sticking with the hobby. I've heard it said that the internet is killing ham radio. This is a perfect example!

I wish I could give this gentleman an answer, but I really have no personal experience with six meters. I'm sure I'll be flamed for cross-posting this message, and for being one of the people who isn't giving the guy any help. At least I'm WILLING to help... I'm just not ABLE to help.

2512. Newbie Question: Limits of DSP

Can anyone answer the following question (appologies if the answer is obvious, I'm a newbie....)

How close to the antenna will DSP get? I know that with current technology, it is possible to process IF range signals in real (or near real) time. With faster and faster microprocessors and faster and faster (?) DSP chips will it ever be possible to directly process signals in the RF range?

If this is feasible would we ever see:

a) receivers that are essentially just RF amplifiers/buffers straight into DSP?

b) transmitters that are essentially DSP-->RF amplifier-->Antenna

Thanks....

Tim

I've been looking at the new RCI 5054 (over Internet not in person yet) and thinking it didn't look like to bad of a deal ($300), I just wish it had the tone board already installed and not an 'add on' like it is now.

I wish it were that easy. I'd love to get out and help others, but over 2 years ago, I was burned bad by one of those "Bible Thumper" Churches. I was off and on as far as Job status was. I helped out in a couple of the Children's programs. I decided at the time to try to center everything around the Local Church and God's people. Maybe things would work out some. Not. The Preacher was a "Hyles_anderson" type and treated everyone like inventory, except his buddys. Well, I wanted to get some counseling from him, well I'll say that never happened. He is so such a "busy man" He makes you make appointments with his wife. BTW, mention this guys name around here, and eveybody runs for cover!

Well to make long story short, I left the Church. You see, I did do my best for God and still was looked down on. Was it my looks? Was it the Car I drove? Was it just me?

Unlike you, Dean, I don't have any poignant predictions to make about the future of the hobby, but it is VERY clear what will happen to the newsgroups if people aren't discouraged from cross-posting to ten groups at once. THAT insight doesn't require any soul-searching at all.

What the original poster did was every bit as much a part of "the hobby" as tuning up a 2KW transmitter in the middle of the band without bothering to turn on his receiver first. Crossposting to 10 unrelated groups is an act that could only indicate careless naivete on the part of a newbie, or extreme discourtesy on the part of someone who should know better. A quick check of Mr. Moge's extensive posting history on Deja will reveal which of those two options is most likely to apply here.

Followups set to the appropriate group...

Local Church is not always God's people. Could be a little club with an ego-maniac "minister" in charge.

First Baptist, First Methodist, First Presbyterian, etc, probably treat you a LOT better.

I did NOT refer you to a church .. I said AGENCIES. And you will find people there from LOTS of DIFFERENT churches.

It was the morons you listened to. They betrayed your trust .. they will pay. BIG TIME. Just wait and see.

Such things already exist. I work with them every day.
In this case "RF" means up to about 100 kHz.

A point of terminology: a DSP chip is a microprocessor.
"Real" DSP chips like those made by Analog Device, Motorola and Texas Instruments have hardware optimized for the kind of operations used in DSP, but you can do DSP on any general-purpose computer that has enough compute power.

The issues are twofold: dynamic range and available processing power.

Dynamic range is limited by the size in bits of the data the DSP works with, with some adjustment for any analogue circuitry between the digital circuits and the outside world.

Available processing power specifies (very roughly) how much bandwidth you can play with. Really fast processing is still done in hardware (Intersil make some interesting chips for such things). I don't know if it makes economic sense to develop chips to do in software what an HSP50016 does in hardware. Maybe some day it will; I look forward to playing with the results.

Well, you just answered your own question. You joined a church run by a self-serving fake minister, and found out the hard way, as did everyone else, that it was a jerk joint. You must know that the bad experience had to with that church and that "pastor." If you realize this, and you still would love to get out and help others, then you still owe it to yourself to do this. Stop making excuses.

> Well to make long story short, I left the Church. You see, I did do my God did not look down on you. Your church experience had nothing to do with God, but rather, how well you deal with hardship. God is waiting to see what you do next. The ball is in your court. Stop feeling sorry for yourself, get out there, and volunteer to really help someone who has no computer, has no car, has no home, has no hope for tomorrow. To that person you help, you'll be a hero...imagine what that feels like.

My, my, Roger. The foaming spittle sure is flying from that pouty little mouth of yours, isn't it? Whassa matter, Wog? Getting a tad bit rabid are you? Chason get to you again? How furiously your pudgy little fingers must be attacking your keyboard!

Now please don't go changing the subject, Roger. The subject was plagiarism, not the events of the distant past. Your primary interest in the past seems to be to "plagiarize, plagiarize, don't let a post evade your eyes" to paraphrase Tom L.

You have been caught with your pants down. Time to pull them up and go home.

If I was you, I would get to your bank the minute after you read this and withdrawl a couple of hundred dollars.

Most of the banking transactions are cleared thru NYC and NNJ. If NYC is "out" from a telecom standpoint, then it's probably a safe bet the World's Financial Centre is shut down too.

Better play it safe folks!!

You can put it back in next week after things settle out (??)

Twice-fired FCC employee wanted by Federal Communications Commission for violations of Part 97. George F. Arsics, Jr., ex K1QKJ, AB4ZV, and currently W2ZB, is wanted by the FCC for multiple repeat violations of part 97 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. As you will recall this is the ex-Powder Springs FCC employee who was caught by his co-workers jamming KV4FZ on 14.313 in a drunken stupor, and promptly fired. Since that time Arsics has been directly involved with the jamming, stalking, and harassment of several amateurs through a group known as the "Goodfellows". Other accomplices of Arsics in this activity have been N4CND, WB2OTK (call revoked), N4XCV (call revoked), KA9BSD, KK9G, and N9PGE. Arsics lost his home at 2571 Bethany Lane in a last minute sale to avoid foreclosure earlier this year. Thus his FCC ULS data is fraudalent. Arsics has done this in the past, once listing the retirement home where his father passed on his 610. This enables him to freely jam other amateurs on HF with no fear of revocation. According to part 97, and we quote,
" §97.23 Mailing address.
Each license grant must show the grantee's correct name and mailing address. The mailing address must be in an area where the amateur service is regulated by the FCC and where the grantee can receive mail delivery by the United States Postal Service. Revocation of the station license or suspension of the operator license may result when correspondence from the FCC is returned as undeliverable because the grantee failed to provide the correct mailing address."

If you know the actual physical location of the station owned by George Arsics, Jr. used to jam and stalk other hams, please report this information to your local FCC Field Office or contact Riley Hollingsworth, Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement at rholling@FCC.gov.

I went straight to my bank and pulled $450.00 in cash out just in case.

This is scary shit pal. I think it's better to have some Mobil notified CT dealers as of midnight tonight they're being cut back to 10% over contract minimums for supply. This represents roughly a 25% reduction over typical recent demand according to the dealer I spoke with.

I suspect this is a precaution, but things could be interesting for a week or two, particularly if people panic.

I remember back in the original energy crunch some idiots would wait in line for gas and need less than a gallon to fill up.

We'll probably see a spike upwards for a couple weeks, but unless you own a fleet, it's probably not going to be anything beyond a short term inconvenience.

As for keeping extra cash in your wallet, I think it's always a good idea to keep extra cash on hand because you never know when you might run into an emergency like a tag sale with a nice radio.

Regards,

Mark

Today should be the day that America takes the war to the shores of the terrorists. It is time to fight fire with fire. We have been sitting targets for much too long.
By the way, despite the long gas lines, we are still paying $1.89 (up from $1.69) today. The only gas station owners likely to rip off our citizens will be the rag-heads who own or operate same.

All true survivalists and Boy Scouts know to be prepared;
you don't draw money out AFTER an emergency (because you might not get it), you have it (and supplies and equipment) on hand BEFORE an emergency.

Consider this a learning experience.

This new page that asks for your comments has the following pacifist statement...

"I know that many people feel or will feel that revenge is will stop Terroristic War on USA. I feel that this is not the appropriate call for action. US President Bush has indicated that the US Military will be retaliating on this act on USA, hence has somewhat noted that they will hunt whomever is responsible for this act.

This hunt may lead to war, and therefore, the possibility of World War 3. War is not the answer to our problems or issues. Eventually, there will be worldwide corruption and chaos, and the possibility that we may actually destroy everyone on this planet!
This could lead to the "Armageddon," that was predicted centuries ago."
Well, pray for peace and prepare for war. See which one you will get. The terrorists who coldly killed thousands of innocents today do not give one crap for your prayers for peace, and your Polyanna dreams will not make peace happen. This site suggests that we sit back and pray and suggests that we should live in fear of starting a war? Idiot...we are at war!
Yes, we should pray. We should also terminate the animals responsible for this cowardly attack. A dead terrorist cannot wreak havoc.

I have the pager programmer / base console and 100 pagers but no information on the codes used.

I would like to build a small handheld transmitter to send an alert to one of these pagers. I am thinking of writing an EPROM with the required code and using this to modulate the transmitter, alternatively buying an off the shelf solution.

A search on the internet gave me ascom and nira protocols RU09 and P940AI and T94051. but the pagers I have appear to be made by Ericsson.

Any information or links would be helpful. If replying by email remove the anti-spam, Thanks.

Ever consider that if the "infrastructure breaks down" as you suggest, paper

Well, here in Oklahoma, the state attorney general has established a special gasoline price gouging hotline, to report stations doing so. Life will go on.

Glad I ditched that suv for a new 4 banger. Here in Omaha gas is still $1.70 for the most part. May go up to $2. Any higher is not expected. I won't do business in the future to the business who take advantage of a tradgedy such as this.
I really feal anger at the people who feel the need to take advantage on Ebay with auctions with the WTC.

The American cry after the cowardly attack by the Japanese in World War II was "Remember Pearl Harbour". Japan paid the price.
This act of cowardliness is so much more cowardly and despicable because of the deliberate targeting of civilians, that a response is required similar to that which ended World War II.
The resources required of the attack on New York seem to be beyond that of any individual terrorist group. There for this attack must be supported of a national government or governments.
America must be prepared to get dirty in this war against terrorism and the governments that support it. The task will tough and you may have doubts about what needs to be done. But, remember New York!

Remember New York.

2592. 10 Meter Intruders

Some CB operators have moved into the frequencies which lie between the regular 40 channels and the 10 meter ham band. They refer to this as "freebanding". Often, you hear the effect of this as "splatter" into the lower portion of 10 Meters. Occasionally, you will hear one of these fellows attempt to "break in" on your QSO. Meanwhile, some trucking companies have adopted 28.085 as a "company channel". They use it as an intercom to get away from Channel 19. (See the FCC Enforcement Logs for details about how one trucker was by FCC).

In recent months, there has been a steady stream of letters pouring into the FCC offices from 10 Meter operators who want to be able to enjoy the band without interference from illegal stations.

If you are concerned about this, please become involved. Monitor and document illegal signals. If you locate the source, gather as much data as you can and forward it to Riley. Write to radio publications urging fellow amateurs to become supportive.

You either are a PLAYER or a VICTIM. In other words, you are helping direct matters, or you simply sit back and take whatever the players force upon you.

Don't roll over and play dead concerning 10 Meters! If you don't think the radio "terrorists" have their sights on taking over our band, stop by a CB radio shop and look at the frequency chart on the wall. The export radio manufacturers have designated "channels" every 10 KHz from 26MHZ all the way through the 10 Meter SSB band. And unlicensed people are buying these radios every day. If this doesn't get your attention, you should check your pulse!

Prudence, ignorance, same things...
There was a greater chance with something going down in 2000 when the electronic "disaster" would have affected the electronic money. The physical disaster won't affect the electronic world.

I tend to disagree. Profiting off the disaster would be selling parts of it or some other BS like that. Price increases is simply profiting off of America's true ignorance.

I have another question for you. I am trying the Band Scope and it seems not to work well at all. It does not detect WAVY which is a very strong signal here . I also tested in the broadcast band where the are 8 stations that are over S9+20 and the result is the same. I get maybe 1 or 2. It scans by it many times without detecting it. I don't know what to do. Sometimes it will detect it if I scan manually in AM mode. Is there something I should be doing to help this? I am using a TS870 Transceiver. This is a bit of a problems as that is one of the best features of the program. One of the things that convinced me to send in my order.

I would appreciate some guidance here. There is nothing about this problem in the help file. Is there any place where this program is discussed by users?
Thanks.

I agree and if anyone knows of business doing this or web sites that follow the gouging of America due to this tragedy, I'd much appreciate a link so that I may add the local business that may be doing the same thing.

Actually, the FCC regulations which authorize an individual the use of a callsign do not extend to individual networks. In the case of ww7a@yahoo.com, the email address identifies an account with the designation of ww7a on a private network maintained by the owner of Yahoo.com, and is NOT regulated by the FCC.

Also, the minute that you send an email out of your private network and across the internet, it becomes public domain, and can be reprinted or posted anywhere at any time, except in very specific circumstances, though it IS considered rude.

On the other hand, I don't see any actual threat, either of litigation or of harm, in the email sent to you by "Dr. Andrew Forsberg WW7A", and so I don't think you have a leg to stand on in regards to responding to a threat. I would simply suggest that you add his email address to your ignore list.

Cheers,

Ripstop
